Marriages between Chinese and Burmese in Burma, performed according to Burmese customs, would not be binding unless supplemented by ceremonies peculiar to Chinese customs. The number and character of the ceremonies depend upon the wealth and position in life of the parties. A Burmese Buddhist woman, whether a minor or not cannot legally be married without her consent or against her will. Co-habitation with a Burmese woman for three or four months is quite insufficient to raise the presumption of a valid marriage. 4 L.B.R. 155; 1 Bur. L.T. 125, Foll. (Parlett, J.) ———Marriage—Second marriage.

No formal demand in marriage and no ceremony by a person married once before are necessary or usual; nor the consent of the chief wife for second contemporaneous marriage to enable the co-wife to inherit. The woman marrying a married man, with knowledge, connot be presumed to be the mistress and not a wife under the Burmese Buddhist Law. A man under Burmese Buddhist Law can marry two sisters. Where the acceptance of the relation of the husband and the lesser wife by the head wife is satisfactorily proved, the former is entitled to inherit on an equal footing with the latter. BUDDHIST LAW—BURMESE—PARTITION.

Partition.

———Partition—Ancestral estate—Jointness—Burden of proof.

Buddhist law does not say that ancestral land must be presumed to remain undivided until the contrary is proved. There is no such presumption in Buddhist law. No general rule can be laid down as to the burden of proving jointness or separation without regard to the facts and circumstances of each particular case. (Maung Kin, J.) MAUNG SHWE LA v. MA KYWE.

1 Bur. L.J. 206.

———Partition—Auratha son—Joint acquisition of parents—Remarriage of father.

On the death of the mother and the remarriage of the father, the auratha son is entitled to get from the father one-fourth of the estate jointly acquired by him and his mother. At the same time the auratha son cannot make that claim against his father merely by reason of his mother's death and its is only the remarriage of his father that gives him a right to the one-fourth. ———Partition—Children of two marriages and step-mother—Mode of division.

Whether between children of two marriages, or between children of the first marriage and their step mother, the division is always per stirpes, not per capita, during the life-time of their mother. Courts cannot recognise a preferential treatment in partition on the ground of service to the deceased. A first born child is not the auratha son until he attains majority. The children of a predeceased auratha child are entitled one-fourth of the share that their parent would have got and cannot be allowed to receive more than what their father would have obtained himself. ———Partition— Father and daughter—Daughter given a larger share—Validity of partition.

A partition between a father and daughter is not invalid merely because the father assigns to the daughter a larger share than she could ordinarily claim under the Law of Inheritance, even if the whole of the joint property is given over to her. (Twomey, J.) MAUNG HMVE v. MA LUN AUNG.

Pre-emption.

———Pre-emption—Co-heir—Executant—Of right.

A Burmese Buddhist co-heir has a right of pre-emption in respect of the unseparated interest of any particular co-heir in undivided inherited property, and the whole body of co-heirs, excepting those in respect of whose interest the exercise of the right is claimed, are entitled to settle among themselves which of them shall exercise it in any particular case. In case there are conflicting claims among the co-heirs and they fail to come to any agreement, any of them may institute a suit to establish his claim as against the others and also against any purchaser who may have bought or be proposing to buy the property in disregard of their rights. (Heald, A. J. C.) MAUNG PU ZA v. MA NGE MA.
33 I.C. 468=3 U. B. R. (1919) 154.

———Pre-emption—Sale of ancestral undivided property—Right of purchaser—Pre-emption.

Under Burmese Buddhist law the sale of an undivided ancestral estate by one co-heir without the consent of other heir is good only to the extent of his share in the estate. The other co-heirs have a right to pre-empt his share when sold, but they must exercise the right promptly. The proper remedy open to a purchaser or mortgagee of such share is a suit for partition of the property and possession of that share. (U. Kin, J.) SOMASUNDARAM CHETTY v. MA SHWE NYUN. 10 Bur. ———Pre-emption—For whom and against whom it exists.

The right of pre-emption can be enforced only against the person inheriting jointly with him, and is not available against his heirs after the co-inheritor's death ; surviving joint inheritors and the heirs of any who have died are entitled to pre-emption. There is no right of pre-emption among co-sharers who took part in the partition of ancestral immoveable property, after the partition of such property. ———Pre-emption— Delay in assertion of right—Effect.

The right of pre-emption, must under the Buddhist Law be asserted promptly and it would be inequitable to allow a claim after a long period. Seduction.

———Seduction—Burma Laws Act, S. 13.

In an action for damages for breach of promise of marriage the fact that there was seduction must be taken into account in measuring damages. Under Burmese Buddhist Law an action lies for damages for seduction. The ancient law on this point is approved by public opinion and is in accordance with present customs and practice but as seduction is not a question ralating to marriage, suits ralating to seduction cannot under S. 13 of the Burma Laws Act be decided according to the Buddhist Law. ———Succession—Orasa child—Joint residence not necessary.

The appellant, the eldest daughter at the time of her mother's death, had been married for 17 years. During the first two years of her married life she continued to live with her parents; she then moved to a house near by and lived there for 20 years; finally she went to reside at another village, and a year later her mother died. Held, that the appellant was not disentitled to her share as Orasa by reason only of the facts that she lived separately from her father and that she never assumed the duties of her deceased mother in the family. ———Succession—Son's right in parent's estate after remarriage not a vested one.

The right of the eldest son (orasa child) to claim a quarter share from his father on the latter's re-marriage after the mother's death is not a vested one. The same view would apply to the claim, if any, of the Canittha children. There is nothing in the Dhammathats to justify the assumption that the children in such a case are bound to be content with a portion only of their parent's joint estate, as would be the case if their right were a vested, one. They may elect to throw in their lot with the new benefit of any possible increase in the family fortune. Should they do so they would in any case be entitled to three-fourths of their own parent's payin as against the step parent and would also share in the after acquired property. Assuming that the Kanittha children are entitled to claim partition from their surviving parent on the latter's re-marriage, their right is not a vested one and, that, if they fail to exercise it before the death of that parent the right lapses. The same rule applies to the right of the eldest son. (May Oung, J.) MAUNG HO v. MAUNG PO THEIN. 1 Rang. 363=2 Bur. L.J. 109=1923 Rang. 239.

———Succession—Child of divorced wife living some time with mother and some time with father—No rupture of filial affection—Child entitled to inherit.

There is no provision in the Dhammathats enabling a father to disinherit his child except by giving him away in adoption to another, though a child who behaves as an enemy towards his parents is debarred from inheriting. A child who merely at his father's request lives separately from him is not included amongst the six classes of children who are not entitled to inherit. The Buddhist Code does not give any meritorious value to mere living together or make the opposite state of things a reason for exclusion, and there must be filial neglect to exclude. But if a child on the divorce of his mother accompanied by partition of property goes to live with her and ceases to be a member of his father's household he is debarred from inheriting from his father. The plaintiff after her mother's divorce lived for a short time with her father and then went and lived with his sister. Later she returned and lived with her father and was doing so when he married his last wife. She continued to live with her father and her stepmother for some time and then was sent by her father to live with her mother and she continued to live with her mother until her father's death but during that time she paid two or three visits to her father. Held, she was entitled to inherit. Plaintiff claimed to be the grand-daughter of the deceased. Her father had predeceased her grandfather and there were no other blood relations competent to give evidence as to her relation with the deceased. Held, this is a case in which evidence of general repute is of considerable importance provided it is cogent. In the estate of her deceased grandfather grandchild gets, as against the step grand-mother, in the absence of issue of the second marriage, one half of the "payin and 1/8 of the "letletpwa." ———Succession — Wife living apart from husband for 8 years does not affect her right to succeed to husband.

The mere fact that a wife has lived apart from her husband by mutual consent on account of incompatibility of temperament does not constitute misconduct or undutifulness entitling the husband to a divorce. Consequently the wife is not deprived of her right to inherit her husband's estate and is entitled to grant of administration in preference to the grandson. (Robinson, C.J. and Pratt, J.) ———Succession—Step grand children and collaterals—Separate residence of child—Effect —Difference in Nationality.

Step grand children in the absence of real ones or heirs in the direct line exclude collaterals, except in regard to a share in undivided ancestral property which they share equally with collaterals. Step grand children cannot be held to have forfeited their right to inherit their step grand mother's estate because they have already received their grandfather's estate. The real point of view of Buddhist law is undoubtedly based on community of interest between husband and wife. So strong is the bond between them, that in the absence of natural children husband's or wife's children as the case may be, rank as children of the step parent in the matter of inheritance to the exclusion of collateral blood relations. 11 U.B.R 1892—61; Ref. 10 L.B.R. 396, foll. Mere seperate residence does not by itself now-a-days prove or even set up an inference of a breach of filial relations such as would deprive a child of his rights of inheritance. Burmese Buddhist law applies even though the parties on one side are not Burmese Bhuddist, and the mere fact that an heir or heirs is not of exactly the same religion or nationality is therefore immaterial. There is no provision, which excludes the descendants or others who would ordinarily be entitled to rank as heirs of a Burmese Buddhist from inheritance on the ground of difference in nationality or religion. ———Succession—Disobedience, single act of —Thuanokta son.

The plaintiff entered into second marriage with a servant of her mother's household. On her mother's death she sued for her mother's estate and was opposed by her own children. It was contended that, her second marriage being in defiance of her mother's wishes, in consequence of which there had been a complete breach which had never been healed, between her and her mother, she was debarred from inheritance. Held, The texts which debar an incorrigibly disobedient child from inheriting refer to a child living with his parents and still subject to their authorities and not to an adult child like the plaintiff respondent who had been married and had children of her own. Though by marrying plaintiff defied her mother's wishes her marriage cannot be regarded as an act of disobedience, as she was under no obligation to obey. A single act of disobedience, however gross, does not disqualify from inheritance, unless the act is an act of perfect enmity. Both the child who behaves like an enemy by abusing and assaulting his parents or otherwise, and the child who without behaving like an enemy is incorrigibly disobedient are debarred from inheriting. Held by the Full Bench (Pratt, J. not fully concurring). (1) In a family consisting of both sons and daughters a child can attain the full status of orasa prior to the death of its parents. (2) In such a family where the eldest child is a daughter no son can become orasa. (3) In such a family the question as to which is the orasa can be decided before the death of either parent. (4) There cannot be two orasa children. (5) Sons are not always preferred to daughters as orasa, unless the son is eldest born. (6) The eldest born son is the orasa. If he predeceased his parents, his children will have a right to preferential treatment. If the eldest son died before he became competent to take his father's place, a younger son, being fully qualified may become orasa, and if that son had predeceased his parents, his children will have a right to the same preferential treatment. (7) The eldest child being a daughter can claim on the death of her mother a quarter share as orasa and if she then died before her father without having got the share, her children will have a preferential treatment. And if she then died after her father but before she had claimed her distributive share in the estate, her right of maintenance will devolve upon her children. (Robinson, C.J. and Maung Kin, J.) The children of the marriage during which the property is acquired take double the share taken by the children of the other marriages and the out of time grand-children—not being the children of an orasa child—together take a quarter of what their parents would have taken had they survived the deceased. ——Succession—Orasa son—Right of his younger brother—Share of orasa son—Failure to claim promptly—Presumption.

Under the Burmese Buddhist Law, if the eldest son attains his majority and fulfils the prescribed conditions and then dies before his parents, his position as orasa remains unfilled and the next younger brother does not succeed to it. ——Succession—Eldest daughter—Interest during mother's lifetime.

Under the Buddhist Law during the lifetime of her mother the eldest daughter has not such an interest in the estate of her deceased father as is contemplated in S. 91 of the T.P. Act. The eldest daughter can only claim one-fourth of the bulk of the estate if her mother dies first and she is capable of replacing her mother in the household. Sometimes the eldest daughter on marrying and leaving the parental roof is given her share in the estate during the life-time of both parents. In that case she has no further claim on the estate. If this has not happened, the eldest daughter on the death of the father, is entitled to certain specified property and her mother gets the bulk of the estate and if on the death of her father, the mother marries again, the eldest daughter is further entitled to one-fourth of her father's wearing apparel and ornaments but her mother still retains the bulk of the estate. The widow with an orasa son would have full power to dispose of the remaining three quarters and on her death without alienating that share, it would pass to her heirs. ———Succession — Widow — Eldest son—Eldest daughter—Power to dispose of property inherited—Necessity.

Where there has been a complete divorce, a daughter who goes to live with her mother and does not maintain filial relations with her father, is not entitled to inherit the latter's estate on his death. The heir of a deceased husband, under Buddhist Law, is his widow, and not any of his children except the eldest son in respect of a fourth of the estate until the death of his widow. The three-fourth's share which goes to the widow is her absolute property, to do what she will wish. But she has no right to dispose of the one-fourth share of the eldest son, even in case of necessity. To the eldest daughter also, certain specified property is allotted and the remainder goes to the widow as her absolute property. But in the case of necessity such as for the maintenance of younger children, the widow is entitled to dispose of the special property reserved for the eldest daughter. (Mc Coll, A.J.C.) ———Succession—Daughters and son.

In a family three issues were born; 1st son died infant, 2nd and 3rd were daughters. Held, that 2nd was the eldest daughter; within the meaning of the S. 163 of the Digest. Even in case the eldest child dying infant would have been daughter, the inheritance would have devolved on the 2nd as the next eldest daughter: in the absence of another son born after the 1st deceased son, who would have filled the place of the deceased or as at the circumstance did not make any substantial change. Texts of S. 163 of the Digest allow the issue of the eldest daughter an equal share as that of the youngest of his aunts. When a man dies his property is equally divided among all his sons; daughters succeed only in the absence of sons and the widow in the absence of both sons and daughters. When a Chinese widow remarries a Burmese Buddhist and dies leaving both her first husband's property and subsequently acquired ones, the customary law of Chinese Buddhist will apply. The second husband would be entitled to all the property belonging to her at the time of the marriage, while the first husband's children would get the property which came from their father. BUNDELKHAND ALIENATION OF LAND ACT (II of 1903).

———S. 3—Pre-emption, suit for—Sanction of Collector.

The sanction contemplated in S. 3 of the Land Alienation Act applies to a voluntary transfer and there is nothing in the Act, which provides for sanction to be given to an intending pre-emptor to bring his suit. A Court is not entitled to grant a decree for pre-emption where the pre-emptor is a person who cannot purchase the property in question as not being the member of the agricultural tribe within S. 3 of the Land Alienation Act. BUNDELKHAND ALIENATION OF LAND ACT (II of 1903) S. 16.

There is nothing in the Bundelkhand Land Alienation Act which authorizes the Collector to make a partition of the patti behind the backs or other co-sharers for the benefit of the mortgagee from a co-sharer. The Collector could only mortgage the right which the judgment-debtor has and except as regards the plots in the possession as khudhast that right was a right to receive his share on a distribution of the profits of the patti. The fact that he happened to be a lambardar at the time is irrelevant. The lambardar is the agent of the co-sharers for purposes of collection, but the fact of his being lambardar in no way increases or alters his personal rights as proprietor. The argument that the other co-sharers are in no way prejudiced is fallacious. (Ryves and Daniels, JJ.) PRAG NARAIN v. JWALA PRASAD.

——Benefit claimed by some mortgagors—Integrity of mortgage broken.

The failure of the mortgagee to make any claim against some of the mortgagors, who had obtained the benefits of the Bundelkhand Encumbered Estates Act, cannot put the mortgagee in a worse position than he would have occupied if he had allowed the integrity of the mortgage to be broken up by permitting the holder of a share in the equity of redemption to redeem that share on payment of a proportionate amount of the debt. CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL ACT (III B.C. of 1899), S. 20.

——Ss. 20, 357, 555, and 558—Acquisition of land by the Corporation for the Improvement Trust is not proper.

It is not the policy of the Calcutta Municipal Act that the special powers given to the corporation to acquire land should be used to enable another body to acquire land through its medium. Hence where there was no sanctioned project of the Calcutta Corporation or any scheme of the Calcutta Improvement Trust, and the lands were ostensibly sought to be acquired by the former but the work to be carried out and paid for by the latter, the whole proceedings are bad. The powers of acquisition under the Act are confined to cases in which the Corporation itself is to execute the work. ——S. 37 — Persons living in flats — Electors.

Persons living in flats, are not eligible to be enrolled as voters in Municipal Election roll. (Chaudhuri, J.) In the matter of AMULYADHAN ADDY. 30 I.C. 307=46 Cal. 132.

——S. 37—Occupier—Meaning of—Association of individuals—Rules 8, 9, 11 of Sch. IV.

The word "occupier" in S. 37 (2) (1) (c) of the Calcutta Municipal Act means an occupier in the ordinary sense and not as defined, in S. 3 sub-section 30 of the Act. The only person who falls within that sub-section is a person who occupies a building separately numbered and valued for assessment. Associations of individuals unless associated for a common object do not become such by the mere fact they occupy portions of a house sub-divided into flats. Rule 2 (b) of the Act applies only to persons actually liable for the rates in respect of the two quarters specified. A notice under rule 8 need not be signed by the person giving it. (Greaves, J.) In re SURENDRACHANDRA GHOSE. 42 I.C. 454=45 Cal. 950.

——S. 38, Sch. IV, Rr. 3 (4), 9 and 10 (9)—Stranger—Representation of body corporate—Joint Hindu family or firm to be entered on the list of voters—Mandamus.

Rules 9 and 10 Cl. (9) of Sch. IV of the Calcutta Municipal Act taken together merely authorise a person, who is a member of an association, etc. to be entered on the list of voters. Therefore, a person foreign to the body corporate, e g. joint Hindu family or firm as the case may be, cannot be authorised by such body corporate to represent them. ——S. 55—Election petition, if can be treated as suit—Corrupt practices—Effect.

The matter of corrupt practices in elections has not been provided for in the Act except by the expression 'for any other cause,' in S. 56 of the Act. Mens rea is essential to constitute impersonation. If no fraud is shown against the candidate or his agents the election will not be set aside. A petition to set aside an election cannot be treated as a suit. Influencing individual voters avoids an election only if it is done by the candidate or his agents. To avoid an election on the ground of intimidation or undue influence, it must be shown that the candidate or his agents instigated it, or that it prevailed to such an extent as to prevent the election from being free. 46 I.C. 729=22 C.W.N. 678.

——Ss. 158 and 160—Valuation—Objections—Court of Small Causes—Notice.

S. 158 provides for a notice upon which a valuation is made and objections are then taken under S. 160. After the decision of the objection under S. 160 any person dissatisfied with the order passed on his objection may appeal to the Court of Small Causes. The Law does not contain any provision for a fresh notice. Where the Chairman of the Calcutta Municipal Corporation issued a notice for the re-valuation of a holding on the ground of the cost of construction and made certain valuation and afterwards when on hearing objections of the owner altered the valuation on the rental basis: Held, that the notice was sufficient and not defective. ——S. 162 — Valuation— Jurisdiction—Small Cause Court—Assessment.

In appeals under S. 162 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, a Small Cause Court Judge can deal with the question of valuation and that question alone. 26 C. 74 rel. As to the manner in which land is to be assessed after the valuation has been settled, whether it is or is not to be assessed as vacant land, is a question entirely beyond the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court Judge. ——Ss. 223 and 228—Inter-relation.

S. 223 deals with liability in personam for unsatisfied arrears. S. 228 deals with liability In rem for rents due and makes the consolidated rent a first charge on the property (subject to arrears of land revenue). S. 228 cannot be controlled by S. 223. Under S. 575 proceedings were instituted on the petitioner on 15-8-16 which were stayed at his request for negotiations between himself and the Municipality. On an application to revive the proceedings made on 28-2-17, the petitioner was ordered to pay daily fine of Rs. 30 from 16-5-16. Held, that delay vitiated the proceedings and so the conviction was invalid. ——Ss. 341, 450 (3) and 617—Removal of superstructure—Payment of compensation, if a condition precedent—Suit for declaration—Spec. Rel. Act, S. 42.

Where the Corporation of the City of Calcutta gives notice to the owner of a building encroaching on a public street to remove it, the payment of compensation provided in case of buildings erected before 1863, is not a condition precedent to its removal or demolition under S. 450, sub section 3; it may be paid afterwards. The compensation to be paid to the owner, is assessable by the Court of Small Causes under S. 617 and no suit for the purpose will lie in the ordinary Civil Courts. If, however, the Corporation refuses to admit the owner's right to compensation on the ground that the building was erected after 1863, and proceeds to demolish it, the Civil Court has a discretionary power, in a suit by the owner, to make a declaration that the building was erected before 1863 and that the owner was entitled to compensation. A Magistrate directed the removal of a masonry platform extending in front of the petitioner's building and over a drain in the public street. There was no evidence as to when the platform was erected. Held, the words "when a fixture has been attached" mean that the building must be first in existence and the attachment of the fixture must be subsequent to the erection of the building. In the absence of proof that the platform in question was constructed after the erection of the building, the Magistrate's order must be set aside. To make the section applicable, the prosecution must prove the facts showing that the section applies. (Chaudhuri and Newbould, JJ.) ——Ss 313 and 442—Notice for removal on the landlord—Dilapidated hut.

The definition of owner as given in S. 4 subsec. (32) includes both the landlord and tenant. A notice under S. 343 for the removal of a hut belonging to the tenant can be served upon the person who is the owner of the land and such person is liable to comply with the terms thereof. The Chairman of the Calcutta Corporation disapproved of certain building plans submitted and the General Committee dismissed an appeal therefrom as being out of time; held there is no cause of action for a suit for sanction of the approval of the plan. Under Ss. 370 to 375 the Chairman and the General Committee are special tribunals to decide about the plans for buildings and so long as they act bona fide within their rights, their decision cannot be reviewed by a Court of Law and if they act mala fide, the only remedy is by application under S. 45 of the Spec. ———Ss. 408, 409 and 622—Municipal requisition — Non-compliance by owner — Occupier of a portion of the property rendering compliance impossible—Action under S. 409.

It is unreasonable to construe S. 622, Cl. 3 of the Calcutta Municipal Act as meaning that an owner, who has not complied with a requisition for effecting improvements to any extent, is discharged from liability, merely, because the occupier of a portion of the land has rendered compliance impracticable only in part. Where though some of the tenants refused to afford facilities to the owner and thus rendered it impracticable for him to carry out completely all the improvements required by the Corporation, still the owner could have carried out some at least of the improvements, the owner is discharged from liability only to the extent that the conduct of the occupier makes the compliance impossible. Even though the General Committee of the Corporation decides to take recourse to S. 409 of the Calcutta Municipal Acts the owner is not forthwith absolved from the liability he has already incurred by reason of his failure to comply with the requisition under S. 401. If the requisite improvements are carried out by the General Committee under S. 409, the default on the part of the owner vanishes but till the work is completed the default remains and with it the liability for prosecution. in 3 months. On 10th March the petitioner gave a notice under S. 419 to the Corporation intimating that he proposed to remove the land from the category of bustee and on the 20th March he took certain objections under S. 598, at the hearing of which, the period was extended to 6 months. The petitioner having done nothing, the Corporation applied for summons but the Magistrate refused to take action upon it as the period of the notice was stated by mistake to be 3 months. A second application was then made on 31st July and the petitioner was prosecuted and convicted. Held that the Magistrate's action on the previous application did not bar the prosecution: that the extended period of six months ran from 3-1-1916, not from 20th March when the objections were taken and that the negotiations and arrangements about the requirements of notice between the petitioner and the Corporation that were going on after the notice, did not render the requirements of notice unenforceable. There is no standard of purity of ghee fixed by Legislature; Courts of Law have, therefore, to decide a question of adulteration upon such evidence as is available in each case. As there is no statutory presumption, every case must depend on its own evidence. A statutory standard should be laid down as raising a presumption of adulteration and such cases should not be made to depend on evidence forthcoming in each case to test the value of the Corporation standard. If the profession is so exercised on subsequent days, whether a separate offence is committed on each day or whether it is all one continuing offence, is doubtful. If the profession is exercised on one day only, the profession must be commenced within the following three months. If it is exercised on a number of days, whether the offence is a continuing one or not, the prosecution must be commenced within three months of the last of such days. Per Shamsul Huda, J.—For the purposes of carrying on a pleader's profession he need not daily conduct a case or attend or address the Court. The facts of keeping an office for the purpose of receiving his clients, giving them advice or being generally open to engagement as a pleader will constitute the carrying on of a pleader's profession. Printed proceedings themselves would not be sufficient legal proof unless the provisions of S. 78 of the Evidence Act are complied with. The mere fact that the Secretary had signed the notice under S. 589, instead of the Chairman, does not in any way affect the merits and is a mere irregularity within S. 102 of the Cal. Muni. Act. ——Sch. V, R. 2—Election of Commissioner—Nomination paper—Description of candidate in the letter—Proposer, seconder and approver—Approver being a firm.

A nomination paper is invalid in law if it did not contain the description of the candidate. Sch. 5, R. 2 of the Calcutta Municipal Act contemplates that a nomination paper should be self-contained and complete in itself and a letter could not be taken as part of the nomination paper. The 2nd and 3rd forms could not be taken as part of the nomination paper inasmuch as they did not contain the name of the candidate. The nomination paper was bad in law inasmuch as it did not contain the signature of 18 approvers in addition to those of the proposer and seconder. It is clear from Sch. 5, R. 2 that if a person signs a nomination paper of a candidate, either as a proposer or seconder, he cannot also sign it as an approver. Signature of approver No. 15 not being that of an individual but of a firm name, was bad in law and should be rejected. Per Woodroffe, J.:—Alternative nomination papers may be sent to the Chairman, so that if one is held either in whole or in part, to be invalid, the other may be used. In such a case, however, each nomination paper should be complete in itself. A candidate may also send in a nomination paper with names of more than 18 voters as mentioned in the rule, in order to meet the case of possible objections to any of the voters whose names appear upon the paper. In such a case more than one nomination paper may be used but the paper must be connected by placing on each papers, the name, description and address

CALCUTTA RENT ACT, (III B.C. OF 1920).

A part of hut is not covered by the definition of premises in S. 2 (e) of the Calcutta Rent Act for finding a standard rent in respect of a portion of a hut cannot be maintained. (Woodroffe and Ghose, JJ.) RAM GOLAM KALWAR v. GUMTI SHAW. 69 I.C. 976 (Cal.).

——— Ss. 2 (e) and 15—'Premises'—Work-shop is not—Standardisation of rent.

A workshop does not come within the definition of 'premises' in S. 2 of the Act and the fact that the engineer used a room for retiring or for office, does not make a difference. An application for standardisation of rent, therefore, is not applicable to a workshop. (Chatterjee and Cuming, JJ.) INDIAN ENGINEERING CO., LTD. v. GLADSTONE WYLLIE & CO.
68 I.C. 907=26 C.W.N. 102.

——— Ss. 2 (f) (ii) and 15—Portion of premises—Sub-letting—First letting—Standard rent how calculated.

The object of including in the definition of "landlord", a tenant and in the definition of a "tenant" a sub-tenant is to extend the benefit of the Rent Act to sub-tenants. Standard means a rule or model and can only be one. The whole object of the Act is to prevent tenants being made to pay rents which the legislature considers excessive or unreasonable. Standard rent means the rent at which the premises were originally let. Consequently if a tenant sub-lets a portion of the premises, the standard rent of the portion so sub-let is to be determined according to S. 15 (3) of the Act and not under S. 2 (f) (ii) of the Calcutta Rent Act. Under S. 15 (3) the part sub-let is taken to have been first let when the entire premises were let out to the tenant. (Chatterjee and Cuming, JJ.) ROBEIRO v. ELIAS S. M. CALCUTTA RENT ACT (III B. C. of 1920), S. 4.

——— Ss. 2 (g) and 11 (5)—Tenant, meaning of—Suit before the Act—Non-payment of rent—Forfeiture.

The word 'tenant' is used in a special sense in the Act of 1920 and includes a person whose tenancy has expired even before the Act. Such a tenant is entitled to the benefit of the Act even if a suit for ejectment was instituted before the Act came into operation. If the tenant does not pay rent under S. 11 (5), he is not entitled to the benefits of S. 11. (Rankin, J.) ——— Ss. 4 and 11—Monthly tenant under owner of premises—Statutory tenant—Standard rent—Agreement to pay increased rent to owner—Lease for two years—Illegality of object—Contract Act, S. 23.

The defendant, a tenant, of a flat at a rent of rupees 65 a month, under the owner of the premises, was holding as a monthly tenant. The position of the defendant while the Calcutta Rent Act was in force, was that he was the statutory tenant of the flat liable to pay the standard rent defined in S. 2, cl. (f). The owner on 11—6—1920 wrote to the defendant refusing the defendant's tender of rent at the old rate and suggesting that the defendant should move the Rent Controller to fix the standard rents. In August, the owner gave the defendant notice to quit by the end of September on the ground suggested by S. 11, cl. 5 i.e., for arrears of rent. The defendant replied that he had deposited the rent with the Controller. On 26-10-1920 the owner granted to the plaintiff a lease of the flat for a term of 2 years at a monthly rent of rupees 100 for the first year and rupees 110 for the second year. The owner gave the defendant notice of the lease, requested him to attorn to the plaintiff as landlord till the end of October, and thereafter, in pursuance of a notice to quit already served upon him, to give vacant possession to the plaintiff. The defendant replied claiming the protection of the Rent Act and refusing to vacate. Subsequently however he attorned to the plaintiff to the extent of depositing with the Controller rent at the old rate for payment to the plaintiff and of applying to the Controller to fix the standard rent as between the plaintiff and himself. The application was made in March 1921, and by an order, dated 30-6-1921, the Controller fixed the standard rent at Rs 85. After the order on the 31st May the plaintiff's solicitors wrote to the defendant giving him a fresh notice to quit by the end of June 1921. It was asserted that the plaintiff required the premises for his own occupation. This notice was also ineffectual and in July 1921, the plaintiff filed his suit claiming vacant possession of the flat and mesne profits at the rate of Rs. 100 per mensem. Held, that the object of the lease by the owner in favour of the plaintiff was clearly to avoid the provisions of the Rent Act and to get a higher rent than was allowed by the Act and that the agreement of lease was void as being opposed to public policy and the provisions of the Rent Act. (Sanderson, C.J. and Richardson, J.) SALEH ABRAHAM v. MANEKJI COWASJI. 50 Cal. 491 = 75 I.C. 521 = 1924 Cal. 57.

——S. 4 (3) (iv)—Lease for 3 years with option to renew for like period is not one for five years and upwards.

A lease for a period of three years reserving an option to renew it for another period of three years, cannot be taken to be a lease for "five years and upwards" within the meaning of S. 4 (3) of the Calcutta Rent Act. Hence an application to standardise the rent does lie. (Greaves and Ghose, JJ.) BASANTA CHARAN SINHA v. RAJANI MOHAN CHATERJI. 39 C.L.J. 85 = 49 Cal. 928 = 26 C.W.N. 711 = 1922 Cal. 514.

——S. 8—Standard Rent, increase of, by President of Tribunal—Notice is not necessary to entitle landlord to recover rent.

A notice under S. 8 of the Rent Act is not necessary when the standard rent is fixed by the Controller and has been further increased by the President of the Tribunal, the landlord having complied with the provisions of s. 8 as regards the increase allowed by the Controller. A certificate from the Controller is not necessary in order to entitle the landlord to recover the rent so increased by the President of the Tribunal. (Sanderson, C.J., and Richardson, J.) COHEN v. DIAS. 70 I C. 551 = 26 C.W.N. 961 = 1922 Cal. 475.

——S. 10—Proviso—Bona fide requirements of landlord—Standardisation of rent—Refusal to accept—Deposit of rent with Controller.

A landlord who has premises sufficient for his requirements should not be allowed to eject tenants because he chooses for his own convenience or profits to deprive himself of the use of the premises which he is occupying and then to say to his other tenants "having deprived myself of the use of the premises which I hitherto occupied, I therefore require the house in which you live for my own occupation and I now propose to eject you." To allow such a plea would be to defeat the object of the Act and in such circumstances a landlord cannot be said bona fide to require the premises for his own occupation. It is not enough that a plff. in order to defeat a plea under the Calcutta Rent Act should merely say that the desires the premises bona fide for his own occupation. The word in the Act is not "desire" but "require". This involves something more than a mere wish and it involves an element of need. It is not necessary for a tenant to offer rent to his landlord every month and obtain a refusal every month from him before he is entitled to pay to the rent collector. It was not intended that by the Act that such a pass should be gone through every month when the relations are such that the landlord refuses to accept the rent and the tenant is justified in paying the rent to the Controller month by month once there has been a refusal by the landlord to accept. Where the rent had not been standardized by the Rent Controller and no agreement between the parties to pay the increased rent had been entered into, the question as to whether the tenant has paid rent to the fullest extent allowable by the Act does not arise. CALCUTTA RENT ACT (III B. C. of 1920), S. 11.

——S. 11—Benefit of section—A defaulting tenant is not entitled to it.

The Act gives to a mere monthly tenant considerable fixity of tenure upon a condition namely, that he is a rent-paying and not a defaulting tenant. Where the sum of money which the tenant had paid to the Rent Collector was insufficient to meet either the contractual rent or the rent allowed under S. 2 (1) of the Act or the rent ultimately fixed as the standard rent by the Controller: Held, the tenant was not in the circumstances a person who was entitled to the benefit of the provisions of S. 11 of the Act. (Rankin J.) I. J. COHEN v. S. E. HOTTINGER. 49 Cal. 383 = 69 I.C. 988 = 1922 Cal. 380.

Where the defendant-lessee of certain premises intimated to the plff. landlord of his intention to quit the premises on the expiration of the lease, and thereupon the plff. agreed with E to let it to him from that date, held, that this was a cause which ought to be deemed satisfactory within S. 11 (1) of the Act. The grounds upon which a landlord can successfully claim an order for possession are not limited to the grounds mentioned in the section. The Court can exercise discretion in his favour upon any other grounds which might appear to the Court to be satisfactory. (Ghose, J.) CALCUTTA RENT ACT (III B. C. of 1920), S. 11.

——S. 11 (5)—Benefit of Act when claimable—Failure to pay in time—Effect—Agreement to extend time.

Where in a suit in ejectment, the benefit of the Rent Act is claimed, the defendant must show that he has paid arrears within 3 months of the Rent Act coming into force, and subsequently paid his rent regularly within the time fixed in the contract with his landlord, or in the absence of any such contract, by the 15th day of the following month, or in the event of the landlord refusing to accept rent, by depositing it with the Rent Controller within a fortnight of its becoming due. Where there is an agreement to extend time for payment before the rent actually becomes due under the lease, then the time within which rent has to be paid under S. 11 (5) may be the extended date, but where default has already taken place, subsequent acceptance of rent by the landlord does not take the matter out of S. 11 (5). ——S. 15—Order rejecting — Application for standard rent—Interference—Government of India Act, S. 107.

The Rent Controller is a Court subordinate to the High Court which can revise orders under S. 15 of the Calcutta Rent Act in virtue of its powers of superintendence under S. 107 of the Government of India Act. Under S. 15 of the Rent Act it is obligatory on the Rent Controller to grant a certificate certifying the standard rent. Where the rooms let are certain, easily ascertainable ones and subject to no doubt, the order of the Rent Controller rejecting an application for fixing a standard rent is liable to be set aside. The petitioner a woman of the town applied to the Rent Controller under S. 15 of the Act for standardisation of the rent of the premises occupied by her. The application was dismissed on the ground that the petitioner had no locus standi. It appeared, however that the landlord, the opposite party did not set up the invalidity of the tenancy but invited the Court to fix the standard rent at a certain amount. Held, that in the circumstances of the case the Rent Controller should have entered the application. In a rent standardising case the landlord objected to the Controller's jurisdiction on the ground that the subject-matter of the proceedings could not come under the term 'premises'—On the objection being overruled, he applied to the President of the Improvement Tribunal for revising the order—Held, the landlord was entitled to a decision on the question, and the fact that he objected to the jurisdiction of the Rent Controller did not disentitle him to his remedy under S. 18 of the Rent Act. ———Ss. 89 and 104—Conviction under a wrong section—Legality—Ignorance of law.

It is illegal to convict an accused person under a wrong section of the Cantonment Code; whether the conviction can be maintained on other grounds is perfectly immaterial. A conviction under section 104 cannot be set aside on the ground of mere ignorance on the part of the accused of the amendment to that section. Ordering payment of a future daily fine on default of compliance with an order of Court is improper. The proper procedure in cases, where such an order is not complied with, is to institute further proceedings giving the accused an opportunity of defending himself. The penal sections of the Cantonment Code must be construed strictly both in favour of and against an accused. (Kensington, J.) EMPEROR v. SITA RAM. 12 Cr.L J. 371 = 60 P.W.R. ———Ss. 6, 8, 18 and 21—Dispute as to rent—Reference to arbitration—Decision final—Military Officers, meaning of—Amount of rent when matter of contract—Procedure—Fresh appropriation.

The decision of the Committee appointed under the Act on a matter referred to them under S. 21 is final. The words 'a Military Officer' and the 'Military Officer' in Ss. 6, 8 and 18 refer only to the particular Military Officer at whose instance a notice under S. 9 is issued and not to his successor-in-office. The Act contemplates a fresh appropriation of rent whenever the owner of a house in Cantonment refuses to let it at reasonable rent to a Military Officer who can bring himself under S. 8 (2) of the Act. When the procedure prescribed in the Act is not followed, the amount of rent payable by the Military Officer is a matter of contract expressed or implied between the owner and that officer. Cantonment land was granted by Government to plff. on condition that the grantee wishing to alienate must take the permission of military authorities. Plff. wanted to sell the land to defendant and on applying for sanction, the military authorities proposed to give it on condition the defendant would let out the bungalow to a military officer when required and should not claim to live in it as owner. Held the condition was perfectly justifiable and defendant was bound to complete the sale. CANTONMENT LAND.

——Ownership of, vested in Government —Adverse possession cannot be had against Secy. of State.

The Secretary of State is the absolute owner of all cantonment land, unless it can be proved satisfactorily that he has parted with the ownership. In the absence of evidence, all cantonment land belongs to the Secretary of State. There can be no adverse possession against him. The only position open to a person occupying land in cantonments which has not been specifically transferred by the Secretary of State, is the position of a tenant or the position of a licensee. ——Permanent tenancy—Evidence of—Building on land—Estoppel.

The burden of proving permanent tenancy in Cantonment area is on him who pleads it. The facts that they and their predecessors held the lands without a lease for a very long time, that the rent was never altered, that succession to the lands by transfer and inheritance has been established, and that buildings have been erected on the lands are not sufficient to establish permanent tenancy, nor do they raise any presumption of ownership in favour of the defts. or their predecessors-in-title. Plff. is not estopped from denying the permanent character of the tenancy though permanent structures are constructed on such lands to his knowledge. (Sultan Ahmed, J.) CANTONMENT TENURE.

——Military zone — Right of private individuals—Licensees—Right to compensation —Presumption of title from possession.[3]

The Secretary of State sued to eject deft. from premises within limits of the Poona Cantonment on the ground that the land belonged to the Government and deft. held it only on Cantonment or Military tenure which entitled the Government to resume it at their will and pleasure, subject to payment of compensation for the structures erected thereon. Deft. contended that he was the absolute owner of the land and claimed compensation on that footing: Held, on the evidence and on the construction of Bombay Regns. I of 1819, and XXII of 1827, etc. that the Military had the full proprietary right in the whole Cantonment. The deft. was a mere licensee of the land in suit and the house thereon was subject to expropriation at a price to be fixed by the authorities. Mere possession or occupation of the site of the house in question did not afford any presumption that deft. was the owner in fee. (Lord Robson.) KAI KHUSRU ADERJI v. SECRETARY OF STATE.

——Railways—Liability of carriers.

Whether the goods are to be delivered to the consignee at his house or at the termination of the journey, depends on agreement and on the usual course of business. If the goods are delivered at the house to which they are addressed, the carrier has done all that he had contracted to do and the mere fact that he delivers to some other person than the consignee at that house is no proof of breach of duty on his part. But if he delivers at any other place to any person other than the consignee, he does so at his peril. But where the carrier is not bound to deliver at the house of the consignee, his liability as carrier ceases when he has brought the goods to the station of destination and has tendered or delivered them within a reasonable time, to the consignee or has allowed him reasonable time in which to remove the goods. ——Railway Company — Negligence — Action for personal injuries—Condition relieving from liability—Special contract.

A carrier is liable for injury arising from negligence in the execution of his contract to carry unless he has effectively stipulated that he shall be free from such liability. If the contract is one which deprives the passenger of the benefit of a duty or care which he is prima facie entitled to expect that the Railway Company has accepted, the latter must discharge the burden of proving that the passenger assented to the special terms imposed. This he may be shown to have done either in person or through the agency of another. Such agency will be held to have been established when he is shown to have authorised antecedently or by way of ratification the making of the contract under circumstances in which he must be taken to have left everything to his agent. In such a case, it is sufficient to prove that he has been content to accept the risk of allowing terms to be made without taking the trouble to learn what was being agreed to. In such cases, the Railway Company may infer his intention from his conduct. Where, therefore, a passenger who is to be carried upon special conditions at a reduced fare has allowed terms to be made for him by an agent the presumption is that the passenger was content to accept the risk without enquiring what the terms agreed upon by his agent were. (Viscount Haldane) GRAND TRUNK RY. CO. OF CANADA v. ROBINSON.

———Liability of—Non-delivery of goods—Continuous carriage.

A carrier in its general sense means a person or company which undertakes to transport the goods of another person from one place to another for hire. Where goods have to be carried with the aid of different agencies to arrive at the destination, the carrier with whom the contract is made at one end is, in the absence of a contract, limiting his liability to his own transport system, liable for loss or destruction of the goods beyond his own system or in consequence of act done by or default of persons other than his own servants. Unless there is a contract to the contrary, the consignor cannot hold the Company with whom he did not contract, liable for the loss, when all that is complained of, is non-feasance. 29 I.C. 260=21 C.L.J. 565.

———Scope.

The Carriers Act is not exhaustive. The liability of the common carriers is governed by the English Common Law as modified by the Carries Act. A common carrier is therefore subject to two distinct classes of liability, the one as insurer, in which the element of default is absent, the other for losses, as he is under an obligation to carry safely, in which that element is present. The Carriers Act modifies this by providing that the liability as insurer for goods not mentioned in the schedule may be limited by special contract where the loss is due to negligence. The first deft. delivered the goods to the second deft. by river in steamers and flats belonging to the second deft. under some arrangement which was notified. The tea was burnt during transit. Plff. sued both the defts. for the recovery of the value of the tea. The action against first deft. was dismissed under S. 77 of the Railways Act, 1890 for want of the requisite notice. Held there was no contract between the plff. and the second deft. and that under the arrangement there was a general contract between the defts. whereby one became a sub-contractor to the other. Under the circumstances the 1st deft. had no authority to act as agent of the second deft. to enter into a contract for carriage on the latter's behalf. The second deft. was a common carrier and as such was liable to the plff. who was the owner of the goods. The Carriers Act, 1865 makes a common carrier liable to the owner of the goods as such, though not as insurers. The effect of S. 9 of the Bengal Regulation (VII of 1832) and of Act (XXI of 1850) which extended the principles of the Regulation to the whole of British India is virtually to set aside the provisions of Hindu law which penalise the renunciation of religion or exclusion from caste by enforcing forfeiture of the property of the convert. A Hindu who was joint in estate with his son became a convert to Mahomedanism in 1845 and died in 1851, his son having predeceased him. Held, that the convert's son who remained a Hindu did not acquire any enforceable right to his father's share in the joint family property which he could either assert in himself or transmit to his heirs for enforcement in a British Court of justice. Even otherwise, a suit to enforce the right was barred under S. 12 of the Lim. Act, (XIV of 1859) by the lapse of 12 years. CENTRAL PROVINCES COURTS ACT (II of 1894).

———S. 15—"Value of suit"—Appeal—Forum—Valuation of plaint.

Jurisdiction in the matter of appeals in the Central Provinces is governed by S. 15. The words "Value of the suit" as used in that section invariably mean value of the relief originally claimed by the plff. in the plaint or when increased or reduced by voluntary amendment, the value of such relief as is made the subject-matter of the Court's decision. 20 Bom. 675; 11 N.L.R. 13, dist. Where a plff. voluntarily reduces an original claim, it is the reduced claim which represents the value of the suit for the purposes of appeal. On the application of the Managing members of a joint Hindu family the Court of Wards can assume the superintendence of the joint family property under S. 6 of Act XVII of 1865. The interest of a member of an undivided mitakshara family is not individual property of which the Court of Wards could assume charge under the Act. It is not necessary under S. 18 of Act XVII of 1865 that the actual mortgage to be executed by the Court of Wards should be submitted to the Chief Commissioner for sanction or that his previous sanction should be obtained to its precise terms. It is enough if sanction is obtained for effecting a mortgage. (Sir John Edge.) GULAB SINGH v. RAJA SETH GOKUL DAS.

C.P. LAND REVENUE ACT (XVII of 1881), S. 69

———S. 69—Suit under—Limitation.

Provisions of S. 6 of the Limitation Act, 1908 are not applicable to a suit brought under the first part of sub-S. 40 of S. 69 of the Central Provinces and Revenue Act, 1881. (Batten, A.J.C.) BALKRISHNA v. BALA. 4 N.L.J. 136.

———S. 136-H (1)—Amended by Bengal Act IV of 1916.

Under this section an appeal from Dy. Commissioner's order dismissing an application for partition lies to the Dt. Judge. If the appeal is wrongly preferred to the Commissioner, no second appeal lies. (Woodroffe and Cornduff, JJ.) RAGHUNATH SINGH v. ABHUDIT SINGH. 38 Cal. 391=9 I.C. 202=13 C.L.J. 412.

———(II of 1917).

———Not retrospective—Settlement Record—Entry—Effect of.

A statute like the Central Prov. Land Rev. Act (II of 1917) which prejudicially affects vested rights in existence has no retrospective operation. The bare entry in a Settlement Record of a person as Malik Makbuza Muafidar is not sufficient to justify a Civil Court in holding that his heir is entitled to enjoy a like privilege. (Drake-Brockman, J.C.) NATHURAM v. JAGANNATH. 55 I.C. 426=16 N.L.R. 105.

———Ss. 33 (1) and 168—(1881), Ss. 136 and 22—Partition—Title of applicant admitted—Duty of Court—Rights of the parties—Appeal.

Where the title of an applicant for partition is admitted, the Court is bound to partition the land unless an objection has been made by a co-sharer in possession under S. 136-F and the objection has been upheld by the Court. If no such objection has been made and the Court declines to partition the land, the decision is appealable to the High Court since such a decision virtually decides "the right of the parties" within S. 106-H inasmuch as it decides whether the land should be held jointly or separately. (Jwala Prasad and Adami, JJ.) ANANDA CHANDRA PATI v. SADANAND PATI. 55 I.C. 438=5 Pat. L.J. 140.

———S. 46 (5)—Trees in occupancy holding—Mortgage.

Mortgage of trees amounts to a transfer of the rights in the occupancy tenure in a portion of the tenancy holding and the document cannot be registered in contravention of S. 46 (5) of the C. P. Tenancy Act of 1898. The mortgage is not operative as regards the other property except the trees covered by it. An instrument so registered cannot operate in respect of any part of the property ostensibly transferred by it. 13 N.L.R. 165, Fol. (Prideaux, A.J.C.) ———S. 68 (1)—(1881), S. 69—How land becomes Sir and when.

Land, not falling under section 69 (1) of the Act, cannot become Sir land until it is finally recorded as such by the Settlement Officer and the date of its so becoming Sir is the date of the officer's order. (Batten, A.J.C.) SADHU v. KALIYA. 20 I.C. 554=9 N.L.R. 99.

C. P. LAND REV. ACT (XVII of 1881), S. 80.

———S. 68 (5)—(1881), S. 69 (4) (1)—Suits under—Limitation Act—Applicability.

The Limitation Act does not apply to suits under S. 69 (4) (1) of the C.P. Land Revenue Act as the Act itself provides for limitation for such suits. (Batten, A.J.C.) BALKRISHNA LAXMAN v. BALA. 46 I.C. 879.

———Ss. 68 (5) and (6) and 80—(1881), Ss. 69 (1) and 83—Record of rights—Wrong entry—Remedy of aggrieved person.

Ss. 69 (4) and 83 of C.P. Land Rev. Act, (1881) exhaust the remedy open to a person for alleged wrong entry in the Record of Rights regarding sir land. Such an entry regarding sir land cannot be questioned otherwise than in a suit under S. 83, (1881) and is, subject to any such suit, final and conclusive. (Hallifax, A.J.C.) Under S. 76 of the C.P. Land Revenue Act all that the Board of Revenue has to do is to sanction the levy of a cess and not the rate at which such cess is leviable. Hence in a case where the Settlement Officer had determined the cesses and the rate at which they were leviable in accordance with the village custom, and the levy of cess had been sanctioned by the Board of Revenue, the cess was legally payable. under S. 83 of the Act to have the entry amended so that the defts. may be described as mortgagees in possession and not as permanent tenants. Held, that in deciding the question between the parties or in making the disputed entry in the Record of Rights the settlement officer acted either under S. 68 or S. 72 of the Act and his decision or the entry, was open to review by the Civil Court under S. 83. A suit under S. 83 is governed not by Art. 14 but by Art. 120 of the Lim. Act. It is in the nature of a declaratory suit as to how the Record of Rights should be amended, but the Court can execute its decree only by the decree being taken to the Deputy Commissioner who can give effect to it under S. 120 of the Act. As the statutory power given under S. 83 is not to set aside but to cancel or amend an entry made in the Record of Rights a suit for the cancellation or amendment of certain entries in the Record of Rights is not one for setting aside an act of an Officer of Government within Art. 14 but such a suit is governed by Art. 120, Limitation Act. ——S. 108—(1881), S. 65-A.—Powers of Deputy Commissioner.

S. 132 was intended to enable the Deputy Commissioner merely to determine the claim to protection under S. 65-A, and to enforce the provisions of that section. S. 65-A of the Act was not enacted for the benefit of the zamindar but to retain certain selected families in the gaontiaships of their villages and to protect them against the transfer and sub-divisions. The rights of the eldest male to resign or renounce his rights as gaontia with a view to giving up all claims to inherit the estate which has by statutory devolution descended upon him must be exercised at the time when the succession opens, viz., on the death of the last protected gaontia, and it is not open to him subsequently to transfer the estate by sale or gift in favour of a younger brother.—Quære.—Whether if he did so, he would be estopped from contesting the transfer. Per Atkinson, J. (Imam J., contra). If two or more villages form the protected tenure of a gaontia, even though they may have been declared protected by separate certificates at different times, the eldest male heir must exercise his choice of resignation or adoption of all or none of such villages. There can be no splitting up of the estate or tenure into different parts having distinct entities. Where the election is made by the person upon whom the tenure devolves by inheritance, it is irrevokable in its operation, and automatically one heir is succeeded by another of equal degree.—In the absence of evidence to show that the eldest son ——Ss. 107 and 109—(1881), S. 65-A.—Gaontia can surrender tenure.

In a case of surrender of tenure by a "protected" Gaontia to a Zemindar plff. it was held that S. 65-A of the above Act did not prohibit such a surrender, and that there could be no adverse possession of defts. against the plffs. who could himself claim no present possession till the relinquishment of the tenure. Permanent rights in the village which would bind the Zemindar after cessation of the Gaontia tenure cannot be conferred by the Gaontia. (Chamier C.J. and Sharfuddin, J.) ——Ss. 108 (2) and 80—(1881), Ss. 65-A and 83—Suit for correction of entry in Khewat as to status of plff.—If maintainable.

A suit for a declaration that an entry in a Khewat of the Dewar Settlement is incorrect and that the plffs. hold the property in dispute as a maintenance grant and are not liable to pay any rent therefor to the zemindar, falls within S. 83 of the Act and is maintainable. S. 65-A of the Act does not apply where a suit is instituted, not to have a fair and equitable ticca jamma assessed in respect of a land, but to determine the true status of the plaintiffs. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) BAKTAWAR SINGH v. BHUBANO SIGH. 20 I.C. 322= 17 C.L.J. 468.

——S. 108 (2)—(1881), S. 65-A (4) (d).

Where the amount of Thekajama has to be fixed by Deputy Commissioner under S. 65 (A) (d), no arrears of jama become due within Art. 110, Lim. Act until the amount is finally ascertained by concluding the dispute regarding the jama; when the landlord has to proceed to have the proper rate of rent ascertained time runs from the date on which the rent is finally determined and not from the close of the year for which the rent is payable. In applying to Hindus S. 65-A (4) (b), proviso (1) of the Act, the terms 'joint' and 'separate' must be taken in the sense in which they are used in Hindu Law and therefore a separation must be proved, not by a mere separation in mess nor by the receipt of a maintenance grant, but by separation in worship and estate as well. The proprietors of village are not liable for the remuneration of Mukadham Gomastha over and above 5 per cent. on the land revenue. In calculating Lambardari haq the cesses must be exoluded, the 5 per cent. being limited to the land revenue. ——S. 169 (1) (a)—Suit under—Limitation.

The order of a Revenue Officer declining to make a partition or to proceed therewith until the question of partition has been decided does not amount to an order to any of the parties to file a civil suit and does not confer on a Civil Court jurisdiction which it did not previously possess. A Civil Court can enquire into the question as to whether the Khudkhast or sir lands are or are not the sole property of a person or whether they are joint property though it cannot decide whether there should be a partition or not; the question of title may have to be decided for other purposes than for the purposes of partition. A suit for ascertaining what the titles of the parties respectively are over the lands in the Mahal, is not barred by time merely because the Revenue Officer declined more than six years before the institution of the suit, to proceed with a partition until the question of title had been decided in a Civil Court. Where a mahal has been divided the unit for the appointment of the lambardar is the patti and not the mahal. S. 188 (2) (A) of the Land Revenue Act embodies the case law on the subject as it existed prior to the enactment of that Act. In other words, that clause simply enacts a rule in regard to burden of proof. It does not clothe the lambardar with higher rights than those already possessed by him. Where a person holds an abadi plot as licensee under another, the license is revocable at will by the grantor unless the licensee is protected by S. 60 of the Easements Act or S. 203 of the Land Revenue Act or the wajib-ul-arz of the village. ——S. 212—Ryotwari land in possession of one heir—Right of others to share therein—Rights of holder.

S. 212 of the Land Revenue Code makes it clear that the right of a Raiyat to hold Ryatwari land devolves as if it were land. Where Ryotwari fields are in the possession of one heir, and they are entered in his name in the Rev. papers, the right of other heirs to a share therein is not lost by such entry. CENTRAL PROVINCES LAWS ACT (X OF 1875).

——S. 5—Hindu Law—Apostacy, effect of—Conversion to Muhammadanism—Succession—Gonds.

Apostates from the Hindu religion cease to be Hindus and where such apostacy takes the form of conversion to a religion which in itself regulates the devolution of property, e.g., Muhammadanism, then except on proof of well established custom to the contrary and that only in regard to inheritance and succession, the convert becomes subject to the law of his adopted religion. The term 'Hindu' in S. 5 refers to the persons who profess some form of Hindu religion, whatever be the branch, school sect, or off shoot to which they belong, but it does not extend to persons who have never possessed any form of the Hindu religion or to those who have been converted from it to some entirely different religion. The word would apply to dissenters and non-conformists but not to appostates. Thus a Jain is a Hindu but a Brahmin converted to Buddhism or Islam is not. Gonds in the Central Provinces are not Hindus and they are not governed by the Hindu Law except when it is adopted by any family, sect or branch. (Stanyon, A. J. C.) ——S. 66 (3)—Notice requiring alteration—Reasonable time to be granted.

A notice given by a Municipal Committee requiring a person to alter or demolish a building is bad unless a reasonable time is given; what is "reasonable time" is determined according to circumstances of the case and with particular reference to the means and ability of the person by whom the duty is to be discharged. (Drake-Brockman, J. C.) ABDUL SATTAR v. SECRETARY MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE. 29 I.C. 660= 16 Cr. L.J. 532=11 N.L.R. 87.

———(XVI OF 1903).

———Ss. 2 (f) and 45—Tax—Rent for Municipal building is not a tax and cannot be recovered by summary procedure.

The essential quality of a tax and of those similar imposts mentioned in S. 2 (f) of the C. P. Municipal Act seems to be that the amounts or rates of payment are fixed by the levying authority without reference to the payer; in regard to some of them there is option of making no payment if no benefit is taken but in none of them has the payer any option as to the amount to be paid. That essential quality is absent in a case where the amount to be paid was fixed by agreement between the two parties. A tax recoverable under S. 46 of the Act is a tax imposed under S. 35, that is to say, a tax impsoed with the previous sanction of the Local government or in special cases with that of the Governor-General in Council as well, "in the manner required by S. 39." That section requires a proposition of the tax at a special meeting, publication of details of its incidence, consideration at another special meeting of any objections made, sanction of the Local Government after consideration of those objections and notification in the official Gazette of the date of the imposition of the tax. Whether therefore, the payment to be exacted from the applicant was a "market due" or not, and it certainly was a "due" or debt for using a market or exposing goods for sale in a place belonging to the Municipal Committee, it was certainly not a "market due" or tax of the kind mentioned in S. 35 of the Municipal Act, as it was never imposed in the manner prescribed by that section. It cannot therefore be recovered by the summary procedure provided by S. 44. (Hallifax, A.J.C.) YESHWANT RAO PANDE v. SECRETARY, MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE. 19 N.L.R. 122=24 Cr. L.J. 516= 73 I.C. 52=1923 Nag. 264.

———Ss. 66 and 139—Encroachment—Conviction—Imposition of daily fine is illegal.

The accused was convicted under S. 139 read with S. 66 (1) of the C. P. Municipal Act and sentenced to pay a fine of Rs. 5 in addition to Re. 1 per day from 14th August 1922, onwards, in case he did not remove the encroachment or obtain the sanction of the Municipal Committee to its continuance. Held that the order imposing a daily fine in the future could not stand. No person can be sentenced to punishment for a thing which he has not done but may possibly do in the future or even is likely to do in the future. (Hallifax, A.J.C.) BABU RAO v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, NAGPUR. 72 I.C. 78=24 Cr. L.J. 318.

———Ss. 66 (1) 122—'Building'—Essentials for conviction implies structure with roof.

A "building" within S. 66 (1) of the C. P. Mun. Act, implies a structure with a roof. Moir v. Williams, (1892) 1 Q. B. 264, Ref. Where the petitioner is convicted for encroaching upon a street in a Municipal town by putting up a new structure in the place of an old one. Held, in the absence of proof that the new structure occupied more space than the old one, the conviction was bad. A prosecution under the Act can only take place after a resolution passed at a meeting properly convened and conducted. (Drake-Brockman, J. C.) THAKURLAL v. SECRETARY MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, KHANDWA. 64 I.C. 274=22 Cr. L.J. 753.

———S. 66 (1) (3)—Delay in passing orders—Notice under S. 66 (1)—Presumption—Sanction.

Under S. 66 of the C. P. Municipal Act, delay in passing orders on a valid notice given under S. 66 (1) of the Act may, if followed by a failure to reply to a written reminder, lead to a conclusion that the proposed building has been absolutely sanctioned. (Drake-Brockman, J.C.) MAHOMED YACUB v. THE SECRETARY, MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, NAGPUR. 48 I.C. 889=20 Cr. L.J. 89.

———Ss. 67 (1), (2), 122 and 139—Old encroachment—Punishment.

S. 122 cannot reasonably be construed as making punishable an existing encroachment not made by the accused person but by his predecessor-in-title. In the case of an encroachment not made by the accused S. 67 (2) of the Act provides full means of redress which can be enforced by the penal provisions of S. 139. The word 'such' in sub-S. (2) of S. 67 of the Act refers back to the words "structure encroaching on any street" in sub-S. (1) and not only to new encroachments as is clear from the provision in which encroachments of old standing are referred to. (Batten, A.J.C.) ——S. 122—Encroachment by predecessor—Successor is not liable.

The word "encroaches" in S. 122 of the C.P. Municipal Act prima facie means commits an act of encroachment' and one no can be held liable for an act or admission unless such act or admission is declared to be an offence. The section cannot be interpreted as making punishable an omission to remove an existing encroachment not made by the accused person. The word "obstructs" in S. 122 would apply to the person who built or caused to be built the encroachment and not to the accused who originally had nothing to do with the erection of the building. (Prideaux, A.J.C.) CHUNI LAL v. THE MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, ARVI. 18 N.L.R. 92=65 I.C. 559= 23 Cr. L.J. 127=1922 Nag. 167.

——S. 122—Conviction under—Absence of proof that structure occupies more space—Notice for prosecution—Authority for sanction.

In the absence of proof that a new structure put up occupied more space than the original one a conviction under S. 122, C.P. Municipal Act cannot be supported. Meaning of "Building" explained. A prosecution under the Act can take place only after a resolution passed at a meeting properly convened and conducted. (Drake Brockman, J.C.) ———S. 42—Mortgage decree—Form altered at instance of mortgagor—Estoppel.

The judgment-debtor (mortgagor) got it altered into "all actual and reputed rights in the sir land" it being agreed between the parties that the question whether such rights included the cultivating right should be left over. Afterwards the mortgagor contended that the decree did not comply with S. 42 of the Act held that it was not open to him to assert that by reason of the alteration the rights of the mortgagee under the original decree were taken away, held also that the Lower Court should have decided whether the rights sold included the cultivating rights also. ———Ss. 21 and 32—Permanent lease by Thekadar—Improvement by tenant—Compensation—Landlord if bound by equities affecting Thekadar.

A Munsif authorised under the C. P. Tenancy Act to assess compensation for improvements in a holding with the aid of assessors commits an irregularity, if he does not associate them in doing so, which may however be waived by the parties. An unregistered lease "for ever" by a Thekadar cannot confer any permanent title though the lessee may have been in possession under it for a long time, nor the assent of the Zamindar in guarded terms has such an effect. If a tenant under a bona fide belief that his tenancy is permanent makes permanent improvement with the knowledge of the landlord, he is entitled to compensation on ejectment. A landlord who gets possession of his holding by the surrender of the person who held it and who gave a permanent lease for valuable consideration may be bound by the equities binding on the surrenderor. (D. Chatterjea, J.) SARDAKAR PODA v. BISSESWAR GOANTIA. 26 I.C. 476.

———S. 32—Improvements compensation for—When legally due—Position of sub-tenant.

Under S. 32 (1) a tenant can claim compensation for improvements only if the improvements were made in accordance with the Act, if the tenant was an absolute occupancy or ordinary tenant. If the tenant is a sub-tenant, he can claim compensation, if the improvements have been made with the landlord's consent. (Batten, J.C.) BALARAM v. BHAGIRATHIBAI.

———S. 35—Surrender by Hindu widow is Binding on reversioners.

A surrender by a Hindu widow if not impeachable for fraud or on other like ground, is binding on the widow's husband's reversioners. (Prideaux, A.J.C.) MUKUND v. DIWAKAR.

———S. 39—Absolute occupancy holding—Gift of, by widow with consent of landlord—Surrender and re-grant.

There is no difficulty in regarding the transfer by way of gift by a widow of her absolute occupancy holding with the consent of the landlord, even though it was a subsequent consent, as a surrender to him by the widow and a fresh grant by him to the transferee. In respect of surrenders the absolute occupancy right is a tenancy and not a proprietary right. The surrender would be binding on the reversioner, for the limitations of the widow's interest in the tenancy are subject to the provisions of the Tenancy Act as to surrender and alienation. C. P. TENANCY ACT (XI of 1898), S. 41.

——S. 41—X of 1883, S. 38 (2)—"Interest"—Meaning of—Whether includes re-payment in cash and in grain.

The meaning of " Interest " in S. 38 (2) is a compensation for the use of money or grain and therefore includes a re-payment in cash or in grain. (Mittra, Offg. A.J.C.) RAGHUNATH v. GANPAT. 23 I.C. 213=10 N.L.R. 21.

——S. 41 (2)—Mortgage in the form of lease is inoperative against landlord.

A document though given as a lease of an absolute occupancy holding is a mortgage where the transfer is meant to secure a debt contracted. Such a document violates the provisions of S. 41 (2) and hence is inoperative against the landlord. (Dhobley, A.J.C.) RAM PRASHAD v. CHANDULAL. 4 N.L.J. 262= 65 I.C. 241=1922 Nag. 156.

——S. 41 (2)—Notice under—Contents and particulars of.

A notice under S. 41 (2) of the C. P. Tenancy Act need not be worded with the accuracy of a plea. Where the information given in the notice is amply sufficient to inform the landlord of the tenant's intention to mortgage the whole of his absolute occupancy holding, it is sufficient compliance with the law. S. 41 (2) does not say that the particulars specified in that sub-section should be given in the notice but it merely states the circumstances under which the tenant must give notice, and presupposes a knowledge on the part of both landlord and tenant as to the particulars of the tenant's holding. (Batten, A.J.C.) RAGHOJI RAO v. RAJESWAR. 65 I.C. 816= 4 N.L.J. 131.

——S. 41 (2)—Mortgage—Includes—Zur-ipeshgi lease—Interest.

Under S. 38 (2) of the C. P. Tenancy Act of 1883 or S. 41 (2) of the Act of 1898 the sum secured by any previous mortgage includes interest on it for five years or for the period since its execution, whichever is longer. The term " mortgage " in S. 38 (2) includes a zur-i-peshgi lease. (Hallifax, A.J.C.) SHIOBAKSH SINGH v. JAGANNTH. 64 I.C. 99.

——S. 41 (2)—"Premium" does not include periodical payment.

——S. 43—Charge—Suit to enforce, cannot be brought by other than the sole landlord or the representative of his co-sharers.

No person can institute a suit to enforce a charge created by S. 43 of the Act unless he is the sole landlord or the representative of his co-sharers for collection of rent. (Drake Brockman, J.C.) DEOKARAN v. NATHU. 62 I.C. 382=4 N.L.J. 138.

C. P. TENANCY ACT (XI of 1898), S. 45.

——S. 45—Sir land—Section does not bar registration of will in respect of.

The section does not apply to a case of devolution by death, and therefore S. 45 (3) does not bar the registration of a Will, by which sir land is bequeathed. The section does not take the proprietor's right to alienate the cultivating rights in his sir land. It merely lays down a condition precedent to the exercise of that right intervivos. The restriction on the power of alienation is imposed by the C.P. Tenancy Act and not by Hindu Law. (Hallifax and Prideaux, A.J.C') MURLIDA. v. HARIDAS. 62 I.C. 256.

——Ss. 45 (3) and 69 (c)—Proprietor becoming tenant—Effect—Position of tenant.

When the proprietor becomes the occupancy tenant of the sir land under S. 45 (1) of the Act the relations between him and the ordinary tenant of sir are not changed by virtue of cl. (5) of the section. The ordinary tenant does not thereby become a sub-tenant and is liable to be ejected by the ex-proprietary occupancy tenant only under the provisions of S. 69 (c) of the Act. ——S. 46—Personal law of inheritance—Is not affected by section.

If a female is entitled, according to her personal law, to succeed to an occupancy holding. S. 46 of the C. P. Tenancy Act will not disqualify her from inheriting such property. The expression 'in the male line of descent' does not necessarily mean that the person at the lower end of the line must be a male. The expression 'In the male line' should be distinguished from the expression 'male lineal' and the former does not mean 'a male in the line of males' which is the meaning ascribed to the latter. ——Ss. 46 and 47—Co-proprietors dividing sir land—Position of.

When two co-proprietors of a village divide up the sir land between them to hold portions of it separately, they make an imperfect partition of that village ; each has a share a separate patti composing the sir land he holds in severalty, and the whole of the rest of the village forms what is called a Shamilat patti. Further, if a tenant takes fresh land from the malguzar in addition to what he already holds, and the rent of the fresh lands is not kept separate, but one single sum is payable in respect of the old and the new land, then he undoubtedly has a new holding, because the new parcel is held under a different lease, and a different set of conditions from those of the old smaller parcel. The condition requiring the collateral who claims succession to have shared in the cultivation is a disqualification which disentitles the nearest collateral if he has not fulfilled the condition. But it does not confer any right of succession to the occupancy tenure on a more remote collateral even though he may have shared in the cultivation. 15 C.P.L.R. 89=17 A. 33, Ref. (Batten, A.J.C.) The sir right is made up of two parts one proprietary, and the other the occupancy and it can accrue synthetically by union of these two parts in the same person. But it must be in the same person. that the parties intend to make a fresh lease for the ensuing year; but in case a notice is given by the occupancy tenant to his sub-tenant that he does not intend to renew his lease, it comes to an end with the end of the agricultural year with the effect that after the date of the notice the sub-tenant becomes a trespasser and it is competent to the occupancy tenant to maintain an ejectment suit. 48 I.C. 948.

——S. 60—Sub-tenancy — Presumption regarding termination of lease.

When there is nothing to show the nature of tenancy, it may fairly be taken to be one from year to year. A tenancy from year to year does not ipso facto terminate at the end of every year but it must be presumed to be the intention of the property that it cannot come to an end without a reasonable notice given by one to the other. So also if there is no agreement regarding the termination of a sub-tenancy of an absolute occupancy field by the end of every year, the intention of a reasonable notice before putting an end to the same should be presumed. ——Ss. 62 (2), 63 (1) and 69 (c)—Applicability—Tenant of holding entirely of sir land—Suit for ejectment cognizable by Revenue Officer.

Section 62 (2) of the C.P. Tenancy Act concerns itself only with the cultivation of land in partnership with the proprietor and its effect is to enable the Local Government to make a person a tenant, who would not otherwise be one. A tenant whose holding consists entirely of sir land is an ordinary tenant and a suit for ejectment under S. 69 (c) is one between land-lord and tenant and so cognizable by a Revenue Officer. If the plaintiff had once stated that the defendant was a tenant of sir land, he cannot afterwards set up the plea that he is a trespasser so as to oust the jurisdiction of the Revenue Officer. Until actually ejected, the person to whom sir land is let continues to be in law a tenant though the period contracted for had expired. (Drake-Brockman, J.C.) NARAYAN v. BISRAM. 21 I.C. 607=9 N.L.R. 188.

——Ss. 64 (4) and 69—Correction of Record of Rights.

——S. 70—Succession — Hindu widow can accelerate, by surrender.

In all matters of tenancy the personal law applies except in so far as it is limited or altered by the tenancy law and there is nothing in the C.P. Tenancy Act to limit a Hindu widow's power to accelerate the succession to her late husband's estate by retiring from the ownership of it by surrender. On such surrender the estate passes to the next heir not by transfer but under the law of inheritance. If the next heir is a limited owner, e.g., a daughter, the heirs of the last male owner would succeed after the daughter's death and on default of such heirs, the malguzar can resume possession of the tenancy. In a contract creating a tenancy the parties may agree that it shall be subject to any conditions that are not forbidden by the law. (Hallifax, A J.C.) SUNDAR LAL v. BISAMBHAR. 65 I.C. 180=1922 Nag. 24.

——Ss. 70 and 71—Incomplete sale—Ejectment—Suit, maintainability of.

Where a transaction falls short of a complete sale, S. 70 of the Act does not apply and the plff. cannot apply to the Revenue Officer under S. 71 of the Act. He can come to a Civil Court and eject the deft. who had acquired no title to the holding. 13 I.C. 909, dist. (Mittra, A.J.C.) BATANAND v. MADHO RAO. 42 I.C. 288.

——S. 70 (5)—Deed of surrender in favour of lambardar—Registration prohibited—Trespass.

Surrender of ordinary tenure in favour of one co-sharer landlord in his personal capacity is a sale the registration of which is forbidden by Section 70 (5). As the deft. was in possession with consent of other landlords only and was a trespasser to the extent of plff.'s share, the latter was entitled to a decree for joint possession to the extent of that share. ——S. 85—Holding—Separation into two plots—Forfeiture—Decree as to the plot—Effect on mortgagee of tenant.

If the landlord agrees to distribute the rent on each parcel separately there is a splitting of the original holding. Under S. 85 the tenant may pay up the arrear on one holding and save it from forfeiture without paying the arrear on the other. If a tenant consents to a decree as against the holding from which no arrear is due, it is binding on him but not on the mortgagee just as in the case of a surrender by the tenant. (Mittra, A.J C.) C. P. TENANCY ACT (XI of 1898), S. 93.

——S. 93—Successor of a tenant is not a tenant.

As a successor of a tenant does not necessarily become a tenant, and the status of tenant can only arise by its acceptance by both the parties, S 93 does not apply where there is no such acceptance and therefore Civil Court can entertain a suit for wrongful dispossession. (Hallifax, A.J.C.) NILKANTH v. KASUBAI. 63 I.C. 46=4 N.L.J. 55.

——Ss. 93 and 94 — Costs not awarded by Rev. Officer—Suit does not lie in Civil Court.

A Revenue Officer holding an enquiry under S. 93 of the C.P Ten. Act has the powers of Civil Court in awarding costs. If he has not made an order as to costs he must be deemed to have disallowed them and fresh suit does not lie in the Civil Court for the same. (Batten, J.C.) MOTIRAM v. HARI. 65 I C. 67= 18 N.L.R. 65=1922 Nag. 168.

——S. 95—Applicability—Disputes between neighbouring tenants—Act does not apply.

The object of the C.P. Ten. Act is to provide for the relations between landlords and tenants. The Act does not contain any provision for settling disputes between neighbouring tenants. Their remedy is under the ordinary law in a Civil Court. (Batten, J.C.) MOTIRAM v. HARI. 18 N.L.R. 65=65 I C. 67= 1922 Nag. 169.

——S. 95—Jurisdiction—Dispute between Tenant and former landlord Civil and Revenue Court.

The division of Khud Kasht or sir among co-sharers of a village to be held in severalty is undoubtedly a partial private partition of the village lands and each co-sharers separately held parcel of land is a separate patti of the village of which he is the sole landlord, and if he leases that land to a tenant, he is still the sole landlord. But there is nothing to prevent the co-sharers having a re-distribution of the lands held in separate ownership at any time, and either Khudkhast or tenancy land can always be transferred to another patti or to what may be called the shamilat patti. Of tenancy land so returned to the body of co-sharers they are the landlords and are ordinarily represented by the lambardar and the co-sharer who held the land previously in separate ownership is no longer the landlord. His suit between him and the tenant in respect of that, is therefore, not a suit between landlord and tenant and therefore the Judge trying such a suit need not be also a revenue officer. The term "agriculture" is not confined to the cultivation by annual tilling, ploughing and sowing of that which yields an annual crop, cultivation of betel (pan leaf) is an agricultural purpose. Everything treated as "agricultural" by settlement authorities must be so treated by Civil Courts. (Stanyon, A.J.C.) LOOLA v. PYARE. 33 I.C. 497 = 12 N.L.R. 57.

——S. 6 (2)—(1898), S. 41 (2)—Ejusdem generis—Previous sums secured by mortgage.

The expression "and the previous sums, if any, secured by mortgage of the holding" includes sums due to one taking the contemplated mortgage and the other creditors. Landlord's special right to pre-empt is not affected by the concealment of a prior mortgage by a tenant to different persons. Rule of Ejusdem generis does not apply to principal interest and the previous sums secured by the mortgage. These must be taken into account. (Drake-Brockman, J.C. and Stanyon, A.J.C.) The word "give" in S. 41 (2) means something more than posting. ——S. 6 (2)—(1898), S. 41—Mortgage of occupancy holding—Notice—Where necessary—Interest.

The test for determining whether notice to the landlord is necessary on the mortgage of an absolute occupancy holding is the rent of the entire holding if the entire holding is to be transferred or so much as corresponds with the portion intended to be transferred if only a part is to be transferred. In applying the test prescribed by S. 38 (2), (1883) the whole interest payable for the succeeding 5 years should be taken into consideration even though repayment in full is contemplated within 5 years. Where a second mortgagee forecloses the mortgage of an absolute occupancy holding and remains in possession and afterwards the malguzar purchases the holding from him under the provisions of S. 38 of the C. P. Tenancy Act, (1883), the mortgage debt due to the first mortgagee which was a charge on the land in possession of foreclosing second mortgagee is converted into a charge on the purchase money held by him in exoneration of the land within the meaning of S. 41 (6). The first mortgagee therefore, does not obtain a new cause of action. (Drake-Brockman, J. C.) VISWANATH v. SHANKERLAL. 34 I.C. 704=12 N.L.R. 90.

——S. 9—(1898), S. 43—Priority—Charge for rent—Money claim—Incumbrances otherwise binding on landlord.

S. 43 gives the landlord a real remedy in the form of a charge enforceable by a suit for sale as distinguished from personal remedy enforceable by a money suit for arrears of rent. The section gives priority to the first over the second remedy. A landlord wishing to enjoy the priority given to his charge must enforce it according to law. A landlord who himself purchases the tenant's holding in execution of a mere money decree for rent cannot claim priority over an existing incumbrance on the

During the term of the lease defts. granted to plff. another lease for 11 years commencing on the expiry of the term of the first lease. In a suit for possession by plff. after the expiry of the period of the first lease, the defts. set up, that under the Tenancy Act they had become occupancy rights of the sir land on the loss of their proprietary rights in the village and hence the lease which was subsequently to take effect could not be enforced being void. Held that the plea of the defendants was valid and that the plaintiff's suit must fail. ——S. 47—Exchange not affected.

About 1903 the defendant started to cultivate an absolute occupancy holding belonging to another and allowed him to cultivate an occupancy holding of his own in exchange, each finding the land of the other more conveniently situated than his own. The record remained unchanged and each paid rent for the land he cultivated but in the name of the other till in 1917-18 the Settlement Officer recorded each of them as the occupancy tenant of the land he was actually cultivating. Held if the arrangement of 1903 was an out and out exchange he lost his right to set it aside many years before he filed his suit. If it was only an arrangement by each tenant for the cultivation of land by the other, which it undoubtedly was, he has no right whatever to interfere with it. (Hallifax, A.J.C.) specified in the award, the rest of the mortgaged villages being released from liability. Default in payment having occurred, a final decree was made on 16-6-1916. The mortgagees claimed possession of the sir lands. Held that the conciliation award of 1905 was, for the purposes of the case, a fresh origin of rights between the parties; that S. 45 (6) consequently did not apply, and that under S. 45 (1) the mortgagors had occupancy rights in the sir lands of the seven villages. Defts. sold plff. their share in a village reserving to themselves the occupancy right in the sir land. On the same day they executed another deed by which they surrendered their occupancy right in the sir land accrued to them by virtue of the sale. Held, that the mere fact of the possession having been delivered to plff. did not suffice to separate the transaction of surrender from that of sale and the surrender must be held to be void under S. 45 (1) of the C.P. Ten. Act (1898). Plff. was not entitled to a refund of the consideration for the surrender as both the parties knew that they were contravening the provisions of the C. P. Ten. Act and the maxim in pari delicto potior est condito etc. applied. The test as to whether a surrender in such a case is an invasion of S. 45 (1) of the C.P. Ten. ——S. 89 (1)—(1898), S. 35 (4)—Death—Abandonment by tenant—Landlord if bound to wait for 2 years.

If an occupancy or ordinary tenant abandons his land or dies, the landlord need not wait for two years before introducing some one else as his tenant. In the case of the death of the tenant, if the real heir is not forthcoming to take up the tenancy, the malguzar may put in anybody he likes as his tenant. The right of such a tenant is liable to be defeated, if the real heir comes forward and cultivates or pays rent or does both within two years. But after the two years the landlord can successfully plead implied surrender. Implied surrender may be pleaded by the landlord or by anybody accepted as a tenant by the landlord but not by a trespasser. (Batten, A.J.C.) FAKRU v. SRAWAN. 43 I.C. 219.

The doctrine of implied surrender in S. 35 (4) of the Act of 1898 is intended to apply to normal circumstances where the landlord of the person put in by him, holds adversely to the tenant. Where, however, a female holder alienates an occupancy tenancy and the alienation is not for legal necessity, the alienee does not begin to hold adversely to the ultimate reversioner until the death of female holder, and the doctrine of impiled surrender has no application to such a case. A lessee of the ordinary tenant's right in sir lands has no right to will away the tenant right; and S. 94 is not applicable where the ouster, if any of the plff. by the lessee from the holding is not at the instance of the landlord. There is no surrender under S. 35 inasmuch as the payment of rent in advance must be taken to have been on behalf of the true tenant. Mere non-cultivation of a holding by or on behalf of a tenant is not sufficient to constitute an implied surrender. (Mittra, A.J.C.) SHAM RAO v. SATYA BHAMA BAI. 47 I.C. 28.

C. P. TENANCY ACT (I of 1920), S. 89.

The expression "leaves his holding uncultivated" in the section means "omits to cultivate the holding himself or to arrange for its cultivation"; the proviso applies to a case where a minor's guardian makes a bad bargain in surrendering on his behalf. (Drake-Brockman, J. C.) GANPAT v. TRIMBAK. 19 I.C. 759= 9 N.L.R. 54.

———S. 89 (1)—(1898), S. 35—Surrender of portion of holding with consent of landlord.

According to the rule referred to in 14 C. P. L.R. 33 no tenant can give up a portion of the holding without the landlord's consent but if a landlord has accepted the surrender of a defined portion of a holding and allowed the tenant to continue as tenant of the remainder on a defined rent, the tenant cannot resile from the transaction. (Batten, O.J.C.) SUNDER v. SITARAM. 10 I.C. 692=7 N.L.R. 8.

———S. 92 (2)—Applicability—Power of Court.

Where a landlord ejects the plaintiff who is a tenant and the latter sues the landlord as a trespasser, held, the form of the pleadings does not alter the real nature of the case and it is open to the Court to take notice of the true position of the parties and determine whether the second proviso to S. 92 applies which is set up by the defendant for the purpose of taking the advantage of the bar created by it. (Kotwal, A.J.C.) KHAZAMIRZA v. VITHOBA. 38 I.C. 966.

———S. 97—Trees—If can be attached.

———Ss. 100 and 105—Village service tenant—Suit for possession does not lie in Civil Court.

A suit for possession of his holding by a village service tenant asserting that he had been ejected by the landlord on 5-1-1920 is not maintainable in the Civil Court by reason of Ss. 100 and 105 of the C.P. Tenancy Act. (Hallifax, A.J.C.) BALARAM v. ATMARAM. 71 I.C. 48=1923 Nag. 51.

The special period of limitation prescribed by S. 94 (1) applies only to cases in which the ejectment is by the whole body of proprietors or by the Lambardar representing it and not to cases of ejectment by a fractional co-sharer in the village, acting on his own account. The term "landlord" does not include one of two or more co-sharers in an undivided village acting independently, in respect of a transfer voluntary or involuntary on the part of the tenant. 7 C.W.N. 542; 28 Cal. 127, ref. ———S. 104—(1898), S. 94 (1)—Ejectment—Peaceable dispossession.

"Ejectment" in S. 94 means a dispossession, that is to say, a loss of possession through some Act of the defendant which was a taking of possession with the intention of excluding the plaintiff. Force also includes the moral equivalent of force. (Batten, J.C.) AMBA v. SHEORAM. 27 I.C. 864=11 N.L.R. 8.

The proviso to S. 94 (3) is retrospective and governs all claims for arrears of rent to which its terms are applicable from the moment of its passing, as the right to sue for arrears of rent does not accrue under the Tenancy Act, but under the general law of contract and the fact that the Tenancy Act of 1883 was repealed by the Act of 1898, does not make the present period of limitation inapplicable. A suit for possession of land of which plff. is occupancy tenant, by operation of law, upon the sale of the proprietary rights in sir, is a suit between landlord and tenant and cognizable by a Revenue Officer, though plff. has not obtained possession of the land as tenant and has not been recognized as such by the landlord. ———S. 105—(1898), S. 97—Suit between landlord and tenant—Jurisdiction of Civil Court.

The policy of S. 97 of the Act is that all questions concerning the right of a tenant, as such, of an agricultural holding which arise out of the relationship of tenant and landlord should, except in so far as appeals are concerned, be tried by a Judge who is also a Revenue Officer. [Affirming 27 I.C. 928.]

———Scope and effect.

The statute having no application to lands situate outside the limits of Chota Nagpur, cannot prevent a mortgagee from enforcing his rights in Courts of Ordinary Civil Jurisdiction. Political or Administrative considerations determine the scope of the Act. As this statute gives special privileges, to a particular class, to have their liabilities determined not by a regular Court, but by a manager, it must be strictly construed; when the Act is silent as to its application to all estates in British India owned by holders in Chota Nagpur, it should be limited in its application to estates in Chota Nagpur. The Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act has no application to land lying outside of Chota Nagpur, and consequently, the privilege of a mortgagee in respect of such land to enforce his rights in a Civil Court has not been abrogated. (Per Mookerjee, J.) Under the Act the question of liability for debts and the mode of their satisfaction is determined by the manager. A statute of this description limiting the jurisdiction of the Civil Court must be strictly construed. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) ———Ss. 2, 3 and 21—Section 21 does not restrict S. 3.

S. 21-B of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act cannot restrict the provisions of S. 3; it refers to suits other than proceedings in regard to the debts or liabilities referred to in S. 2-A. them in pecuniary liability is bad. (Chapman and Mullick, JJ.) GOPINATH BHAGAT v. LAKSHMINARAYAN SINGH. 32 I.C. 937.

——Ss. 3, 12 and 22—Estate held by Revenue Authorities—Order of Manager—Civil Court Jurisdiction.

S. 22 of the Act bars a suit against the Manager of an incumbered estate in respect of an order made bona fide. During the time that an estate is held by the Revenue Authorities under the Act, a Civil Court has no jurisdiction to interfere on a suit brought by the creditors. The creditors have their remedy against any order of the Manager before the Deputy Commissioner and the Commissioner. Where the Manager finds that the accumulation of interest would render the estate insolvent, he must at once get the Deputy Commissioner to release the estate. (Holmwood and Walmsley, JJ.) HIRANAND OJHA v. SATISH CHANDRA ROY. 29 I.C. 420.

——Ss. 3, 12—Scope of.

S. 3 of the Act gives a statutory protection to a person whose property is brought within the operation of the Act. S. 12 removes that protection when the proprietor is restored to possession and then all remedies by a creditor could be enforced against him. (Das and Ross, JJ.) JYOTI PRASAD v. RANJIT SINGH. 63 I.C. 743=6 Pat. L.J. 328.

——S. 3—Proprietor and holder of property—Protection—"Debt" and "liability"—Meaning of.

The liability in respect of which protection is accorded under the Act is a liability to which the holder of the property or his heir is subject. If the proprietor is not the holder of the property but is an expropriated proprietor, then he does not come within the bar under S. 3 and other connected sections of the Act. Obiter. The words 'debt' and 'liability' in S. 3 mean pecuniary debt and pecuniary liability and do not cover contractual liability. 20 Cal. 609 and 33 Cal. 1065, dist. CHOTA NAGPUR ENCUMBERED ESTATES ACT (VI of 1876), S. 17.

——Ss. 8 and 19—Mortgage—Property outside Chota Nagpur—Liability of proprietor—Rights of Manager.

A Manager of an Encumbered Estate appointed under the Act and the Revenue authorities in Chota Nagpur has no jurisdiction to reduce the interest on a mortgage debt created by the proprietor of the estate on a property outside Chota Nagpur. The Act itself does not apply to the case. (Fletcher and Richardson, JJ.) JYOTI PRASAD SINGH BAHADUR v. KUMUD NATH CHATTERJEE. 27 I.C. 526.

——Ss. 8 and 22—Interest—Decree by Court—Power to induce—Manager—Jurisdiction.

The Manager of an estate under the Act can cut down interest already decreed by Court under S. 8 of the Act. If the Manager's action was in good faith under S. 8, no suit would lie for a declaration against him; but if what he purported to do was not really authorised by S. 3, a suit would lie for a declaration that what he had done was outside the scope of the Act altogether. (Roe and Coutts, JJ.) THAKUR PRASAD AURORA v. MANAGER, BARABHUM ENCUMBERED ESTATE, PURULIA. 4 Pat. L.J. 321=51 I.C. 69=(1919) Pat. 285.

——Ss. 9 and 17—Powers of Manager—Lease—Delegation of authority to Commissioner—Powers of holder.

So long as the estate is under the Manager under the Act, the holder of the estate is incompetent to mortgage, charge or lease under S. 8 of the Act. The power to lease vests in the Manager and the mere fact that the sanction of the Commissioner was refused, does not in itself give the Dy. Commissioner power to grant a lease without consulting the Manager at all. R. 5 of the rules framed by the Lt.-Governor does not dispense with the functions of the Manager and does not empower the Dy. Commissioner to exercise the powers vested in the Manager by the statute, which, however, are to be construed strictly. The power to grant leases given to the Manager by S. 17 of the Act does not include the power to enter into an executory contract such as an agreement to lease. (Miller, C.J. and Mullick, J.) Plffs. purchased a tenure on 28th May 1899, and thus were bound to have their names registered under the provisions of S. 34 (1) of the Amendment Act of 1903; they could not recover arrears of rent from the fasli years 1317 to 1320 in spite of the fact that S. 11 of theChota Nag. Act. Ten. (1908) contains no provision for the past transfers. The repealed statute of 1903 prohibited the plff. from exercising his right of suit for rent by reason of S. 8 (c), Beng. Payment of rent to the superior landlord and his acceptance of the same and the entry in the Record of Rights do not suggest a presumption of registration under the Chota Nag. Ten. Act. ——— S. 46—Mortgage—Subsequent surrender—Not invalid.

The provisions contained in S. 72 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act are similar to those contained in S. 86 of the Bengal Tenancy Act with this difference that the provisions contained in clause (6) of the Bengal Tenancy Act do not find place in S. 72 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, A mortgage, as distinguished from a sale is an incumbrance, and where the mortgage as in the present case was secured by a registered instrument, if the Bengal Tenancy Act applied a surrender would have been invalid, unless it was made with the consent of the landlord and the mortgagee. That clause has been omitted from the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act and the reason probably is that the legislature did not consider it desirable in the peculiar circumstances of the tenancy of the Chota Nagpur to recognise the right of transfer in the tenants with respect to their holdings. This intention is also to be gathered from the restrictions imposed upon the tenants under Chapter VIII of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, namely, S. 46. A raiyat is not permitted to transfer his holding or a portion thereof by a mortgage or lease for a longer period than five years to sell or make a gift of his holding by any contract or agreement. Be that as it may the absence of a provision similar to clause (6) of S. 86 of the Bengal Tenancy Act from S. 72 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act leaves no power of surrender conferred by the section unhampered by the existence of any incumbrance over the property. It, therefore, logically follows that in spite of a prior sale or mortgage by a raiyat he is free to exercise his right of surrender of the holding in favour of the landlord, for under clause (2) of S. 46 no transfer by a raiyat of his right in his holding or any portion thereof is binding on the landlord unless it is made with his consent in writing. A fraudulent surrender confers no right on the landlord. (Jwala Prasad and Ross, JJ.) RAM ORAON v. DOMAN KALAL. 2 Pat. 898 = 4 Pat. L.T. 562 = 75 I.C. 209 = 1924 P. 100.

The mere fact that an instalment of the mortgage money is payable after 1920 in pursuance of a compromise decree entered into after 1920 does not attract the provisions of Ss. 46 and 47 of the Act. "Decision" in the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act does not mean "decree" as used in S. 100 of the C. P. Code. Where the three months provided for a suit under S. 87 of the Act having expired, the plff. sought to exclude the time taken up by a previous application under S. 89 followed by an appeal to the Commissioner; Held, that though the appeal to the Commissioner was incompetent, the Settlement Officer had jurisdiction to entertain the application under S. 89 and the period during which the application was pending before the officer could not be excluded. Where rent is claimed in respect of Bustee or homestead land, the mere circumstance that crops have been grown on a part of the land, does not change its character. S. 139 (6) of the Act bars only a suit which relates to agricultural land and is instituted by the headman of a village as such, but has no application in a suit for recovery of possession on declaration of title. CHOTA NAGPUR TENANCY ACT (VI of 1908), S. 139.

——S. 139 (6) and (8)—Prodhan—Suit to eject—Forum.

S. 139 (6) of the Act confers jurisdiction on the Deputy Commissioner to deal with disputes as between parties claiming the office of prodhan coupled with possession of land attached to such office in a civil proceeding between parties other than landlord and tenant, which would otherwise apparently be outside the scope of the Act. A suit to eject a prodhan is not clearly within this sub-section nor under sub-section 8. The Deputy Commissioner has, therefore, no jurisdiction under the Act to hear such a suit. (Chapman and Atkinson, JJ.) TATA IRON AND STEEL CO., LTD, v. RAGHUNATH MAHTO. 3 Pat. L.W. 199= 45 I.C. 72=(1918) Pat. 65.

A decree which has actually been passed ex parte is an ex parte decree though it does not appear as such on its face. A rent decree passed against several tenants, one of whom only appeared and admitted plff.'s claim is ex parte against the other tenants. (Coutts and Macpherson, JJ.) SHYAM NARAIN SINGH v. SIWCHARAN SAHU. 2 Pat. L T. 734= 62 I.C. 886=(1921) Pat. 345.

——S. 177—Applicability—Suit for rent—Plea of payment to third party.

S. 177 of the Act applies when a right is claimed by or on behalf of a third person. Where in a suit for rent, the defendant pleads payment to a third party, but the right to receive payment is not claimed by or on behalf of such third party, S. 177 does not apply and the third party need not be impleaded in the action. (Das and Adami, JJ.) BALKI LAL v. SURENDRA NATH ROY. 1 P. 255= 69 I.C. 858=1922 P. 480.

——S. 177—Applicability—Suit for rent—Plea of payment to third person.

A right to receive rent can only be claimed by or on behalf of the person entitled to receive it and not by a person who is under an obligation to pay it. Where therefore in a rent suit, the tenant pleads payment to a third person, and such third person does not intervene, S. 177 of the Act does not operate. 57 I.C. 28, foll. (Coutts and Ross, JJ.) ——S. 178 (2) and (3)—Rent decree—Enlargement of time to pay—Application made after execution—Power of Court to grant time.

In respect of a decree for rent passed under S. 178 (2) of the Act, Court executing the decree being the Court which had tried the suit and made the decree, has power to grant an extension of time and thus in a manner to alter the decree even after the expiry of the period prescribed in the decree in conformity with sub-S. (2) and even after the decree-holder had applied for execution. 17 Cal. 1, 17 Cal. 512, 10 I.C. 268, rel. (Mookerjee and Carnduff, JJ.) ——S. 178 (3)—Power to extend time—Not exercisable after execution proceedings are closed—Order of extension is appealable.

The power under S. 178 (3) of the Act to extend time for payment of arrears of rent can be exercised only so long as the whole decree is not satisfied and cannot be exercised after execution proceedings are closed. An order under S. 178 (3) of the Act relates to the execution of the decree and an appeal from that order lies to the Court in which an appeal from the decree lies. (Jwala Prasad and Adami, JJ.) ——S 191 (2)—Landlord's rights.

A landlord who has obtained a decree for rent of a tenure under the Act may proceed at once to execute it against the person of the tenant. He is not bound to put up the tenure to sale in the first instance. The warrant of arrest so taken out has the effect of staying proceedings for the sale of tenure. ——S. 208 (2)—Execution of rent decree.

of a sale certificate under S. 208 read with S. 11 of the Beng. Rent Recovery Act, unless the order is one passed after decree and relating to the execution thereof. The phrase "confirmation of sale" in S. 209 (a) must refer to the completion of the sale proceedings by deposit of the balance of purchase-money under S. 11 of the Beng. Rent Recovery Act. The practice of confirming sales held under the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act is not warranted by the Act. (Coutts Trotter and Sultan Ahmed. JJ.) ——S. 210 (2)—Scope of.

S. 210 (2) applies whether or not the decree-holder has proceeded under S. 208. If in execution of a rent decree an application for sale of the entire holding is refused, the decree-holder can ask permission from the Deputy Commissioner to proceed against the other properties of the judgment-debtor. Even if one of the judgment-debtors pays a portion of a joint decree, he remains jointly liable with the others for the balance. (Mookerjee and Carnduff, JJ.) JAGANNATH SAHAI v. RAM NARAIN. 12 I.C. 599.

——Ss. 211 and 270—Execution of rent decree—Objection by transferee from tenant—Appeal.

No appeal lies to the Deputy Commissioner from a decision of a Deputy Collector under S. 211 of the Act. If a Deputy Collector whilst exercising the delegated powers of the Deputy Commissioner, fails to exercise a jurisdiction or usurps a jurisdiction, then the Deputy Commissioner has power to order him either to exercise that jurisdiction or to refrain from exercising it as the case may be. The same rules apply in the case of the Commissioner and the Board of Revenue dealing with acts performed by the Deputy Commissioner. Where the circumstances of the case show that there had been recognition by the landlord of the tenancy of the objector, there is sufficient reason for not having the transfer registered under S. 211. ——S. 212—"Claims", meaning of—Sale setting aside of—Court, duty of—Sale in execution of decree—Right to deposit purchase-money—Jurisdiction to determine the right—Appeal, if lies.

The word "claims" in Section 212 is used in the sense of asserting that a thing is one's own or affirming one's possession over it. A sale is not set aside by mere statements. A person claiming to hold dar-mokarari interest in the tenure sold in execution of a decree, claimed to be entitled to deposit the money under Section 212. His application being rejected he

——S. 213—Execution of rent decree—Court cannot exempt portion of property from sale—Legality of—Right to set aside sale.

Where in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, the holding of a tenant is put for sale, the Court has no power to order that a portion of the property shall be exempt from sale. Where therefore such an order was made and in pursuance of it a sale is held and the property is purchased by the decree-holder it is open to the judgment-debtor to bring a suit for setting aside the sale and his remedy is not confined to an application under S. 213 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act. (Coutts and Das, JJ.) KUMAR RAMYAD SINGH v. CHHEDIA BARHI. 1 Pat. 750 = 4 Pat. L.T. 439 = 71 I.C. 345 = 1923 P. 64.

——Ss. 213, 265 and 230—Rent sale—Application to set aside—Death of party—Substitution not applied for within time—Application abates.

An application to set aside a sale held in pursuance of an application for the execution of a decree is not an application for execution of a decree and order. Therefore, if on the death of the person who presents such application no steps are taken within the time allowed by law for substitution of names, the application abates. (Das and Adami, JJ). A person applied under S. 213 to set aside a rent sale on the ground of material irregularity and inadequacy of price and applied for summonses on a number of witnesses. The Deputy Collector refused to issue summonses on the witnesses on the ground that they were not necessary. Held, the High Court ought to interfere under S. 115 of the C.P. Code or under S. 107 of the Government of India Act because there has been something in the nature of a denial of the right of fair trial. CHOWKIDARI CHAKRAN LANDS.

———Resumption—Transfer of zemindari—Patnidar and darpatnidar—Rights of—Bengal Act (VI of 1870), S. 51.

The expression "Chaukidari Chakran lands" means lands held on service tenure by Chaukidari or village watchmen who also rendered acts of personal service to the Zamindar. In fixing the Jamma payable for the Zemindari, the Chaukidari Chakran lands were usually left out of account, as the services were such as the public were interested in them. Since the Permanent Settlement Regn. I (1793) the Zemindars have had at least a prima facie title to all lands for which they pay revenue, such lands being commonly known as malguzari lands. All Chakran lands are to be considered as malguzari for the purpose of ascertaining the lands in respect of which the jamma is paid and upon which it is secured. Though, having regard to the performance by Chaukidars of public duties, Chaukidari Chakran lands could not be resumed by the Zemindar, the Zemindar subject to the requirements of the public interest, was the owner of these lands. Therefore a patni grant by a Zemindar of certain lands includes his interest in Chaukidari Chakran lands within the area granted. If the chakran lands are resumed and transferred to the Zamindar under S. 51 of the Village Chaukidari Act, the patnidar or darpatnidar holding from him is entitled to the possession of those lands subject to a fair and reasonable rent. 10 M.I.A. 16, rel; 42 I.A. 30, dist. (1) From time immemorial it has been customary in India to renumerate officers charged with certain public or quasi public duties by grants of land to be held either rent-free or at a reduced rent. The lands known as chaukidari chakran lands were granted in lieu of wages to individuals who were charged with the performance of police duties in rural areas. 10 M.I.A. 16, Ref. (2) The power of resumption under S. 8 (4) of Beng. Regn. I of 1793 and S. 41 of Regn. VIII of 1793 was reserved in respect of such chaukidari lands as had been set apart by the zemindars with the permission or under the authority of the Govt. and which although included in the mahal and annexed to the malguzari lands were not taken into consideration for the assessment of revenue. (3) It was proved that a Zemindari was held under a sanad of 1803, confirmed by Regn. XII of 1805, the grantee being thereby required to maintain peace and order within the Zemindari. The Zemindar employed chaukidars, to whom he assigned lands from time to time and changed the lands so granted. On some occasions the appointments were made with the approval of Govt. Officers. It was not proved that in fixing the assessment for the Zemindari, any parcel of land within the Zemindari was not taken into account as being chaukidari lands. Held, that the Govt. had no right to resume the Chaukidari chakran lands and that the provisions of the Bengal Village Chaukidari Act (VI of 1870) did not authorise the resumption by Govt. of lands assigned by the Zemindar as in the present case. (4) A Zemindar as such has prima facie title to the full enjoyment of every parcel of land within the Zemindari for which he pays revenue to the Govt., and it rests on the Govt. to show that the settlement with the Zemindar was subject to reservation in respect of any land which gave Govt. the power of resuming and assessing it. 12 M.I.A. 292, 331, Ref. A Jewess after marrying and divorcing her husband according to Jewish Law desired to marry a Christian who applied to the Senior Marriage Registrar of Calcutta to marry them but the Registrar refused to do so without an order of the High Court. The High Court directed the Registrar to take the necessary steps to solemnize the marriage. (Chitty, J.) In re HAROLD TUCKER. 15 I C. 398 = 16 C.W.N. 417.

———Ss. 68 and 3—Christian marrying according to Hindu rites.

The Act is not applicable to cases which do not come within the reasonable meaning of its terms and within the spirit and scope of the enactment. The word "means" in S. 3 is an inclusive term; therefore no one except a person who professes the Christian religion comes under S. 68 of the Act. The mere fact that a person was baptised as an infant or that he is attending a Christian School or he is dressing as a Christian is not sufficient to treat him "a person professing the Christian religion." One who performs 'Devi ka pusa,' at the time of his marriage cannot be said to profess the Christian religion. There is no express prohibition preventing a person professing Christianity from

——S. 211—Mesne profits—Proceeding for ascertainment of, was one in execution.

A proceeding for the ascertainment of mesne profits was a proceeding in execution and not a proceeding in the suit under the old Code of 1882. (Das and Ross, JJ.) KEDA NATH GOENKA v. TARINI PRASAD SINGH.

——S. 257-A—Agreement to pay decree amount by instalments—Stipulation to pay interest in default—Sanction of the Court not obtained—Validity.

Where the decree provides no interest an agreement to pay interest on a decree debt made without the sanction of the Court is void under Section 257-A. (Heaton and Shah, JJ.) CHATRUABAJI PATIL v. KONDAJI VITHAL PATTIL. 38 Bom. 219=22 I.C. 284=16 Bom. L.R. 1129.

——S. 257-A—Satisfaction of judgment debt—Sanction—Order of Court.

An agreement to pay money by instalments and interest to be paid at the stipulated rate and in default of two instalments, the whole of the unpaid balance was to be recoverable at once, made between the parties in execution proceedings. The statements of the parties were taken, and the Court then passed an order stating that the parties had compromised and the judgment-debtor had paid Rs. 100 and directing release of some animals which had been attached. Held, that the Court had sanctioned the agreement, and there was no necessity for it to give the sanction in express terms. The agreement was binding on the appellant and the respondents were entitled to interest in accordance therewith and that it would be recovered by the respondents in execution proceedings. ——S. 257-A.—Forbearance to execute the decree — Payment to decree-holder — Amount adjusted towards decree.

A judgment-debtor paid a certain sum to the decree-holder for forbearance shown by the latter in not proceeding with the execution of the decree on a former occasion. No sanction was obtained from the Court for any such payment. Held, that the sum paid was in contravention of S. 257-A of the C. P. Code (1882), and must be applied to the satisfaction of the decree. 26 Mad. 19, ref. (Sadasiva Aiyar and Phillipt, JJ.) ZAMINDAR OF KARVETENAGAR v. SUBRAYA PILLAI. ——S. 257-A—Payment of money—Grant of time.

Money paid to a decree-holder for giving time to a judgment-debtor, under an arrangement not sanctioned by the Court under S. 257-A must be deducted from the decretal amount (Sadasiva Aiyar and Napier, JJ.

An agreement in contravention of S. 257-A is merely unenforceable in execution proceedings or by a fresh suit. The rule is applicable only to execution proceedings and is enacted for the benefit of the judgment-debtor who is entitled to waive its benefit. Where a decree is transferred to another by the decree-holder, the property in the decree passes by the transfer even though the transfer is not formerly recognised. (Miller and Sadasiva Aiyar, JJ.) BALKRISHNA PILLAY v. MINI REDDY. 14 I.C. 702.

——S. 276—Sale after admission of satisfaction lent before raising up of attachment—Sale during attachment rendered valid—If admission of satisfaction made.

Sale by a judgment-debtor after the intimation of satisfaction by the decree-holder to the Collector is not illegal or void under S. 275, even though in the Darkhast the property is under attachment on the date of the sale and such attachment has not been formally raised for the claim in the Darkhast having been satisfied can no longer be enforced. The bar is removed by the admission of satisfaction in such cases against the alienation, as if it never existed and the alienation made even during the attachment is valid and the judgment debtor cannot contend afterwards that as the property was under attachment at the time of sale, the sale was invalid. ——Ss. 278, 279, 280 and 281—Claim—Question of possession.

An objector may raise an objection to the attachment of property not only on the ground that he is in possession of property but also in the ground that he has an interest in the property attached and having regard to the language of Ss. 278, 279, 280 and 281 of the C.P.C., it has jurisdiction to do so notwithstanding the fact that it erroneously does not go into the question of possession but disallows the objection on some other ground. ——Ss. 287, 293—Statute creating liability—Procedure laid down to be strictly followed.

Owing to errors in the proclamation of sale it could not be said that the property resold was the same as property sold in the first instance and that consequently the judgment-——S. 295—Claim under—Another decree.

A claim under another decree cognisable under S. 295 depends on the continuance of the attachment. (Chandavarkar and Hayward, JJ.) KHUSHAL CHAND PREMRAJ v. NAND RAM SAHEBRAM. 13 Bom. L.R. 977=12 I.C. 572 (2)=35 Bom. 516.

——S. 320—Reference to Collector—Second Reference.

An existing reference of a darkhast to a Collector for execution after attaching the same is a bar to a second reference under S. 320 on a separate darkhast in execution of another money decree in respect of the same property and transferred to the Collector. Nor can the property be attached under such second decree for money, after the satisfaction of the first decree. (Chandavarkar and Hayward, JJ.) KHUSHAL CHAND PREMRAJ v. NAND RAM SAHEBRAM. 13 Bom. L.R. 977=12 I.C. 572 (2)=35 Bom. 516.

——Ss. 322—325—Decree—Execution of—Admission of satisfaction, effect of—Mamlatdar's position while executing a decree—A second attachment.

Ss. 322—325 apply to a decree which has to be satisfied and which is therefore capable of execution and not to a decree which has been acknowledged by the holder, by his declaration to the Collector to have been satisfied. An acknowledgment to a mamlatdar, carrying on the execution on behalf of a Collector, operates as an acknowledgment to the Collector, inasmuch as the mamlatdar acts in such a case as an agent of the Collector. The upholding by a Collector of a mamlatdar's action in accepting the admission of satisfaction and disposing of the darkhast, relates back to the date of the order disposing of the darkhast. This has the effect of rendering valid a sale by a judgment-debtor of the property attached, at any time between the date of acceptance by mamlatdar of admission of satisfaction and the date of upholding his action by the Collector. After the admission of satisfaction of a decree has been accepted, the Collector's powers under Ss. 322—325 cease inasmuch as the decree is not alive thenceforth and capable of execution. When it is intimated to the Collector in charge of the execution of a decree, that it has been satisfied, the effect amounts to a due certification satisfying the conditions of S. 258, C.P.C. of 1882. The last portion of the first paragraph of S. 325-A renders illegal a second attachment in execution of another money decree, after the transfer of the darkhast to the Collector for execution and therefore a private sale by the judgment-debtor is not affected by such attachment. (Chandavarkar and Hayward, JJ.) KHUSHALCHAND PREMRAJ v. NANDRAM SAHEBRAM. 13 Bom. L.R. 977=12 I.C. 572 (2)=35 Bom. 516.

C. P. CODE (XIV of 1882), S. 564.

——S. 335—Execution of decree—Sale—Obstruction by person not party to decree—Order directing removal of obstruction, finality of.

Where in execution of a decree to which the defendant was not a party his property was sold and purchased by the plaintiff and on the latter attempting to take possession was obstructed by the defendant, and the Court after notice to the defendant directed the removal of obstruction, held, that the order was final and binding on the defendant if he did not contest the same by means of a suit. (Shah and Crump, JJ.) BHIMAJI RAMCHANDRA v. BHIMABAI HIROJI. 23 Bom. L.R. 62=61 I.C. 764=45 Bom. 573.

——Ss. 375 and 462—Guardian appointed by Court of Wards—Compromise by leave of Court not obtained—Compromise, if valid.

A guardian appointed by the Court of Wards under any local law, on behalf of infants, has power to compromise proceedings in which the infants are defendants, though he entered into it without leave of Court. Under S. 375 of the Code, the Court was bound to register the agreement that had been come to. (Lord Buckmaster.) NAKIMO DEWANI v. PEMBA DICHEN. 48 Cal. 469=48 I.A. 27=19 A.L.J. 171=40 M.L.J. 201=(1921) M.W.N. 116=29 M.L.T. 202=33 C.L.J. 211=59 I.C. 911=23 Bom. [On appeal from 37 I.C. 971.]

Where a certificated guardian was proposed for appointment as guardian-ad-litem, the Court might under the Old Code unless he declines to accept it, presume his consent. (Mookerjee and Panton, JJ.) SARAT CHANDRA v. BHIBHABATI DEBI. 66 I.C. 433 (2)=34 C.L.J. 302.

——S. 539—Presumption—Clear and uncontradicted evidence—Existence of.

The Court on clear and uncontradicted evidence not only is entitled to presume but ought to presume the existence of a charitable or religious trust for public purposes within the meaning of section 539 of the C.P. Code, 1882. (Richards, C.J. and Banerji, J.) PURAN ATAL v. DARSHAN DAS. 9 A.L.J. 709=14 I.C. 698=34 A. 468.

——S. 564—Repeal of—New Code.

S. 564 of the C. P. Code, 1882, has been omitted with the object of removing the restrictions, e.g., where the appellate Court allows an amendment of pleadings or adds a party, as such restrictions embarass the procedure. CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE (V of 1908).

———Interpretation—Rules as to appeals—Letters Patent Appeal.

The Code provides generally for the mode in which the High Courts should exercise their jurisdiction, except the Original Civil Jurisdiction. The Orders and Rules apply to High Courts unless the Code contains something inconsistent with them. They apply to the powers exercisable under Letters Patent. However they do not restrict the Letters Patent Appeal. The distinction between the rules taking away the existing right of appeal and the rules which recognize the rights but prescribe the procedure of the Appellate Court has been overlocked in 25 Mad. 555 and 27 Mad. 121. (Lord Sumner.) SABITRI THAKURAIN v. SAVI. 48 Cal. 481=48 I.A. 76=40 M.L.J. 308=(1921) M.W.N. 159=19 A.L.J. 281=33 C.L.J. 307=25 C.W.N. 557=23 Bom. L.R. 681=60 I.C. 274=3 U.P.L.R. (P.C.) 57=14 L.W. 362 (P.C.).

———Co-defendants — Decision—when res judicata.

If in a previous suit the parties to a subsequent suit were arrayed on the side as co-defts. and there was an issue between them which was decided, the decision operates as res judicata to a second suit or defence raising the same issue between them in the position of plff. and deft. (Piggott and Walsh, JJ.) MANNU v. MT. PATIA. 55 I.C. 932.

———Applicability of—Mortgage suit pending.

Where at the time of coming into force of new C.P.C. a mortgage suit was pending; S. 48 does not apply to proceedings in execution of the decree in that suit. (Fletcher and Huda, JJ.) SHAM CHANDA MAITA v. BAIKUNTHA NATH MANDAL. 47 I.C. 153.

———Interpretation of—Sections and rules.

Per Woodroffe, J.—The body of the Code creates jurisdiction and the rules indicate the mode in which that jurisdiction is to be exercised, and therefore the body must be read in conjunction with the rules either as existing at the date of publication of the Code or as added or altered subsequently. (Sanderson, C. J. Woodroffe, Mookerjee, Chitty and Teunon, JJ.) GHUZNAVI v. ALLAHABAD BANK, LTD. 44 Cal. 929=21 C.W.N. 877=41 I.C. 598=26 C.L.J. 49 (F. B.).

———Forms given in schedules—Effect on Code.

The forms given in the schedule to C.P.C. cannot control the clear words, of the Code itself. (Fletcher and Richardson, JJ.) MUNSUR ALI v. ABHOY CHARAN DAS. 40 I.C. 816=21 C.W.N. 1147.

———Interpretation of—Body of Code and rules.

The body of the Code is unalterable except by the legislature and is expressed in more general terms and has to be read in conjunction with the rules which are more readily alterable and which are concerned with details and machinary indicating the mode in which the jurisdiction created by the body of the Code is to be exercised. (Jenkins, C.J. and Chatterjee, J.) MANI MOHAN MANDAL v. RAMTARAN MANDAL. 33 I.C. 329=43 Cal. 148.

———Interpretation—Conflict between the Code and its schedule.

When there is a conflict between the body of the Code and its schedule, the latter must yield to the former. (Carnduff and Richardson, JJ.) RAHIM MAJHI v. SHEIKH EKBAR. 22 I.C. 690.

———Interpretations of—Sections and rules.

The method of construction applicable to an Act divided into sections and rules, as the new C.P.C. is, that the sections lay down general principles and the rules provide the means of applying them, and they cannot be otherwise applied. The rules restrict the sections. (Stephen and Mullick, JJ.) NABIN CHANDRA TRIPATI v. PRAN KRISHNA DEY.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908).

41 Cal. 108=20 I.C. 39=18 C.L.J. 613.

———Pending cases—Applicability to.

The new Code applies so far as procedure is concerned, to all cases which were pending or about to be instituted at the time it came into force. (Chitty and Chatterjee, JJ.) ABDUL AZIZ v. MOMIN. 9 I.C. 815.

———Applicability—Sale under administrative order of Court.

Where a sale is held under an administrative order and not in execution of a decree, the procedure contained in the Civil Procedure Code for sales in execution of decrees does not apply. (Martineau, J.) FIRM OF KAHNA MAL BENARSI DAS v. FIRM OF KALUR MAL NATHU MAL. 69 I.C. 718=40 P.L.R. 1922.

———Not exhaustive.

As the provisions of the C.P. Code are not exhaustive, a Court can pass an order necessary for the justice and not expressly or impliedly forbidden even if there be no section in the Code to support his order. (Petman, J.) ABDUL RAHAMAN SHAH v. SHAHANA. 1 Lah. 339=58 I.C. 748=1 Lah. L.J. 188.

———Bar of suit—Sale of share of a co-parcener in joint family—Auction-purchaser—Suit for partition—Decree-holder an auction-purchaser.

Section 244, C.P. Code (1882) does not bar a suit by an auction-purchaser for the share of a co-parcener in a Hindu joint family for partition and allotment of the share to him, the decree-holder himself being auction-purchaser makes no difference. (Broadway and Abdul Raoof, JJ.) BRIJLAL v. DURGA. 1 Lah. 134=56 I.C. 254=1 Lah. L.J. 10.

———Applicability of—Pending proceedings—Remand—Appeal.

Where a suit was filed when the C.P.C. of 1882 was in force, the course of appeal is regulated by that Code. Therefore an appeal against the order of remand of the suit though not allowed by the present Code, will lie. 12 P.R. 1900, foll. (Robertson and Rattigan, JJ.) SUNDAR DAS v. PEOPLE'S BANK OF INDIA, LTD. 272 P.W.R. 1912=16 I.C. 884=169 P.L.R. 1912.

———Applicability to Village Munsifs' Courts.

The Civil Procedure Code, 1908, is inapplicable to Village Munsifs' Courts. (Sadasiva Aiyar and Napier, JJ.) AGUSTUS BROTHERS v. FERNANDEZ. 2 L.W. 890=29 M.L.J. 474=18 M.L.T. 377=31 I.C. 59=(1915) M.W.N. 765.

———Not retrospective order under old Code—New Code—Different rule—Appellate Court, power to reverse order.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908); S. 2.

An appellate Court could not reverse the order on the ground that a different rule has been enacted by the new Code since the date of passing of the order by the Court of first instance. (Abdur Rahim and Spencer, JJ.) GURUMOORTHI NAIDU v. VARADAPPA CHETTY. 12 I.C. 883=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 386.

———"Hearing"—Meaning of.

The word "Hearing" is not defined in the Code and is used in different rules with a view to state the different purposes for which a date for hearing is fixed. (Jwala Prasad, A. C. J. and Das, J.) ABDUL RAHMAN v. SAHIB LAL SAHU. 63 I.C. 570=2 Pat. L.T. 572.

———Matters outside suit—Provision for interest not claimed in plaint.

The agreement to pay after a specified date, a rate of interest not claimed in the suit was outside the scope of the suit, and that portion of the compromise was therefore invalid and ought not to have been included in the decree and could not be executed as part of the decree. (Sharfuddin and Roe, JJ.) GAURI DUTT v. DOHAN THAKUR. 2 Pat. L.J. 678=43 I.C. 459=4 Pat. L.W. 209.

———Not exhaustive.

The Civil Procedure Code is not exhaustive and where in the Code a particular point has not been specifically dealt with, it must be determined upon general principles. (Chapman and Roe, JJ.) RAGHUNANDAN SINGH v. PARMESHWAR DAYAL SINGH.
2 Pat. L.J. 306=39 I.C. 779=1 Pat. L.W. 636=(1917) Pat. 137.

———Not exhasutive.

The Code of C. P. is not exhaustive and when a Court has made an order which it has jurisdiction to make, it has inherent power to have it set aside. (Mullick and Jwala Prasad, JJ.) SUKHDEO DASS v. RITO SINGH.
1 Pat. L.W. 551=39 I.C. 763=2 Pat. L.J. 351.

———Applicability of — Proceedings in Revenue Courts under the Land Revenue Acts.

The provisions of the C. P. Code do not apply en bloc to proceedings in Courts constituted under the Land Revenue Act. A bona fide compromise on behalf of a minor who was represented in certain mutation proceedings by his elder brother without leave of the Court as required by O. 32, R. 7 of the C. P. Code, is not bad merely for want of such leave. (Lindsay, J.C.) HARPALSINGH v. SUKHARANI. 48 I.C. 119=21 O.C. 220.

———S. 1—Finding of fact—Binding.

A second Appellate Court can arrive at a finding of fact in case the Court below comes to no definite finding on the point of fact or even if it does, it has no evidence to support it. (Homles, J.M.) BECHU SINGH v. BENI SINGH. 30 I.C. 380=2 O.L.J. 377.

An order under S. 148 of the C. P. Code extending time is not appealable. It is neither a decree nor an order under S. 104, C.P.C. 14 A. 20, Dist. (Richards, C.J., Banerjee and Tudball, JJ.) SURANJAN SINGH v. RAMBABAL LAL. 35 All. 582=21 I.C. 885= 11 A.L.J. 950.

——Ss. 2 (2) and 97—Interlocutory order—Partition suit—Appeal.

Where after the confirmation in appeal of a preliminary decree for partition and before the final decree, the first Court directed the actual partition in a certain manner. Held, that the order was an interlocutory order before making the final decree and was not appealable as a preliminary decree, though it could be challenged in appeal after the final decree was made. There cannot be two preliminary decrees in the same case. (Richards, C.J. and Banerjee, J.) BHARATENDU v. YAQUB HUSAIN. 33 All. 159=18 I C. 701= 11 A.L J. 120.

——S. 2 (2)—Order rejecting application under Ss. 5 and 7 of U.P. Regn. V of 1799—Not appealable.

During the course of a proceeding under Regn. V of 1799, the appellant applied under Ss. 5 and 7 of the Regn. that the property of the deceased intestate, might be handed over to him on the ground that he was the heir. The Court dismissed the application as Bhuralal had not clearly made out his title; held, that the order rejecting the application was not appealable. (Richards and Tudball, JJ.) BHURA LAL v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 10 I.C. 414.

——Ss. 2 (2), 95 and 97—Preliminary point decided first but no formal preliminary decree drawn up—No appeal lies.

The drawing up of a decree or the omission to do so, must be taken as conclusive on the question whether the Court has in fact passed, or not passed, a preliminary decree and this is the only proper test to apply in considering whether the provisions of S. 97 are or are not applicable. 37 B. 480 and 16 Bom. C. P. CODE (V of 1908), S. 2.

Ss. 2 and 96 of the Code, upon which alone the right of appeal is based, must be construed with reference to S. 33, which distinguishes between a judgment and decree, and O. 20, R. 6, which prescribes the contents of a decree. If no such formal document has been drawn up, then, no decree has been passed from which an appeal can be brought under S. 96 or S. 97. (Fawcett and Pratt, JJ.). VAMANACHARYA v. GOVIND.

——S. 2 (2)—Finding that a party is agriculturist, is not a decree.

The finding that a party is an agriculturist is not an adjudication resulting in a decree and hence no appeal lies from such finding although the plaint may be returned for presenting to the proper Court. A Judge should not therefore entertain an application to draw up such a finding in the form of a decree. (Macleod, C.J. and Fawcett, J.) DATTATRAYA PURUSHOTTAM v. RADHABAI BALKRISHNA.

65 I.C. 719=1922 Lah. 267.

——S. 2 (2) and O. 22, Rr. 3, 5 and 9—Order dismissing application for bringing legal representative on record, is not a 'decree'—Order directing abatement of suit amounts to decree.

The C. P. Code, 1908, makes no provision for an appeal from an order dismissing an application by a legal representative of a deceased plff. to be brought on the record, nor can such an order be regarded as a decree within the meaning of S. 2 (2) of the Code. An order directing the abatement of a suit in consequence of no legal representative of the deceased plff. having applied within time to be brought upon the record is a decree and hence is appealable only by a party to it. (Broadway and Dundas, JJ.) RAM SARUP v. MOTI RAM.

67 I.C. 901=3 Lah. L.J. 237.

Insolvency proceedings under the special provisions of the Punjab Laws Act do not amount to a suit and an order releasing from attachment the residential house of an insolvent in accordance with the conditions of the trust deed in respect thereof is not a decree and hence an appeal does not lie from it. (Scott-Smith, J.) RADHA KISHAN v. MADAN GOPAL.
67 I.C. 795=3 Lah. L. J. 338.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908), S. 2.

——S. 2 (2)—Order of abatement.

Order directing the abatement of a suit as no legal representative of the deceased plff, applied within the time to be brought on the record is a decree and is appealable by a person who is a party to it. But an order dismissing an application by the legal representative to be brought on record is not a decree. (Broadway and Dundas, JJ.) RAM SARUP v. MOTI RAM.

——Ss. 2 (2) and 47—Execution of a decree—Order in execution proceeding whether decree.

Every order in execution proceedings is not a decree. An order granting or refusing process for examination of a witness or determining a point of law arising incidentally and not granting or refusing any relief is not a decree. (Shadi Lal and Broadway, JJ.) DATAL KAUR v. RAMRATAN.
115 P.L.R. 1920 = 56 I.C. 173 = 2 U.P.L.R. 93 (Lah.).

——S. 2 (2) and O. 20, R. 6—Omission or delay in drawing up—Decree—Appeal.

It is imperative that a decree should follow the judgment and it is the duty of the Court to have one drawn up. But an omission or neglect by the Court in the performance of its duties in this respect cannot deprive an appellant of his right of appeal, (Wilberforce and Martineau, JJ.) MANOHAR LAL v. NANAK CHAND. 52 I.C. 479 = 66 P.R. 1919.

——S. 2 (2), O. 23, R. 1 and O. 43, R. 1.—Order allowing withdrawal of suit—Not appealable.

An order under O. 23, R. 1 of the C. P. Code allowing plff. to withdraw his suit with liberty to sue again does not come under the definition of decree in S. 2 (2) of the C. P. Code nor is it appealable under O. 43, R. 1. (Broadway and A. Raoof, JJ.) DINDI DAYAL v. KISHUN KUNWAR.
51 I.C. 766 = 57 P.W.R. 1919.

——S. 2 (2)—Order of—Abatement—Appeal.

The new code does not take away the appeal provided for by Cl. (18) of S. 588 of the Code of 1882 against an order of abatement under S. 368. (Johnstone, J.) BRIJ INDRA SINGH v. LALA KASHI RAM.
129 P.L.R. 1917.

——S. 2 (2)—Set off—Disposal of—Claim, if a decree and as such appealable.

The order of the Subordinate Judge disposing of the deft's. claim to a legal set-off did not amount to a decree and therefore was not appealable, as the decision could be attacked in an appeal against the final order in the case. (Shadi Lal and Broadway, JJ.) FIRM SHEO PRASAD RADHA KISHEN v. INDORE MALWA UNITED MILLS. 68 P.W.R. 1917 = 39 I.C. 508 = 62 P.R. 1917.

——S. 2 (2)—Order recognising abatement not a decree.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908), S. 2.

Where a Court passes a purely formal order recognising the abatement, which is a fait accompli, such an order though virtually disposing of the suit does not adjudicate upon any rights and should not be treated as a decree. But an order of abatement which is the result of an adjudication upon the rights of the parties with respect to a matter in controversy and not passed upon an application for the revival of the suit, made under O. 22, R. 9, C. P. C. amounts to a decree and is appealable. (Johnstone, C.J., Chevis and Shadi Lal, JJ.) NIRANJAN NATH v. AFZAL HUSAIN.

——Ss. 2 (2) and 104—Award without the intervention of the Court—Invalid in part—Application to file—Order on—Second appeal.

The decision of a Court on an application to file a private award, part of it being on a matter outside the scope of the arbitration, is an "order" and is not open to second appeal. (Shadi Lal and Le-Rossignol, JJ.) AHMAD DIN v. ATLAS TRADING CO. OF DELHI.
66 P.R. 1915 = 31 I.C. 80 = 146 P.W.R. 1915.

——S. 2 (2)—Decree — Definition of—Rights of parties—Meaning of.

The words "rights of parties" in the definition of 'decree' in S. 2 (2) mean rights of the parties interse in the subject-matter of the suit. (Reid, C.J. and Kensington, J.) UMAR ALI v. NASIBUNNISSA, 13 I.C. 800 = 82 P.R. 1911.

——Ss. 2 (2), 96 and O. 23, R. 1—Order permitting withdrawal of suit—Appeal.

An order permitting the withdrawal of a suit is not a "decree" either preliminary or final and is not, therefore, appealable. (Johnstone, J.) SANT SINGH v. H. W. M. IVES.
160 P.W.R. 1911 = 11 I.C. 830 = 248 P.L.R. 1911.

——S. 2 (2)—Order returning plaint whether appealable—Revision.

An order returning plaint for amendment is not a decree within the meaning of Sec. 2 (2), C.P.C. and is not appealable. (Rattigan and Shah Din, JJ.) GURDAS v. BHAG.
93 P.R. 1911 = 143 P.W.R. 1911 = 11 I.C. 231 = 216 P.L.R. 1911.

——S. 2 (2)—Interlocutory order—Decree—Preliminary.

"Decree" does not include interlocutory decision in ordinary suits on every controversial point though such a decision is embodied in a separate order during the pendency of proceedings. An order is not a decree unless it is drawn as such or could be drawn as such. A preliminary decree is passed when the Court after adjudication of rights of the parties has to stay for a time to pass a final order thereon. (Ratligan, J.) KASHINATH v. NATHU RAM.

An order over-ruling objections to an award is not a decree. (Johnstone, J.) NARPAT RAI v. DEBI DAS. 1 P.L.R. 1911 = 9 I.C. 385 = 12 P.W.R. 1911.

———S. 2 (2)—Partnership suit—Order referring suit to Commissioner for determining shares, is not a decree.

The order of the Judge referring the whole suit to the Official Referee was neither a decree within the meaning of section 2, C.P.C. nor a 'judgment' within the meaning of clause 15 of the Letters Patent and was therefore not appealable. (Kumaraswami Sastri, J.) ABDUL WAHAB v. ROKIA BIBI. 78 I.C. 903 (2).

———S. 2 (2)—Order refusing to implead a person as legal representative—Abatement.

Where an application to bring on record a person as the legal representative of a deceased plff. is refused, the order is a decree as it negatives the right of the applicant to the relief which the original plff. had sought in the suit and is an adjudication of the applicant's claims. The order is therefore appealable. 42 Mad. 219, appl; 39 Mad. 488, dist. (Oldfield and Seshagiri Aiyar, JJ.) ———Ss. 2 (2) and 100—Dismissal of suit or appeal on the ground that Court below had no jurisdiction—Decision, if appealable.

The decision of a District Court on appeal holding that the Revenue Court had no jurisdiction to decide the validity of the resumption claimed by the plff. in a suit for rent is a decree within S. 2 (2). S. 100, C.P. Code gives a right of 2nd appeal to the High Court against such a decree passed on appeal. 41 Mad. 556, dist. (Spencer and Krishnan, JJ.) An order rejecting a plaint is appealable but not as a decree. (Wallis and Seshagiri Aiyer, JJ.) LAXMANAN CHETTY v, LAXMAN CHETTIAR. 22 I.C. 738=1 L.W. 875.

———Ss. 2 (2) and 96—"Decree"—Appeal.

Record of some findings in a suit and a remark by the Judge that he should not pass a final decree, does not amount to a "decree" and hence no appeal lies. To constitute a decree there must be final adjudication. No particular form is necessary. (Abdur Rahim and Sadasiva Aiyer, JJ.) AYAPPA v. GOPALSWAMI. 12 M.L.T. 309=16 I.C. 45=(1912) M.W.N. 1122.

An order of dismissal of an appeal for default under O. 41, R. 17 is not appealable as it is not a decree, nor, is it an order specified in the Code as an appealable order. (Sundara Aiyar and Spencer, JJ.) MURUGA CHETTY v. RAJAH SWAMI. (1912) M.W.N. 382=11 M.L.T. 280=14 I.C. 828=22 M.L.J. 284.

———S. 2 (2) and O. 23, R. 1—Order allowing withdrawal of suit—After preliminary decree—Appeal against order.

An order by a Court allowing a party to withdraw a partition suit after a preliminary decree affects the rights of parties and hence an appeal lies from such an order as a decree. (Sankaran Nair and Sadasiva Aiyar, JJ.) UNNI MOYAN v. KATTIYAMMA. (1912) M.W.N. 494=14 I.C. 259=11 M.L.T. 390.

———S. 2 (2)—Order dismissing appeal for deficiency of court-fee is appealable.

An order in effect dismissing an appeal for deficiency in Court-fee should be treated as on the same footing with the rejection of a plaint for the purposes of determining whether it amounts to a decree or not and hence an appeal

———S. 2 (2)—Finding is not a decree.

A finding is not a decree, merely because the Judge chooses to make use of a form entirely inapplicable to that finding, unless the finding is a decree in the eye-law, and vice versa. (Mittra, O. A. J. C.) PANDURANG v. GAYABAI.
62 I.C. 467=17 N.L.R. 66.

———S. 2 (2)—Order rejecting husband's claim to be legal representative is not a decree.

An order rejecting a husband's claim to be legal representative of his wife is not a decree, and so does not bar a suit for declaration, that he is the legal representative of the deceased. (Kotwal, A. J. C.) LAXMI v. GANPAT.
62 I. C. 303=17 N.L.R. 45.

———S. 2 (2) and O. 9, R. 8—Decree on admission—Appeal.

The word "decree" in O. 9, R. 8 is governed by the definition given in S. 2 (2). Therefore a decree passed on the admission of the deft. is appealable by a person aggrieved thereby, (Findlay, A.J.C.) RAM KRISHNA v. NARAIN.
56 I.C. 845.

———S. 2 (2)—Order as to legal representative of deceased—Meaning.

No appeal lies against an order deciding that a person is not the legal representative of a deceased party as it is not a decree. (Mittra, O. A. J. C.) TARACHAND v. JANKI.
38 I.C. 833=13 N.L.R. 32.

Orders appealable under O. 43, R. 1 are not decrees, though coming under S. 47 or the definition of decree in S. 2. (Stanyan, A.J.C). VASUDEO v. HIRALAL. 17 I.C. 884=8 N.L.R. 177.

———S. 2 (2)—Decree—Drawing up of—Essential—Appeal—Execution.

A judgment under the Code is only the basis of a decree or order. The decree itself is the formal expression of the judgment and the order may not be appealable; but no right of appeal is obtained from a judgment. Drawing up of a decree being the conscious and formal act, notifying the Court's disposal of the case according to its adjudication of the matter in dispute, no right of appeal accrues until it is drawn up. Though the passing of a preliminary decree is imperative in certain cases, yet in the rest the Court has a discretion. But a right of appeal does not arise till it is finally expressed in a decree or is followed by an appealable order. In a redemption suit by a Hindu's sons after a foreclosure decree was obtained against their father, the mortgagee deft, pleaded that he had no notice of the plff's rights at the time of foreclosure suit, and that the decree was binding on them as their father was the managing member of their family. Preliminary issues were framed and decided by the Court against the deft. without drawing a formal decree. Held that the decision was not a preliminary decree and hence unappealable. Obiter:—A person ought to apply for a decree following upon a judgment: if he is refused, the decree in terms of the judgment, he should move the High Court in revision. Because unless and until a decree is drawn up in terms of the judgment, there can be neither appeal nor execution. (Stanyon, A.J.C.) MAHU v. KISHAN. 15 I.C. 935 = 8 N.L.R. 22.

——S. 2 (2)—Mortgage—Order absolute.

An absolute decree for redemption sale or foreclosure is a final decree within S. 2 (2). (Stanyon and Skinner, A.J.Cs.) DADNOO v. SOMNATH. 10 I.C. 736 = 7 N.L.R. 41.

——Ss. 2 (2) and 96—Direction after Preliminary decree—Interlocutory order—Partition suit—Appeal.

There can be only one preliminary decree in a suit for partition and where after the passing of such a decree, the Court directs the Commissioner to take a valuation of certain property, the order is an interlocutory order from which there is no appeal. (Daniels, J.C. and Dalal, A.J.C.) JAGMOHAN DAS v. INDAR PRASAD. 68 I.C. 983 = 24 O.C. 366.

——Ss. 2 (2) and 96, 100—Dismissal of suit for deficient Court-fee—Appeal.

If a suit is dismissed for deficient Court fees, an appeal lies from the decision of the Court below. A second appeal also lies on a question of law such as the interpretation of the Court Fees Act. (Ashworth, J.) MUSSAMAT GUMANI v. BANWARI. 54 I.C. 733 = 22 O.C. 289.

——S. 2 (2) and O. 23, R. 1—Order allowing—Leave to withdraw suit—Not a decree—Appeal.

An order under O. 23, R. 1, C. P. Code, is not a decree and is not appealable although a portion of the order may require the plaintiff to pay costs. (Daniels, A.J.C.) SITA RAM DAS v. MAHENDRA PARTAB SINGH. 51 I.C. 69 = 6 O.L.J. 151.

——S. 2 (2) and O. 9, R. 8—Dismissal for default—Not a decree.

An order dismissing an appeal for default is not a decree. Limitation for execution under S. 48, C.P.C. runs from the original decree. (Lindsay, J.C.) RAMDIN v. RAMLOT. 47 I.C. 125 = 5 O.L.J. 252.

——Ss. 2 (2) and 96—Order dismissing suit on default of payment—Appeal.

Where a decree declared that on default of payment of the amount specified therein within a particular time the suit shall stand dismissed with costs; it is a decree for dismissal in such event and is at once appealable. (Kanhaiya Lal, A.J.C.) BHARATH SINGH v. DARAM SINGH. 21 I.C. 193 = 17 O.C. 14.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908), S. 2.

——Ss. 2 (2) and 47—"Parties"—"Matters in controversy in the suit".

The word 'parties' in S.2 (2) means the same thing as the expression 'parties to the suit' in S. 47 and includes only those that are joined on either side as plffs. or defts. The expression "matters in controversy in the suit" in S. 2 (2) does not include matters forming the subject of dispute between a surviving plff. and a third person as to who is the legal representative of deceased plff. (Lindsay, J.C.) BRIJ MOHAN v. RAM MILAN. 20 I.C. 898 = 16 O.C. 350.

Where on a mortgage decree being put in execution, an objection was raised that execution could proceed only after payment of an additional amount of court fee, but was negatived, Held an appeal lay as it was a matter relating to execution. (Coutts and Ross, JJ.) RAM BUJHAVAN PD. SINGH v. NATHO RAM. 70 I.C. 483 = 3 Pat. L.T. 146 = 1922 P. 89.

——S. 2 (2) and O. 34, R. 6—Hindu Law—Mortgage decree against father and personal decree against son's shares in the ancestral property not proper.

Where in a mortgage suit against the father and sons of a Mitakshara joint family the decree gave a mortgage decree against the father and a money decree against the son's shares in the ancestral property a decree under O. 34, R. 6 is necessary only for execution against the father's other properties and no personal decree under O. 34, R. 6 was required to proceed against the son's shares in the ancestral properties. (Das and Ross, JJ.) KRISHNA PRASAD v. RAM PRASAD. 64 I.C. 629 = 2 Pat. L.T. 715.

——S. 2 (2)—Order rejecting appeal for insufficient stamp is a decree.

Where an appeal is presented with insufficient stamp and the deficit is not made good within the time prescribed and extended by Court, the Court should reject the appeal and should not order dismissal for default. Even if it so orders the order is one rejecting an appeal and thus is a decree within S. 2 (2). (Miller, C.J. and Coutts, J.) SURAJPAL PANDEY v. UTIM PANDEY. 63 I.C. 99 = 1921 Pat. 337.

——S. 2 (2) and O. 21, R. 66—Appeal—Order on question as to valuation to be inserted in sale proclamation.

A decision under S. 47, C.P.C. is not a decree within S. 2 (2) unless it in some way determines the rights of the parties with regard to all or any of the matters in controversy. A decision on a question of the valuation to be inserted in a sale proclamation is merely an interlocutory order and although the court, acts judicially in coming to its conclusion that does not in itself make the decision a decree, and therefore, it is not appealable. 30 Cal. 617: 27 Mad. 259 appr. ——Ss. 2 (2) and 35—Order as to costs—Appeal.

A right to costs is not a vested right and there is a very limited right of appeal. An order for costs is not a decree; it has to be included in decree or may be part of a decree. It is only appealable, if the original decree or order is appealable; and in that event an appeal on the question of costs alone will lie, if any question of principle is involved. There can be no second appeal for costs, except on a ground of law. (Mullick, J.) SHEIK GULAB v. JANKI. 1 Pat. L.T. 408=

——Ss. 2 (2), Expln. and 97—Preliminary decree—What is—Order dissolving partnership as from a certain date—Absence of appeal—Final.

The C.P. Code makes no provision for something which is neither a decree nor an order, nor anything which is both; nor does it provide that one adjudication by the Court can be resolved into diverse elements, some of which are decrees and some orders. The question is one of substance, whether an adjudication is a decree or order. In a suit for taking accounts of a partnership, the trial Judge made an order declaring the partnership as dissolved from a particular date and ordered that an enquiry be made by the referee as to who were the partners and as to the dealings of the partners with the assets of the partnership. No appeal was preferred against this adjudication. The inquiry was made, accounts were taken and a final decree was passed. In an appeal against the final decree, the appellant contended inter alia, that the trial Judge had no jurisdiction to refer the question as to who were the partners. Held, that the former adjudication of the trial Judge was a "decree" in so far as it declared the rights of the parties. The appellants were precluded from disputing its correctness by reason of their omission to appeal against it. The adjudication did not cease to be a decree, because a subordinate part of it, if correctly made, might have been separately made as an order. (Lord Sumner, J.) AHMED MUSAJI v. HASIM EBRAHIM.

An order that a Court will proceed to hear a suit on the merits is not an order which should be immediately followed by a decree. A finding that a party is or is not an agriculturist is not a judgment. A decree based upon such a finding, is not a legal decree. But if the finding necessarily involves a direction that an account be taken between the parties in the manner provided by S. 13 of the Dekkan Agriculturists Relief Act, it amounts to a preliminary decree and is appealable. ———S. 2 (2), Expln. 97 and O. 20, Rr. 12 to 18—Preliminary decree—What is—Decision on issue—Appeal.

The "matter in controversy in suit" in S. 2 (2) refers to the subject-matter of the litigation and should not be understood in its wider sense so as to include a decision in plaintiff's favour on the issue of his locus standi to sue. Such a decision is not a preliminary decree and is not appealable. Mere omission to style an order a preliminary decree or to embody it as such does not negative the party's right to appeal. There should be only one preliminary decree in a suit, to be followed by one final decree. A preliminary decree ascertains what is to be done while the final decree states the result achieved by means of the preliminary decree. The cases where the Legislature contemplates a preliminary decree are specified in O. 20, Rr. 12 to 18. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) ———S. 2 (2), Expln.—Preliminary decree —Meaning.

The wording of the definition of "decree" in S. 2, C.P.C. (1908) is very wide, but it cannot be said that it was ever intended to allow a separate appeal against each and every decision on each and every issue in a case. A finding by the first Court on the issue as to limitation in favour of the plaintiff when there is another issue to be decided, does not amount to a "decree." It is not a preliminary decree in the ordinarily accepted technical sense and as such does not debar an appeal against the decree in the suit because the deft. did not appeal against it. The properties in suit belonged absolutely to the testatrix who by her will dated 23-3-1872, appointed her sons J and N as trustees and directed them to maintain the relations of the testatrix and gave them during their life-time the income from the estate after meeting all the charges. On the death of J and N, their sons were to be equally entitled to, and divide the properties with no power of sale etc. They had power however if the income of to mortgage the estate for necessary purposes, the estate was insufficient J having died issueless probate of the will was granted to N who in 1889 mortgaged the estate for necessity. N died intestate in 1891 and letters of administration of the estate were granted to his daughter. The mortgagee instituted a suit on his mortgage and obtained a decree, in 1892 impleading the daughter of N as representing the estate. In execution of the decree the property was sold and purchased by the defendants. In a suit by the daughter's son of the testatrix held that J and N having taken only a life estate in the properties of the testatrix, there was an intestacy on their death without male issue. Consequently on the death of N the plaintiff became the heir to the properties and decree passed against the daughter of N did not bind the estate in his hands. (Teunon

If a person sues for possession he can in the same suit recover mesne profits accrued before the suit and accruing pending litigation. The fact that owing to prosecution of appeal in higher Courts by the deft., the mesne profits swelled up beyond the limits of the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court which tried the suit originally, thereby necessitating the transfer of the proceedings in the suit to a Court of higher jurisdiction, is not an interruption so as to make the subsequent proceeding in the higher Court a different suit. The rightful owner got a decree for possession and mesne profits. Held that the rightful heir of the original trespasser as representing the estate, is not liable for mesne profits during the time the so-called executors were in possession as he could not be said to be in possession in fact or in law either personally or by agent or by tenant. ———S. 2 (12)—Mesne profits—Assessment of.

Mesne profits mean those profits which the person in wrongful possession of such property actually receives or might with ordinary diligence receive and not what the plaintiff has lost. When the purchaser issued notice to a mokararidar, to deliver possession within a certain time the purchaser is not entitled to mesne profits for the period prior to that date but can get damages for use and occupation on the basis of mokarari rent. ———S. 2 (12)—Mesne profits—Assessment—Principle of.

In assessing mesne profits the Court should take into consideration what the deft. gained by the cultivation of the land and not merely what the plaintiff lost by being deprived of possession. "Mesne profits" in S. 2 (12) includes also interest on mesne profits. (Stephen and Richardson, JJ.) ANUKUL CHANDRA CHAKRABARTI v. NABIN CHANDRA BOSE. 15 I.C. 1.

———S. 2 (12)—Mesne profits—How determined.

———S. 2 (12)—Mesne profits—Principle of assessment—Liability of joint wrong-doers.

Mesne profits should be assessed on the basis of what the persons in wrongful possession received or might with ordinary prudence have received; but not on what the owner was actually receiving before his eviction. The liability of joint wrong-doers is joint and several. (Mitra and Geidt, JJ.) BIRESSHUR DUTT v. BARODA PROSAD RAY. 11 I.C. 504 = 15 C.W.N. 823.

———S. 2 (12)—Principle of assessment—Mesne profits.

The correct principle for the assessment of mesne profits is that the letting value of the property should be determined. The value of the use of the property is the mesne profits and not what the deft. actually gained. (Mookerjee and Coxe, JJ.) KAMINI KUMAR RAI v. KRISHNA CHANDRA SAHA. 10 I.C. 312 = 15 C.L.J. 93.

———S. 2 (12)—Mesne profits—Who can claim.

A plff. may recover mesne profits even when he is out of possession but he must at least show that he has a right to immediate possession. If he fails to prove such a right and it is found that the deft. is in possession, the suit will be dismissed with cost. (Chitty and Chatterjee, JJ.) ELAHI BAKHSH MANDAL v. RAM NARAYAN GHOSE. 10 I.C. 117 = 16 C.W.N. 288.

———S. 2 (12)—Mesne profits—Liability to pay interest—Rate of interest.

The very definition of mesne profits includes not merely the profits of immoveable property but also interest on such profits. Where the lower Court for proper reasons awards 12 per cent interest on mesne profits the appellate Court will not disturb it. (Shadi Lal, C.J.) CHHABER SINGH v. RADHU RAM. 68 I.C. 807 = 4 Lah. ———S. 2 (12)—Mesne profits—Interest on.

In a decree for possession with mesne profits the judgment-debtor should surrender possession sufficiently early to enable the decree-holder to cultivate the land and raise the crops thereon in order to avoid liability for mesne profits. ———S. 2 (12)—Mesne profits—Basis of claim.

The essence of a claim for mesne profits is that it rests upon an agreement implied in law that when one person occupies property of another, he must be deemed to have tacitly assented to the condition that he is liable for an occupation rent in respect of that occupation. ———S. 2, Cl. 12—Mesne profits—Measure of.

In calculating mesne profits the real question is what is the loss sustained by the plaintiff on account of the infringement of his right by the defendant for which he is to be compensated. In other words what is the benefit which the plaintiff would have derived from the possession of his land during the period of his dispossession by the defendant. This benefit may be according to the circumstances either the letting in value or the cultivation profits of the land. If it is a case where cultivation profits are to be awarded they have to be ascertained according to the definition in the Code. The principle upon which the question whether letting value or cultivation profits are to be awarded depends is as follows:—The loss of the party wrongfully kept out of possession must generally be measured by the actual usufruct of the land during that time on occupation of the same character as that of the party wrongfully kept out of possession at the date of his ouster or of the last legal occupant whom the plaintiff claims to succeed to, if the plaintiff himself never entered into possession. 61 I.C. 543.

———S. 2 (12)—Mesne profits—Liability of abettor.

Mesne profits can only be recovered for the time the possession was actually retained by the deft, but if deft. is himself out of possession he is not liable for the profits which he has not received unless he has abetted the trespass by the person in actual possession. ———S. 2 (12)—Mesne profits—Mode of calculation.

Where the person dispossessed by a trespasser is himself ordinarily a cultivator of the land in dispute the profits to which he is entitled are those that the wrongful holder might have obtained by actual cultivation with due diligence. It is not open to a trespasser to dispossess an actual cultivator and then to sublet the land trespassed upon, to some third person, and then claim to compensate the rightful occupant only to the extent of what he may have obtained by sub-letting. Mesne profits against a trespasser can be awarded from the date of his actual trespass on the land and the same principle applies where the person against whom mesne profits are awarded is an assignee from a trespasser. Such a person is not liable for the period in which he was not in possession at all. Where the land from which a person is dispossessed is his private land within S. 120 of the Bengal Tenancy Act mesne profits should be calculated on the basis of the actual price of the produce less the costs of cultivation. Act of State.

———S. 9—Act of State—Non-feudatory—Zemindars—British subjects—Withdrawal of police—Excise functions by Government—Abolition of cattle pounds—Suit for their restoration, if competent.

In 1864 the British Govt. declared that the status of feudatory chief in the Central Provinces, whose territory had become British by conquest, cession or lapse, was that of ordinary British subjects to whom certain judicial and administrative powers had been entrusted as a matter of convenience or for economy of administration. Sanads recognising their property and rights were granted in 1874. The Govt. gradually withdrew from them the administration of police, excise and cattle pounds giving compensation for the consequent loss of revenue. In the settlement of 1903 the Govt. obtained the execution under protest of wajib-ul-arzes from the Zemindars consenting to the resumption of these functions by Govt. The Zemindars sued for annulment of these provisions and for the restoration of the rights which they alleged had been theirs from time immemorial of which they had been wrongfully deprived. Held, that the rights alleged had existed only by sufferance or delegation and the resumption of these functions by Govt. was a thing legitimately done in the exercise of its sovereign powers. Consequently an action was maintainable in a Civil Court with regard to such resumption. (Lord Macnaghten.) BIR BIKRAM DEO v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 39 Cal. 615=16 C W.N. 362=

Where some members of a caste refused to subscribe to a declaration of faith issued by the panchayat and instead, issued a leaflet calculated to bring the panchayat into contempt; there were social questions giving the panchayat jurisdiction to interfere and their temporary exclusion from social intercourse with other families is not contrary to natural justice. ——S. 9—Caste question—Religious office.

No right of property is conferred where a caste has appointed a man to a mere priestly office. His continuance or removal is exclusively in the power of the caste and it is a caste question. But it is different where the office of hereditary priest is created in certain families, for the performance of religious ceremonies. ———S. 9—Honours—Suit for exclusive conduct of festival—Claim to honours and perquisites—Right to worship in a particular manner—Civil nature.

A right to worship in a particular manner and with particular incidents attached to it, is a civil right and the Civil Court must adjudicate upon incidents connected with the exercise of such right. The right of a person to exclusively conduct a mandagappadi on the first day of a festival in a temple paying all the expenses himself, and receiving all the honours and emoluments of that right, is a civil right. A suit to establish such right is cognizable by Civil Courts as also a suit to enforce the claim for honours and perquisites where they have to be given as a matter of right to the mandapamdar. Per Krishnan, J:—The question whether an exclusive right to perform any festival in a temple is valid should be decreed on the facts of the case and the usage of the temple. They will be upheld subject to the right of the trustees to perform the festival, if the man claiming the exclusive right fails and the interests of the temple do not suffer. Trustees of a temple may make such arrangements as they think fit for the performance of any recognized ceremony therein and, if, in the bona fide and honest exercise of that discretion they give a permanent and exclusive right to any worshipper to perform any particular ceremony, the arrangement is perfectly valid if it is not injurious to the temple. Per Spencer, J.—The maintainability of a suit depends on the nature of the right asserted and the relief claimed. ———S. 9—Honours—Temple—Emolument attached to office.

S. 9 empowers Civil Courts to try only suits of a civil nature and the explanation shows that they cannot try questions as to religious rites or ceremonies (and religious honours, by parity of reasoning) but a suit would lie for the honours if they are attached to an office as emoluments. Courts should require strong evidence before attaching mere honours to a temple office. If the honours are shown to persons only as marks of pure grace of the Deity, they cannot be legally claimed by anybody as receivable by him in a temple. (Miller and Sadasiva Iyer, JJ.) Civil Courts can determine the order of precedence in the distribution of honours in a temple and can grant an injunction to persons having a right to the first honours to protect such right from being infringed upon by others who are entitled to the same honours subsequently. 32 Mad. 291 foll. Where a long established usage in a temple has determined the rights of particular persons to receive the first thirthams, such usage will be followed by Civil Courts, even though it may be an innovation on any prescribed rule of the Hindu Shastras, unless the text of the latter is of such coercive authority that it cannot be disobeyed. Courts have power in any matter of spiritual and temporal character to enquire into the laws or rules of the tribunal or authority which has inflicted the alleged injury. The jurisdiction of Courts depends upon the allegations made in the plaint and not upon those which may ultimately be found true. The allegations may, after the trial of the suit, be held to be unfounded and in that case, the suit would be dismissed, not because the Court had no jurisdiction, but because the allegation on which it was based were found to be untrue. At the same time the Court would have no jurisdiction merely because there was an assertion in the plaint that the act objected to was ultra vires. In the ordinary legal phraseology of religious institutions, the word 'Dharmakarta' means nothing more than a trustee; but it is sometimes used in a limited sense and the designation is, by force of immemorial custom, given to a particular functionary entrusted with certain rights and duties. Civil Courts are competent to give a declaration that a certain person is competent to perform the duties of an office. Power of Dharmakarta to fine an inferior spiritual dignitary should be strictly made out and proved and not merely presumed from his position and Civil Courts are competent to call in question the propriety of any such fine and to direct refund of the same. ——S. 10—'Having jurisdiction to grant the relief claimed'—Meaning of.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908), S. 10.

The words "Court having jurisdiction to grant the relief claimed" in S. 10, C. P. Code, have no reference to territorial jurisdiction. The rule as to stay of suit, though based on principles similar to those underlying the rule of res judicata is not part of the rule of res judicata. It is further intended to save inconvenience to parties of litigating over the same matter in two places especially when the two places are far apart. (Twomey, C.J. and Robinson, J.) KHEMCA v. BOGLA. 13 Bur. L.T. 19 = 37 I.C. 904 = 10 L.B.R. 154.

———S. 10—Stay of suit—Court having jurisdiction to grant relief.

For a stay of a suit under S. 10, C. P. Code, identity of the relief is no longer essential. If the matter in issue in the two suits is the same, the latter suit must be stayed without regard to the relief sought. The words "jurisdiction to grant the relief claimed" do not mean territorial jurisdiction and the latter suit must be stayed, if the matter in issue is the same as in the first suit, although the Court in which the first suit was instituted, has no territorial jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the latter suit. (Twomey, C.J. and Robinson, J.) M. BOGLA v. M. KHEMCA. 55 I.C. 254 = 12 Bur. L.T. 203.

———Ss. 10 and 11—Applicability of—Miscellaneous proceedings—Law of procedure.

The word "suit" in S. 10, C.P. Code, includes appeals and miscellaneous proceedings also. S. 141, C.P. Code, is wide enough to make the provisions of S. 10, C.P. Code, apply to arbitration proceedings One of the essential conditions to attract the applicability of S. 10, C.P. Code, is, that the same party must be concerned in both the proceedings or the parties under whom any of them claim, litigating under the same title. A decision in a former suit is not res judicata unless it was necessary for the decree in that suit. S. 11—Applicability and scope—Res judicata and Estoppal—Distinction.

The doctrine of res judicata is sometimes treated as a branch of the doctrine of estoppel and is referred to as estoppel by judgment. The doctrine of estoppel properly so called is dealt with in S. 115 of the Evidence Act. There is a difference in the principle upon which the two doctrines are based. Res judicata in this country is founded on the principle that there should be an end to litigation as to as any issue has been directly determined between them by a Court of competent jurisdiction; and it affects not only the original parties but all others afterwards claiming under them and litigating under the same title. It bars fresh litigation at the outset. Estoppel is a rule of evidence based on the principle that a man who by his acts or statement has induced another to believe a thing to be true should not afterwards be heard to deny the truth of that thing to the prejudice of the other who acted upon the belief so induced. ——S. 11—Co defendants —Res judicata—Partition suit.

Where an adjudication between the defendants is necessary to give the appropriate relief to the plaintiff, the adjudication will be res judicata between the defendants as well as between the plaintiff and defendants. But for this effect to arise, there must be a conflict of interests between the defendants and a judgment defining the real rights and obligations of the defendants inter se. Without necessity, a judgment will not be res judicata amongst defendants, nor will it be res judicata among them by mere inference from the fact that they have been collectively defeated in resisting a claim to a share made against them as a group. The test is whether there was a necessity to decide the point, whether as a matter of fact it was ever raised between co-defendants and whether it was decided. 11 Bom. 210 followed. Where in a partition suit none of the parties claimed or resisted partition except the plaintiff, any questions regarding partition which might thereafter arise between the defendants in that suit remains open to be decided. ——S. 11—Co-defendants — Essentials—No contest inter se.

In order that a finding in a case should be res judicata between co defendants, three factors are necessary ; (1) a conflict of interest between the co-defendants ; (2) a necessity to decide on that conflict in order to give to the plaintiff the relief appropriate to his suit ; and (3) a discussion in the judgment of the question raised as between the co-defendants. Where in a suit for money, a decree was passed against some only of the defendants, that decision could not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit between the defendants against whom the decree was passed and those against whom the suit was dismissed. Courts are generally unwilling to extend the doctrine of res judicata to co-defendants and where it has been applied, it has been applied with great caution. ——S. 11—Co-defendants—Decision between when res judicata.

As regards parties arrayed on the same side e. g., as co-defendants, an adjudication between them which is necessary to give the appropriate relief to the plaintiff is res judicata as between them, as well as between the plaintiff and the defendants, provided there is a conflict of interests between the defendants giving rise to a distinct issue between them and a judgment defining the real rights and obligations of the defendants. In order that a finding in a case be res judicata between the co-defendans three things are necessary, (1) there should be a conflict of interest between co defendants, (2) that it should be necessary to adjudicate upon the conflict in order to give appropriate relief to the plaintiff, and (3) that the judgment should in fact determine the rights and liabilities of the defendants inter se. (Abdul Roof and Moti Sagar, JJ.) SUKH DIAL v. MT. In a suit for pre-emption against B the female vendor and C, the purchaser, C admitted the rights of the pre-emptor but pleaded that full consideration had passed, B pleaded that the alleged sale was invalid as her husband A, who had sold the land as his wife's attorney has no authority to effect it. Her plea was successful and pre-emptor's suit was dismissed on the ground that A was not authorised to effect the sale. C subsequently sued B for possession of the land sold to him or in the alternative to recover the consideration-money paid to A. Held, that the question whether A had authority from B to effect the sale in dispute was not res judicata on the ground of the finding in the previous pre-emption suit. 3 A. 152, 9 C. ——S. 11—Co-defendants —Res judicata—Decision when operates as.

Where an adjudication between the defendants is necessary to give the appropriate relief to the plaintiff, there must be such an adjudication, and in such a case the adjudication will be res judicata between the defendants as well as between the plaintiff and defendants. But for this effect to arise, there must be a conflict of interests amongst the defendants and a judgment defining the real rights and obligations of the defendants inter se. Without necessity the judgment will not be res judicata amongst the defendants, nor will it be res judicata amongst them by mere inference from the fact that they have collectively been defeated in resisting a claim made against them as a group. Cottingham v. Earl of Shrewsbury, 3 Hare 627 ; 11 B. 216 foll. Subsequent to the execution of a mortgage in favour of the plff. by a Hindu father on behalf of himself and his two sons, a third son was born. In a suit for partition by the two sons against the father, the afterborn son, the mortgagee and many other defendants the trial judge held that the mortgage was not binding on the afterborn son as well as the plaintiffs in the suit and decreed a share to each of the sons. On appeal by the mortgagee impleading the father and the sons as respondents it was held that the mortgage was not binding on them. In a suit by the mortgagee against the father and sons, Held that the suit was barred on account of the decree in the prior suit. (*Schwabe, C. Where in certain land acquisition proceedings a dispute arose as to apportionment of compen

———Ss. 11 and 13—Competent Court—British Court—Res judicata in the Court of the Native State,

A Court in British India is not competent to try a suit in respect of property situated in the Native States and its judgment could not operate as res judicaia in the Court of a Native State. A foreign judgment may give a cause of action for a suit in a Court of British India but has no force or authority as such in such Court. (*Richards, and Tudball. The present suit was brought by the plaintiffs to eject the defendant from the holding in suit, the plaintiffs' case being that the tenants who held the land under them had no transferable interest in the same and had abandoned the holding after selling it to the defendant and that the latter, therefore had acquired under his purchase no right to the holding but was merely a trespasser. The defence was that the defendant was a tenant and could not be ejected as a trespasser. Another thing was the defendant relied upon a decision in a proceeding under S. 106 of the B.T. Act in his favour. The defendant was entered in the Record of Rights as tenant of the lands after purchasing the holding. Plaintiffs thereupon brought a suit under S. 106 of the B. T. Act for the correction of the entry, on the ground that the defendant was not a tenant. The Revenue Officer, under S. 106, decided that the defendant was a tenant and that the entry in the Record of Rights was correct, Held that the question whether the defendant was tenant or not was directly raised and decided in the proceedings under S. 106 of the B. The original mortgagors from whom plaintiff purchased the property subject to mortgage had sued the original mortgagees for redemption in 1896. That case had been tried by a Munsif, second class, who holding that the interest was a charge on the property decreed redemption on payment of Rs. 873. This decree had been varied on appeal by the Divisional Court, but the Trial Court's decree was restored by the Chief Court. Plaintiff in appeal against the decree of the Trial Court contended that the decision of the former suit by the Munsif who had power up to Rs. 500 could not be res judicata or estop him from urging that according to the terms of the mortgage deed itself, the interest was not a charge on the property as held by the Trial Court. Held, the Munsif of the second class in the former case had no jurisdiction in law to try the case. C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 11—Connected suits.

——— S. 11—Connected suits—Appeal against one—Bar by res judicata.

The doctrine of res judicata applies to all the stages of a suit till it is finally terminated and the doctrine is not confined to the Court of first instance. It applies equally to the procedure on a first as well as second appeal. The expression former suit means a previously decided suit and the same rule applies to appeals. It is not the priority in the commencement of one action that renders the judgment obtained therein a bar to the recovery of a second judgment in another, but because the first judgment, when given whether in the action commenced first or last, it extinguishes the original cause of action and gives to the plaintiff in lieu thereof one of the higher nature. Where there were two suits in the primary court, decided by a common judgment and an appeal is preferred only in the first suit, while none is preferred from the decree in the second suit, the decree made in the latter becomes final and operates as res judicata. Both the suits were dismissed on the ground of estoppel by virtue of a deed of relinquishment executed by the plaintiff in favour of his brothers. Plaintiff appealed only in the case in which he claimed a share in the property left by his deceased brother. It was objected that as he did not appeal from the case in which he claimed a share in the charity fund, the question of estoppel was res judicata. Held this objection is untenable, as the decision in the other case that the plaintiff was estopped by the deed of release from claiming a share in the charity fund does not affect the question whether he is estopped from claiming a share in the estate of one of his brothers, who died subsequently to the execution of that deed. Plaintiffs sued defendants for an injunction restraining them from building on the disputed land alleging it to be the common property of the parties. The plea of the defendants was that the land was exclusively their own. A subsequent suit was instituted by defendants against plaintiff, in which defendants, inter alia claimed an injunction against plaintiffs restraining them from allowing water to flow on the disputed land to which the plaintiffs answered that they were joint owners of the land with plaintiffs and that they had a right of easement. The plaintiffs' suit was dismissed on the finding that the defendants were sole owners of the land in dispute. In the suit filed by defendants the court found in favour of the easement alleged by the plaintiffs, and dismissed that suit. Plaintiffs appealed against the decree dismissing their suit and there was no appeal from the decree in the other suit. Held that the consideration of the issue as to ownership of the land was not barred by res judicata, since that question ceased to be substantially in issue in the second suit by reason of the finding on the question of the easement right. 33 A. 51 Dist. Where a document creating the relationship of landlord and tenant has been once construed, that construction is res judicata for all time. If such a deed upon construction of which the rent for subsequent years depends, was not produced for the construction of the Court, the decision in default of that construction will be constructive res judicata as to the rate of rent. There is nothing to prevent a succession of applications directed against persons who are ascertained to be, or beleived to be partners in the particular venture out of which the decree has arisen. The limitation however that is imposed on all these applications, is that if there has been a previous application in which there has been a definite decision affecting a particular piece of property or particular person, and from that decision nothing has been done by way of appeal or institution of suit, if neither of these methods were available that decision is a final decision between the parties and if in any subsequent proceedings, the point again becomes material, the parties are bound by that previous decision, and the matter cannot be re-opened. C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 11—Execution Proceedings.

A preliminary decree for sale was passed on a mortgage by the court of first instance, reversed by the appellate court, but finally restored with costs throughout by the High Court. When the decree was made final, the costs awarded by the High Court were not included therein and it was in effect the decree of the court of first instance that was made final. On an application for execution being put in, part of the decree amount was paid, and time taken for paymant of the balance. As the money was not paid in time, a second execution application was put in, claiming for the first time the costs awarded by the High Court also. Two objections were raised (i. e.,) the final decree as passed could not be executed as the only decree that could be made final was the appellate decree of the High Court and (2) the execution court could not add the further amount claimed by way of costs.

Held, on the first point, as the objection was not raised when the first execution application was put in it was barred by res judicata ; and on the second point the execution court can only add execution costs, and it cannot add to or amend the final decree which had been passed in the case. Per Walsh, J :--The previous order would operate as a bar to allow the decree-holder to enjoy a preliminary attempt to execute the decree by attachment and to reap the benefit thereof if successful and on failure thereof to fall back upon O. 21, R. 50 (2) would be contrary to the principle of the decision of the Privy Council in 6 A. 269. An order, passed without notice to the judgment-debtor, returning an execution application to the decree-holder for amendment as it adopted a wrong method of calculation of the amount due is appealable. The decree-holder who fails to appeal against such an order is barred from adopting the same method of calculation in any subsequent application, as the order is similar to the dismissal of a suit as time barred without notice to defendant. ——S. 11—Execution proceedings— Order that application is not time barred—Res judicata

Where an execution application was rejected on the ground that it was not in accordance with law and the decree-holder acquiesced in this order and did not appeal, held that the order was final and could not be questioned in further proceedings. Though orders in execution proceedings do not come directly within the language of what is now S. 11 of the Civil Procedure Code yet such orders if not appealed from, are binding on the parties in subsequent proceedings on principles analogous to those of res judicata strictly so called. When a competent Court has decided, even though wrongly, that an execution application was not time barred, that order could not be questioned in subsequent execution proceedings. (*Batten, J. ——S. 11—Heard and finally decided—Obiter dictum.

A, a khoja Mahomedan of Bombay, governed by Hindu Law in matters of succession, was in possession of certain property. In 1884, one of A's sons sued A and another of his sons for partition of his property in A's possession. The two main questions in the suit were, whether the property in the hands of A was ancestral and as such belonging to the joint family and whether, if so, the son could, during his father's life-time claim a partition. The original Court decided both the questions in favour of the son. A preferred an appeal. The Appellate Court found that it was not proved that, according to the general custom of the parties, the son could demand partition of ancestral property. The Appellate Court expressed an opinion that the property was not ancestral In a subsequent suit between A and his issue A contended that the question as to the property not being ancestral was res judicata. In the latter suit, besides the two sons who were parties in the previous suit, another son and a grandson of A were impleaded, the former as well as the latter's father was alive in 1884 but they were not impleaded in the former suit, Held, that the question that the property was not ancestral was not res judicata, because, in the first place, the opinion of the Appellate Court on the character of the property in the previous suit was mere obiter dictum, and secondly, the decision could not be binding on the son and grandson who were not parties to that suit. 13 B. 534 cons. and discussed. 24 C. 900 dist. The plaintiff and contended that the plea was raised in a previous suit for arrears of rent and the Patta was found to be a proper one. Held, (per Sankaran Nair, J.) :— There being no express finding nor any implied decision in the previous suit, regarding the title to the land covered by the Patta the question was not res judicata. Cases dealt with by S. 11, can be divided in two classes, viz. trials of suits and trials of issues. In cases of the former class the suit is either dismissed or decreed and a question not expressly decided may be dealt with impliedly in such cases. In the latter class of cases there can be no implied decision and there must be express finding, to create a bar of res judicata. To hold that an issue was raised, the matter must be alleged by one and denied by the other party, and there must be a finding of the court thereon. Where there is no such finding the question can be raised in a subsequent suit. It is not necessary for the plaintiff to sue on all causes of action. After failing in one he can pass on to another. ——S. 11—Head and decided—Dismissal for default.

The dismissal of a suit under O. 9, R. 8, C. P. Code is not intended to operate in favour of the defendant as res judicata. The application of principle of res judicata cannot be avoided by a defendant on the ground that he did not appear at the trial, but the conclusive effect of the decision must be confined to the point actually decided in the suit. 16 Cal. 300 (F. B.) foll. (Darke Brockman, J. C.) TIKARAM v. RAMACHANDRA. 54 I. C. 789.

——S. 11 — Heard and finally decided—Meaning of—Dismissal on technical ground.

To conclude a plaintiff by a plea of res judicata it is necessary to show not only that there was a former suit between the same parties for the same matter upon the same cause of action but also that there was a decision finally granting or witholding the relief sought. 3 M. H. C. R. 84, foll. If a suit has been dismissed on some purely technical ground such as the frame of the suit rendering it unmaintainable, then a subsequent suit is not barred. 8 C. P. L. R. 3 foll. Though a decree read by itself may be an unconditional dismissal of the suit we are entitled to look at the judgment to see what was actually decided. (Mittra, A. J. C.) DEODHAR v. THAKUR NIHALSINGH. 47 I. C. 909.

——S. 11—Heard and decided—Prior suit dismissed on preliminary point.

A question not directly in issue in a previous suit which had been dismissed in a preliminary point cannot be res judicata in a subsequent suit between the parties unless there has been a judicial determination expressly or impliedly on the matter. 28 Cal. 17, 24 Cal. 711 rel. ——S. 11—Heard and decided—Dismissal of suit as premature—Second suit—Limitation.

There is no res judicata where the decision in the previous suit merely amounted to this that on the plaintiff's own contention, the claim then made was premature and there is no decision of the plea that the claim was even then time-barred or not: 11 Cal, 301 Ref. to. There was no estoppel by defendant's plea in the former case as plaintiff's position had in no way been affected by it, for it limitation ran from the date of sale the claim was then already barred, (Skinner, A.J.C.) RAMJI v. SHEIKH MANSUR. 15 I. He was made a party but ultimately the decree was given only against plaintiffs and defendants 2 and 3. As regards the defendant No. 1 it was said that his name was not entered in the papers where he was recorded as a sub-tenant only. The question whether he was a partner was pronounced to be one for a Civil Court and he was discharged from the suit. Held in plaintiff's suit, there is no res judicata here. What was decided by the Revenue Court was that the taluqdars were entitled to get the relief they sought from the plaintiffs whom they themselves had named, and who were the only ones entered in the revenue papers. In a suit on a mortgage of 1893 the High Court held in August, 1908, that the deed of mortgage was void and had no effect, on account of want of attestation as required by S. 59, T. P. Act. On 24th June, 1908, Govt. had by a notification excluded certain districts including the district to which the case belonged from the operation of S. 59, T. P. Act and given that notification a retrospective effect from 1893. Plff. thereupon brought another suit to enforce his mortgage : Held, that the suit was barred by res judicata. The Govt. notification did not remove the case out of the principle of res judicata as defendants had acquired as against the plaintiff a vested right under the decree of the High Court. The decree of the High Court was still subsisting and was not affected by Govt. notification although the notification operated retrospectively also. The notification could not put an end to rights which had been judicially declared and had become merged in decrees. A Govt. notification cannot have higher force than a rule of law. A decision that is contrary to law when that expression is used in the wide sense attributed to it, as for example in S. 100 of the Code, may or may not have the force of res judicata. ——S. 11—Issue of law—Mixed question of law and fact.

Where the parties seek to litigate the same cause of action as had been decided in a previous suit the rule of res judicata applies in its entirety. But where the dispute though relating to matters which have already been in controversy in a previous suit is based on a distinct cause of action the estoppel ought to be limited to matters distinctly put in issue and should further be restricted to questions of fact or mixed question of fact and law and should not be extended to questions of law. 11 C.L J. 46 foll. A decision on a question of law may be res judicata but an erroneous decision on a question of law cannot be allowed to operate as res judicata so as to prevent a Court from deciding the same question on its arising between the same parties in a subsequent suit. ——S. 11—Issue of law—Custom—Fact.

The existence of a custom is a question of fact and an erroneous decision on that point between the same parties operates as res judicata even though the subsequent suit relates to properties other than those involved in the prior suit. If, however, the decision was not necessary to the prior suit it does not operate as res judicata in the subsequent suit. A redemption suit was dismissed under O. 9, R. 2, but before dismissal the issue of limitation was decided in favour of plaintiff. ——S. 11—Issue of law—Reference to pleadings.

Whether a matter has been dealt with and adjudicated upon is to be determined by a reference to the plaint, written statement, the issues and the judgment. An issue of law may be res judicata of the cause of action in the subsequent suit if it is the same as that in the former suit. The operation of a decree as res judicata so far at any rate as the subject-matter of a direct adjudication contained in the decree is concerned can in no way be attacked in the absence of fraud or collusion, by the fact that the decision was based on a mistake of law. As between the parties thereto it must be held to be binding and to operate as res judicata. (Seshagiri Aiyar and Moore, JJ.) VENKATA SUBBAN PATTER v. AYYATURAI.

——S. 11—Issue of law—Mixed question of law and fact—Res judicata as regards finding of a right to levy of cess.

Plaintiff sued his tenants to recover cess in 1902 with the result that the Munsiff decided against plff. A similar suit between the same parties on the same subject in 1905 ended with a similar decision. On appeal against this decision the Dt. Judge reversed the decision. A second appeal having been preferred, it was held that the decision of the Dt. Munsiff in 1902 was res judicata, and also that the decision of the High Court in 1912 that that decision was res judicata was also res judicata. What is meant exactly by "mixed question of fact and law" in the convenient proposition that the doctrine of res judicata does not apply to a case of mixed question of fact and law? The answer depends on the frame of the issues in the case. Any issue involving both questions of law and of fact must be so split up as to admit of a pure issue of law being framed on the hypothesis of a finding of fact one way or another. A decision on an abstract question of law is not res judicata but a decision on the construction of a document as settling the rights of parties is res judicata. In a previous suit a decision was given in favour of plaintiff pre-emptor, though a descendant of a remote ancestor of vendor, that he was entitled to inherit vendor's property. When the vendor again sold another property, plaintiff and another pre-emptor filed suits. The suit of the latter was decreed and upheld in appeal and in view of the decision the trial Court dismissed plaintiff's suit and the appellate Court decided on merits that the previous judgment was not of binding effect in determining plaintiff's status as a pre-emptor as it held the decision was wrong. Held, on the one hand plaintiff and vendor pro forma defendant in the first case and on the other plaintiff and the present vendees in this suit, both suits being pre-emption suits, cannot be said to be parties litigating under the same title. As the vendees did not claim under the vendor, plaintiff did not and could not challenge vendee's right to own and possess the land in suit and his claim would therefore amount to asking the vendees to re-transfer in his favour the land in suit in virtue of the decision in the previous suit. The previous decision was based on the wrong view of law that a person descended from a remote ancestor of the vendor of altogether unknown degree is a person entitled to inherit the vendor's property. 34 P. The plaintiff sold his property to the defendant on the 16th March, 1906, but continued in possession as tenant. The defendant agreed by a satekhat executed on the 13th August 1906, to resell the property to the plaintiff at any time within twelve years for Rs. 395 and received Rs. 5 as earnest money. The plaintiff sued in 1911 to redeem the property, under S. 10-A of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act, 1879, alleging that the sale was a mortgage. The suit failed. The plaintiff sued again in 1918 to recover the property on payment of Rs. 395 under the satekhat. A question having arisen whether the second suit was barred as res-judicata, held, that the second suit was not barred by res judicata, for the plaintiff was not bound in the first suit to have sued also for specific performance. The two suits were mutually inconsistent and if the plaintiff failed in proving the mortgage, he still had a number of years left under the satekhat within which he could have sued to get back the property on payment of the consideration mentioned in the satekhat. capacities provided that they might and ought to have been made grounds of attack. The question as to whether a plaintiff can or cannot bring a second suit depends upon whether (1) he could have based his former suit upon the same cause of action, and (2) whether he ought to have so based it. In the first case he can escape from the operation of S. 11 and from O. 2, R. 2, if he can show that he was, when he instituted the first suit, actually unaware of his second cause of action. In the second case he can similarly escape from the operation of those sections if he can show that he could not unite his two causes of action in a single suit without inconsistency and confusion. Held, that the Court had to determine three points—(a) whether the plaintiff in the first suit did actually put forward his alleged claim as a heir as a basis for his suit, (b) whether, if he did not, he was unaware at the time that he could also claim as an heir, and (c) whether, although he knew of this second cause of action as an heir he was nevertheless unable to combine it with his cause of action as a vendee without inconsistency and confusion. ———S. 11—Might and ought — Alternative claims—Test to determine whether the defence ought to have been raised.

A matter which ought to be raised but which, as a matter of fact, is not raised in a suit cannot be decided in specific terms in that suit. But this fact cannot be fatal to the plea of res judicata If the effect of the decision in a former suit is necessarily inconsistent with the defence that ought to have been raised but has not been raised, that defence must be deemed to have been finally decided against the person who ought to have raised it. Where it was open to the plaintiffs in their defence in the former suit to claim in the alternative, that they had a vested right in half the property in suit, but they were content to plead a partition whereby they became owners of the whole and in the result their defence failed and it was held that the property belonged to their father. Held, that this decision was necessarily inconsistent with the alternative defence that might and ought to have been raised. 13 C.W.N. 513 foll. The point for determination in the case was whether the present suit was res judicata by reason of a former suit. Both the suits were instituted in the same Court between the same parties and the subject-matter was the same. In the former suit the plaintiff claimed title to three pieces of land as having been given to him by his father who at the time of that suit was dead. It was held that the gift was not valid. In the present suit he sued as the aurasa son of his father and mother, claiming a half share in the same three pieces of land. Held, that the plaintiff should in the former suit have made in the alternative the claim which he made in the present suit and that by reason of his omission to do so the present

The case was decided against him and he brought another suit for recovery of the same money as compensation for services rendered. Held, that the second suit was barred as res judicata. The matter directly and substantially in issue in the first suit was whether the defendant owed the plaintiff any sum on account of the use by him of the plaintiff's boats. The plaintiff ought to have made the objection a ground of attack in the former suit because all the facts on which the second suit was based were known to the plaintiff at the time of the former suit. Where the defendant (mortgagor) deposited the amount due on the mortgage under S. 83 of the T. P. Act and the mortgagee plaintiffs appeared in answer to the notice of the deposit sent to them under S. 84 of the T.P. Act, the only reason they gave for refusing to accept it as sufficient was that it did not include interest up to the date on which they were summoned to appear in Court. There was no suggestion that it was not the full amount due for principal and interest on the date on which the deposit was made. In a subsequent suit on the mortgage the plaintiffs claimed a much larger amount than was deposited as due under the mortgage. Held, on the principle embodied in S. 11 (Expl. 4) of the C. P. After the widow's death the defendant, who is the Rajah of Basti, brought a suit against the reversioner and the other transferees including the plaintiff, for possession of the entire property. The present plaintiff set up a claim as mortgagee but the suit was decreed. ——S. 11, Expln. IV—Might and ought—Grounds of attack—Test.

The test, whereby to determine whether it ought to have been matter of attack is this : are the matters so dissimilar that their union might lead to confusion ? Where the plaintiff might have, in the former suit, put in the claim, that he made in the subsequent suit as an alternative claim, and if he did so, there would have been no confusion, and all questions relating to his title in the property would have been completely and finally determined. Held, he ought to have made the claim that he made in the subsequent suit as a ground of attack in the former suit, and for this reason, the subsequent suit must be held to be res judicata. Where plaintiff claims title to the certain property, in proving his title to that property he ought to put forward all means of attack in his armoury. S. 11 omits all references to the cause of action. A plaintiff's cause of action is a very different thing from his title; the one being something done contrary to a persons interest which obliges him to seek the aid of the Court, the other the proof that that something affords him a valid ground for relief. The mortgagor objected on the ground that under the sanad the properties were not transferable and pleaded that the matter was res judicata by reason of the decision in the suit. Held, overruling the plea, that so long as the mortgagee did not seek to avoid the operation of the prior decree by attempting to sell the mortgaged properties, he was entitled to ask for an adjudication on the question whether, under the terms of the sanad, the properties sought to be attached were inalienable though, his plea could only be supplied by arguments to prove that the prior decision was erroneous. Where one suit for partition of some of the joint family properties was brought and disposed of another suit for partition of the remaining properties does not lie even though the properties comprised in the later suit are within the jurisdiction of a District Munsif other than the one in whose Court the prior suit was brought. There is nothing in Ss. 16 and 17 of the Code of Civil Procedure to give a person power to bring two suits in two Courts for the partition of properties under different jurisdictions so as to contravene the principle involved in S. 11 Expl. 4 and O. 2, R. 2 of the Code. A suit for partition of joint family property is a comprehensive ascertainment of the assets including immoveable properties belonging to the family and the liabilities to be satisfied out of those assets : and it is settled law that only one suit for partition would lie. The plaintiff who succeeded his mother sued in 1912, to recover possession of the land on the ground that the defendants had ceased to render service and in the alternative to recover assessment of the lands. Held, that the prior decision barred the suit as res judicata for the plaintiff inherited the estate from the previous holder on conditions of formal resumption and re-grant by Government free from debts and charges under the Saranjam rules. ——S. 11—Parties and representatives—Mortgagor and mortgagee—Decree whether binds mortgagee.

During the minority of defendant No. 1 his land was sold by his mother to Bhoje who conveyed it to Bavchi in exchange; Bavchi mortgaged it to plaintiff in 1891. Defendant No. 1 on attaining majority brought a suit in 1898 against his mother Bhoje and Bavchi to set aside the sale but did not join the plaintiff in the suit. The Court decreed in defendant No. 1's favour and in execution he recovered possession of the land in 1901. About that time the plaintiff obtained a mortgage decree against Bavchi and he purchased the land at a Court sale held under it. The plaintiff having sued to recover possession of the property was met by the plea of res judicata, as he was bound by the decree against his mortgagor Bavchi in 1898:—Held, that the plaintiff was not bound by the earlier decision, because his title arose prior to the suit decreed against his mortgagor. The mortgagor Bavchi did not sufficiently represent the mortgagee in the suit instituted after the mortgage. 8 All. 324 Ref. C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 11—Parties.

There is no precise position ascribable to purchaser at a patni sale and he is not in privy to the estate to a defaulting proprietor, and does not derive his title from him because under S. 11, of the Patni Regulation he acquires property free from all encumbrances that might have been created by the defaulter, his representatives or assignees. The purchaser, can, therefore, successfully sue his tenant for rent subsequently to that of the defaulting proprietor as he could not establish his relationship with the then deft. as landlord and tenant. The previous suit does not bar his suit on the principle of res judicata. Limitation for ejectment proceedings taken by the purchaser begins from the date when his purchase became final. A person's interest in the property held adversely for the statutory period is an incumbrance. Therefore a purchaser at patni sale need not annul an incumbrance of a trespasser, dispossessing a defaulting patnidar. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) SATISH CHANDRA SINHA v. MUNJANALI DEBI.

To a suit by a Hindu widow for the recovery of the property of her husband from a person who claimed to be his validly adopted son, persons, who were presumptive reversionary heirs of the estate, were made parties defendants. The first Court found against the adoption and decreed the suit The alleged adopted son preferred an appeal making the widow alone a party respondent. The appellate court found in favour of the adoption and dismissed the widow's suit. In a subsequent suit filed after the death of the widow by the reversioners who were parties defendant to the prior suit against the adopted son. Held that, whatever might have been the character in which plaintiffs were impleaded in the prior suit, inasmuch as the widow represented the estate in the appeal therein, the decision in the appeal was res judicata in favour of the adopted son, there being no suggestion of fraud or collusion between the widow and the adopted son in the proceedings in the suit or appeal. A decree fairly and properly obtained against a Hindu widow in possession of her husband's estate is, in the absence of fraud or collusion, binding on the reversionary heir, and where in a suit the merits are tried and the trial is fair and honest, a Hindu lady does not cease to represent her husband's estate merely owing to a personal disability or disadvantage as litigant A suit by a Hindu widow for a declaration that she had not validly adopted the deft as a son to her deceased husband was dismissed on the ground among others that by her own acts she was personally estopped from denying the validity of the adoption. It was also found that the adoption was otherwise valid. On the death of the widow the next reversioner sued to eject the adopted son alleging he had not been validly adopted ; held, that though the rule of res judicata as enacted in S. 11 of the C P. A suit by a reversioner for a declaration that an alienation made by a Hindu widow in possession is without legal necessity and inoperative beyond her lifetime, is brought by him not for his personal benefit but in a representative capacity, that is, as representing the whole body of reversioners, for the protection of the estate and to remove an apprehended injury to the common interests of all the reversioners. A decree, in such a suit is, therefore, binding; if obtained after a fair contest and, in the absence of fraud and collusion, not only between the reversioner who brought the suit and the transferee, but also as between the whole body of reversioners on the one hand and the transferee or his representative in title on the other. This is so, not because one reversioner must, in that case, be deemed to claim title through another but because the reversioner who sues represents the others and Explanation VI of S. 11 comes into operation inasmuch as the right claimed by the presumptive reversioner who sues is a right to demand that the estate be kept intact and free from danger during its enjoyment by the widow, and is claimed in common for himself, and all the members of the reversionary body. The karnavan of a tarwad brought a suit for the recovery of certain property on the ground that the tarwad was entitled to them as the heir of the last owner. The Court dismissed the suit on the ground that the last owner of the property followed the Makkathayam Law and that the plaintiff was not proper heir under that law. In a subsequent suit by the junior members of the tarwad for recovery of the property held by the last owner as Uralan held that the decision in the prior suit that the last owner followed Makkathayam Law and that therefore the plaintiff's tarwad was not the heir was res judicata and the present suit was therefore unsustainable (*Schwabe, C. ———S. 11, Expln. VI—Representative suit—Hindu widow—Decision against—When binding on reversioners.

Whether the widow represented the inheritance in a litigation against her may be gathered from the nature of the defence put forward and the issues raised, tried and decided in the former suit. The mere allegation that she did or did not, would be of little value. Was the suit based upon a mere personal cause of action by or against the widow ? Was it a ground personal to the female heir that was taken in a previous suit ? Was it a claim by or against the widow personally or the inheritance which she represented ? To decide these questions the Court must examine the averments, the issues and the findings in the previous suit. If the contentions raised are those connected with the inheritance and the trial was with reference to them the widow must be held to be representing the estate; if not the litigation must be deemed personal to her and not binding upon the reversioners. C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 11—Representative suit.

A suit for setting the amount of Kattubadi due from an agraharam is one in which all the agraharamdars are necessarily interested and the decision therein is, if the litigation is conducted bona fide, binding on all agraharamdars by virtue of Expln. VI of S. 11. Cases in which a party is represented at one stage of the suit and afterwards ceases to be represented owing to a failure to bring his legal representative on the record are not exceptions to the rule laid down by the explanation. Courts should hesitate to hold that any litigation had been bona fide within Expln. VI to S. 11 in which there had been a substantial departure from the accepted rules as to the joinder of parties as for instance by suing without the leave of the Court in a case properly falling under O. 1, R 8. The failure of the plffs. in the prior suit to implead the legal representatives of a party could not in the circumstances of the case be said to constitute such a want of bona fides as to render the explanation inapplicable. In a previous suit instituted by plaintiffs against defts. it was found that the site was a public one, but the suit was dismissed on the ground that no special damage was alleged and the present suit was brought by the plffs. after obtaining the requisite sanction under S. 91 of the C. P. Code; defts. pleaded right of way. Held that the finding in the previous suit operated as res judicata in the present suit. Apart from the law of res judicata a party who has been defeated on a particular view of the facts of the case put forward by him should not be allowed to resile from that position and to raise a defence inconsistent with his original contentions and should be held estopped from questioning the judgment to which he was a party. 36 Mad. 141 Rel. ——S. 11, Expln. VI, and O. 1, R. 8—Representative suit—Common rights—Suit to establish a private common right and individual right—Subsequent suit for establishment of same private common right only.

The expln. VI is not confined to cases in which the prior suit was brought with the permission of the Court under O 1, R. 8 thereof. The explanation applies though the prior suit was for the establishment of the plaintiff's individual right in addition to the right claimed by him in common to himself and others in so far as his claim in respect of the latter right is concerned. The decision in a suit by an agraharamdar of a village for establishing the joint right of himself and other agraharamdars of the village (some of whom were made parties, as defendants) in some sites in the village and the plaintiff's exclusive right of way over the sites and ejecting the defendants in the suit from those sites and for delivery of joint possession of the entire sites to the plaintiff and the other agraharamdars and for an injunction as regards the right of way, bars a subsequent suit by other agraharamdars against the defendants in the prior suit and the other agraharamdars for ejecting the said defendants from the same sites and for delivery of possession thereof jointly to the plaintiffs and the other agraharamdars; the expln. VI applies though one of the plaintiffs in the subsequent suit was not a party to the prior suit and was allowed to come in as a co plaintiff by order of Court.

——S. 11 (Expln. VI)—Representative Suit—Suit against Hindu widow—Decree when binding on reversioners.

When a Hindu reversioner brings a suit against a widow in possession of her husband's estate for a declaration that a will set up by her as having been executed by her husband is a forgery the suit is brought by the reversioner to protect an interest common to the entire reversionary body, Expln. VI to S. 11, C.P Code is applicable and the decision if obtained after fair contest must necessarily bind all the reversioners and it is not open to the reversioner who may happen to be entitled when the succession opens to claim to have the matter reagitated. To hold otherwise would be to let in the very mischief which the Expln. was enacted to avoid. On grounds of public policy it would be highly mischievous that a question of fact which was decided after full contest as between the reversioners on the one hand and the widow on the other should be liable to be reopened as between other representatives of the same sets of rival claimants after a lapse of time. 38 M. 406, P. ——S. 11 — Representative suit— Hindu widow—Decree against, when binds reversion.

A Hindu widow cannot be deemed to represent her husband's estate so as to bind the reversionary heirs of her husband in relation to anything which she may have done herself to the prejudice of these reversionary heirs. She represents the estate as against the strangers for the purpose of protecting or preserving it. A decree obtained by a mortgagee against a Hindu widow alone, on the basis of a mortgage not executed by her for legal necessity cannot bind the reversioners. ——S. 13—Foreign court—Suit on judgment of—Plea of want of jurisdiction—Merits, if open.

When a suit is brought in British India on a foreign judgment and a plea is brought forth that the foreign court had no jurisdiction but it is found the defendants appeared and contested the claim, the plea is open. The general rule in such case is that one court which entertains a suit on a foreign judgment cannot institute an enquiry into the merits of the original action or the propriety of the decision. ——S. 13—Foreign Court—Fraud—Effect of.

Where the decision in a Foreign Court was obtained between the widow and the alleged son of the deceased, it must be held that the widow completely represented the estate and that any decision between the parties in that suit, provided there was a direct adjudication upon the point, is conclusive between them and between their successors-in title, provided also that the judgment is not disqualified by any of the flaws set forth in S. 13 of the Code. Per :—Abdur Rahim, Offg. C.J. (Phillips, J. dissenting). A judgment of a French Indian Court removing trustees appointed by the will of a testator and appointing new ones, cannot be enforced by an action in a Br. Court for possession of properties covered by the will and situated in Br. India especially when the Letters of Administration have been granted in Br. India to defendants, the first trustees. ——S. 13— Jurisdiction — Submission to—Foreign Court—Effect.

The fact of having taken an objection to the jurisdiction of the foreign court, in the lower court is vitiated by the fact that the same plea was not raised in the appellate court and hence this conduct implied submission to the jurisdiction of the foreign court. ——S. 13—Estoppel by judgment.

If all who have a right to appear and be heard in a cause, have been duly made parties, the judgment establishes a perfect and complete right against all as much as would a conveyance of a joint estate by all the parties interested. Judgment in an action strictly in personam indeed binds third persons in that way; all that is necessary is that all those who have the exclusive right to litigate the cause are proper parties to it and that the question should be determined without collusion. Where a question relating to ownership of a land, was entirely between A. and B. and the former obtained a judgment against the latter and the latter sued the Secretary of State for a declaration that the land was not liable to assessment. Held that the suit could not be maintained for want of title which the plaintiff was barred from claiming owing of the judgment in a previous suit. All cases of estoppel by judgment are not covered by S. 13, C.P.C. (Sundara Aiyar and Phillips, JJ.) SAYAM RAMAMOORTHI DORA v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL. 24 M L J. 469 : 19 I.C. 656 : 36 M. 141.

——S. 13—Foreign judgment—Jurisdiction—Partnership suit—Service on agent within jurisdiction and out of jurisdiction in foreign territory on non-resident partners.

The circumstances that give a court jurisdiction to entertain a suit on a foreign judgment and to render the defendants liable thereon are alternative (1) the defendant being a foreign subject (2) his residence in a foreign country (3) his selection of forum (4) his submission by appearance and (5) his contract to submit. Judgment against a firm does not amount to a personal decree against the members thereof residing in foreign territory. A service on the agent within jurisdiction cannot create jurisdiction in a foreign court against non-resident partners on the ground of residence. But when there has been submission to the forum by the partners for many years, a decree against them can be personally enforced against them. S. 13 should be determined by the International Law and not by the law of that country. If the defendant submits to the jurisdiction of a foreign Court and takes the chance of a judgment in his favour then the decree is binding but if he appears not voluntarily but under decrees or coercive process he is said to have not appeared. In a suit on a foreign judgment the plaintiff need not state that the Court had jurisdiction over the parties or the cause, every presumption being made in favour of the foreign judgment. The defendant must prove that none of the conditions which would give jurisdiction was present. If the parties were not present it will be presumed they submitted to the judgment. (*Wallis, C. The nature of a suit depends upon the relief asked for, in the plaint. A suit for specific performance is not a suit for land or for the determination of any right to or interest in immoveable property. ——S. 16 (e)—Suit for mesne profits—Land situated outside British India.

A British Indian Court can entertain a suit to recover mesne profits of lands situated outside British India, against a defendant residing within its jurisdiction. The proviso to S. 16 makes it clear that even although a wrong to immoveable property is alleged, yet where the relief sought can be entirely obtained through the defendant's personal obedience, then the suit can be instituted either in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property is situate, or in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the defendant actually and voluntarily resides, or carries on business, or personally works for gain. Reading Ss. 20 and 21 of the C. P. Code together with S. 144 of the B. T. Act a suit for rent may be instituted in the court within the local limits of the jurisdiction of which lies the property in respect of which a suit for possession may have been brought. This however does not exhaust all the provisions of S. 20 C. P. Code. Cls. (a) and (b) of S. 20 C. P. Code allow a landlord to institute a suit for rent where the tenant resides. This must obviously be limited to cases where the landlord seeks a decree for money. Where, however, the landlord seeks a decree for rent as also ejectment under S. 66 of the B. T. Act the suit must be treated as one for the recovery of immoveable property within the meaning of S. 16 (4) C. P. Code and can consequently be instituted in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property is situate. A suit for the recovery of rents of lands situate in one district may be brought in another district where the defendant is residing, although in such suits the plaintiff's title to the land in respect of which the rent is sought to be recovered may incidentally come in question. ———S. 20—"Cause of action" meaning—Causes based on contract of insurance—Cause of action does not include damage to insured property.

For the purposes of S. 20 of the Code, the words 'cause of action' so far as suits on contract are concerned include the making of the contract and the performance or completion of performance of the contract and the payment of money under the contract, and that in cases based on contract of insurance they do not include the loss or damage of the property insured, which is merely a cause of the cause, and is not even a proximate cause since the real cause of action is the failure to pay the money due under the contract and the primary cause of that cause is the contract itself, the destruction of the property being only a secondary cause which is purely accidental, being due merely to the nature of the particular kind of contract under consideration. The meaning of the expression "cause of action" in the section in question when applied to suits based on contract, should be ascertained by a consideration of the meaning of the expression in the past in the course of the development of such legislation in India and the case-law thereon, and not by reference to any English decision on the construction of any English Statutes. Partnership.

——S. 20—Partnership. Carrying on business, explanation and meaning of.

"Carrying on business" is used in S. 20, C. P. C., as distinct from personally working ; of course a man personally working in a particular place is carrying on business, but a man may carry on business and thousands of people do, in a place where he does no personal work of any kind, and a firm may be carrying on business at a particular place either through an agency or through a manager or by its servants without ever having left his own town of Delhi.

"Carrying on business" means, in the section having an interest in the business transactions at a particular place ; a voice in what is done ; a share in the gain or loss as the case may be ; and some control, if not over the actual method of working, at any rate, upon the existence of the business. "Carrying on business" necessarily means making provision for the future.

Winding-up or disposing of goods with a view to winding-up, is just as much carrying on business while it lasts, as purchasing goods or investing capital in carrying on business. Selling of goods at a particular place is evidence of carrying on business there. Selling is the most important part of a business if any profits is desired to be made out of it. He still carries on

No hard and fast rule as to revision can be laid down in cases of decisions as to jurisdiction under S 20 and each must be decided on its own merits. Ordinarily, interference in revision is inadvisable in such cases and should only be exercised in exceptional cases to remedy an injustice. Where the defendant is by law entitled to have the case tried at Patna it will be a grave injustice to him to insist on its trial in Jagraon in the Punjab which will put him to a very great expense merely because the trial Court has erroneously held that the Jagraon Court has jurisdiction. A man may carry on business either personally or through an agent and although the manager of a joint Hindu family is not liable to account to the sleeping partners in precisely the same way as the manager of an ordinary business, his position approximates more nearly to that of an agent than any other. He acts on behalf of the family and in its interests and each individual member of the family carries on business wherever a branch of the family firm is in active existence. He is therefore liable to be sued even in a purely personal suit at any of these places just as a partner in an ordinary partnership is liable to be sued wherever a branch of the business exits. "Courts" in S. 17, C. P. C., means Courts to which the Code applies. The Court of a district subject to the C. P. That part of a decree which orders a sale of land so situate can be set aside, although no objection to the jurisdiction of the first Court was taken, S. 21, C.P.C., not applying to the circumstances. The objection was not an objection to the place of suing, but an objection going to the nullity of the order on the ground of want of jurisdiction and could be taken at any time. ——S. 21—Interpretation—Consent.

The provisions of S. 21, C.P. Code, are an exception to the well established rule that where the Court has no inherent jurisdiction over the subject-matter of a suit its decree is a nullity even though the parties may have consented to the jurisdiction of the court. This exception cannot be so interpreted as to have a wider application than what is justified by its terms. When the Judge has no inherent jurisdiction over the subject-matter of a suit, the parties cannot, by their mutual consent, convert it into a proper judicial process, although they may constitute the Judge their arbitrator and be bound by his decision on the merits when these are submitted to him. This however can be accomplished only when the parties have expressly consented to such a procedure. (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ.) KUNJA MOHAN CHAKRAVARTHY v. MANINDRA CHANDRA ROY CHOWDHURY.

———Ss. 21 and 37—Execution proceedings—Prosecution in wrong Court—Jurisdiction of Court passing the decree—Objection—Omission.

S. 21, C. P. C., applies to all objections based on the alleged infringement of the provisions of Ss. 16 to 18 C. P. C. as regards the institution of suits relating to immoveable property, an appellate or revisional Court being precluded by S. 21 from allowing an objection as to the place of suing unless it was taken in the original Court and even then unless there was a consequent failure of justice. A Court executing a decree could not entertain an objection to the decree on the ground of want of territorial jurisdiction. Though S. 21, C. P. C., did not apply, the decree could not be questioned in execution because it was not for the executing Court to go into questions of the jurisdiction of the Court which passed the decree, at any rate when that was an ordinary Court in British India governed by the Code. In a suit on the original side of the High Court for the recovery of certain jewels or payment of their value, the plaint contained no averment showing that the cause of action or part thereof arose within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the High Court, but alleged that the defendant resided within the local limits of its jurisdiction. The defendant received a summons from High Court while he was in Madras and took no objection to the jurisdiction of that Court but merely asked that another summons should be sent to him. An ex parte decree was eventually passed against him. In a suit filed by him in the Court of Tanjore for a declaration that the decree of the High Court was null and void for want of jurisdiction. Held, that he must be deemed to have submitted to the jurisdiction of the High Court and could not, therefore, subsequently question its jurisdiction. ——Ss. 22 and 23—Transfer of case—Principle guiding

The plaintiff has always a right to choose his forum with this right. The jurisdiction conferred by Ss. 22 and 23, C.P.C., is of an exceptional character and should be exercised very cautiously and only when a clear cause has been shown. The mere fact that it would add to the defendant's convenience to have a transfer is no ground for transferring a case. (Shadi Lal, C. J.) PANDIT ROOP CHAND v. GOKAL CHAND. 73 I. C. 860.

——Ss. 22, 23 and 24—Transfer—Grounds for—Transfer to Original side of the High Court.

The right of a plaintiff to institute a suit in a court in which the law permits him to sue should not be interfered with by the High Court in the exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction unless the suit is brought in bad faith for the purpose of working injustice to which the defendant would not be subjected if the suit were brought in another competent court. The mere fact that it would be more convenient to the defendant to have the suit tried in another forum is no ground for the transfer. Ss. 22 and 23, C. P. Code, do not provide for the transfer of a case from a court subordinate to one High Court to the Original side of another High Court. 12 C. W. N. 446 dist. 1 Pat. L. T. 389 Ref. 27 M. L. A suit was instituted on the last day for filing the suit under the Limitation Act. The plaint was insufficiently stamped and the deficient court fees not having been put in within the time fixed by the Court, the suit was dismissed. Thereafter on an application for review, the order of dismissal was set aside without any notice to the defendant and time was granted for putting in the deficit court fee :

Held, that at the time the order of dismissal was set aside, there was no opposite party on whom the notice could be served, as the summons in the suit had not yet been issued on the defendant and as, until the suit was registered, the suit could not be said to have been duly instituted. Abatement of suit.

——S. 35 and O 22, R 1—Abatement of suit—Cause of action not surviving—Cost to deft.

The court has power to award costs to a deft. out of the deceased plff.'s estate even where the suit abates by reason of the cause of action not surviving the death of plff. The power of the Court to award costs in cases of abatement is not restricted to O. 22, R. 3 (2). (Spencer and Krishnan, JJ.) DONTU PEDDA CHENCHEYYA v. MALLAM BALAYYA. 37 M L. J. 596 : 10 L. Where in an administration suit the intervention of a person did not change the character of the proceeding or alter the scope of the suit and the intervenor voluntarily came into it as a prudent measure not of immediate protection but of possible personal benefit hereafter, it would be clearly unjust to make the claimant pay an additional bill of costs of the intervenor. Alternative Relief.

——S. 35—Alternative relief—Two sets of defts.—Costs.

Where it was reasonable and proper for the plff. to join in the action for relief against either of two sets of the defts. who were disputing their liability, the unsuccessful deft. should be made to bear the costs of the successful deft. Appeal.

——Ss. 35 and 100—Appeal—Costs—Disallowance of—Second Appeal—Interference.

As a rule, questions of costs are in the discretion of the trial court and a person who is dissatisfied with an order or part of it as to costs cannot prefer a second appeal in order to set aside or modify that order; but where an important question of principle has been decided, the High Court will look into the decision to see whether it is arbitrary or based on sound principle. The lower Appellate Court having entirely confined itself to matters antecedent to the suit in depriving a successful party of the costs, the High Court interfered in second appeal, (Piggott and Walsh, JJ.) LALMAN v. CHINTAMANI. 41 All. 254 : 17 A. ——S. 35—Appeal—Interference by Appellate Court.

A successful deft. ought not to be deprived of his costs except on proof of any wrongful conduct in connection with the litigation. When the Judge has given his reasons and all the circumstances are before the Court of appeal the latter can, if satisfied that the discretion has not been judicially exercised, interfere with it and make the order which the court below ought to have made. ——S. 35—Appeal—Costs—Interference.

The High Court will not ordinarily interfere with the discretion of the lower Court in the matter of awarding costs unless it finds that the discretion has not been used judiciously. ——S. 35—Disallowance of costs — Grounds for—Suit for damages—Excessive claim.

Per Sanderson, C. J.—Costs are in the discretion of the judge, a judicial discretion to be exercised on legal principles, not by chance nor merely by caprice nor in temper The trial Judge should not take into consideration matters which must involve speculation on his part as to the attitude of the respective parties. Everything which increases the litigation and the costs and which places on the defendant a burden which he ought not to bear in the litigation is a perfectly good cause for depriving the plaintiff of costs. There is nothing wrong in itself in claiming exemplary damages for, Courts themselves award such damages. The ordinary rule is that costs follow the event. The Court may, however, direct otherwise; but if it does so, it must state its reason in writing. This provision was enacted both to secure a proper exercise of discretion and in order that the Court of appeal may be in a position to control the order and see whether there is good cause for departing from the general rule. The Appellate Court must itself decide whether the order should be sustained, whether the reasons required to be stated are good reasons founded on the facts of the case. There are certain well-known principles on which a successful party may be deprived of his general costs. But where the Court purports to act on these principles it is open to the Appellate Court to enquire whether on the facts these principles have been rightly applied. The mere fact that plaintiff claims more than he gets is no ground for depriving him of costs, unless it is proved that the costs of the action have been increased by his claim. Discretion.

————S. 35—Discretion— Interference when can be made.

S. 35 deals with costs and vests them in the discretion of the Court, with full powers to determine by whom and to what extent such costs are to be paid. It further provides that when the Court directs that any costs shall not follow the event, the Court shall state its reasons in writing. The Court in exercising such a discretion should state the principles upon which that discretion was exercised. Such a discretion of the lower Court may be interfered with where there has been violence of any established principle, misapprehension of facts, or no real exercise of discretion. (Walsh. J.) HAKIM ZAHUR AHAMAD v. FATEH ULLAH. 64 I.C. 962 : 3 U.P.L.R. 55 (All.)

————S. 35—Discretion—Change in the view of law—Successful party when to be deprived of costs.

The ordinary rule is that costs follow the event and that if the plaintiff finds himself unable to proceed with his suit and asks for leave to withdraw it then the opposite party is entitled to the costs which he has been put to in defending the suit. The granting of leave to withdraw from a suit is a concession because the defendant is ordinarily entitled to ask the Court to decide the suit on the merits, and if he wins, he would be entitled to his costs. In a particular case it may be a sound exercise of discretion to refuse costs where the suit is based on a state of law, which has been afterwards altered either by statute or by the decision of a superior tribunal, and that might be a good ground for the decision in the case provided the Court considers the particular circumstances of the case and also the question as to who is responsible for the litigation. Where the Court below has not considered all the facts which it was bound to consider before exercising its discretion with regard to the award of costs and there was an omission to consider the necessary circumstances, there could not be a sound exercise of discretion and the appellate Court is entitled to interfere. 43 M. 61 explained. ——S. 35—Order as to costs—"Costs to abide and follow result"—Meaning.

Where the High Court ordered "that the costs shall abide the result," it only implies that the order as to costs is to await till the decision is given in the case. It has not the effect of fettering the discretion of the trying Court as to the awarding of costs to the appellant. The order does not make it incumbent on the Court below to award costs to the person who succeeds But if the words used were "to abide and follow the result," then it may be interpreted as conveying the suggestion that the successful party must be given his costs. The words " abide the result" are equivalent to the words " costs in the costs." (Seshagiri Aiyar and Napier, JJ.) GODAVARTHI PERIA v. GODAVARTHI LAKSHMI DEVAMMA.

The Court to which a decree has been transferred can execute the decree simultaneously with the execution proceedings initiated by the executing Court, only under exceptional circumstances when it is necessary in the interest of the execution creditor without putting hardship on the judgment-debtor. A decree-holder can apply to the trying Court for the execution of its decree once transferred to another Court and dismissed by it even before the result of execution is certified if there was order permitting simultaneous execution with the execution proceedings in the executing Court ; otherwise the application is not supposed to be made to the proper Court. A decree was passed by the Dt. Court which sent it for execution to another Court. The executing Court dismissed the petition for execution. The decree-holder after some period applied again to the Dt. Court for execution, but the petition was returned for amendment under S. 235 of 1882 Code. The petition was represented without amendment and was simply recorded by the Dt. Court. Again the decree-holder applied for execution to the same Court. Held (i) that the first application after dismissal by the executing Court was a step-in-aid of execution to save limitation, (ii) that that application was not made to the proper Court as the seisin of execution proceedings was with the executing Court. The test is whether the claim as laid by the objector is adverse to the claims of the judgment-debtor, and an objector claiming under a paramount title is not deprived of his ordinary remedy of a regular suit merely because his objection is dismissed on the ground that he is held to be a party to the suit. ——— Ss. 47 and 2—Appeal— Execution of decree—Declaratory decree— Execution allowed —Final order directing delivery of land—Appeal against first order, if barred.

Plaintiff applied for execution of a decree directing that defendant should remain in possession of land yielding a certain amount of rice; the defendant objected alleging that the decree being declaratory cannot be executed. The lower Court allowed the execution and passed later on the final order directing delivery to plaintiff of land other than that which defendant was entitled to retain. The High Court, on appeal against the preliminary order, held, that the order appealed against was appealable as it was a decree, that the final order did not affect the the right of appeal against the previous order if the appeal was filed in time as the later order did not supersede the first and that the decree being declaratory could not be executed. (Sundara Aiyar and Phillips, JJ.) LAKSHMI v. MARUDEVI. 37 Mad. 29: 10 M. L. T. 437: 12 I. C. 664: 21 M L J. 1063.

———S. 47—Appeal—Execution — Mistake—Order restoring possession to judgment-debtor.

A conditional decree cannot necessarily be treated as a preliminary decree and the order, restoring possession to the judgment-debtor on the ground that the possession was given to the decree-holder under a misapprehension that the decree holder has satisfied the condition which he had not, is of the nature of a final decree. The order, however, is an order passed in the execution department from which an appeal could be preferred under the provisions of S. 47. C. P. C. (Daniels, J. C.) DORI LAL v. MT JAMAGA. 72 I. C. 879: 1923 Oudh 16.

———S. 47—Appeal—Execution sale—Setting aside.

Where a decree-holder took every proceeding under the Code to give effective power to the Court to sell certain property and on the day fixed for sale he asked the Court to dismiss his execution case, but on rejection of the application and sale of the property appealed to the District Judge and the order of the executing Court was set aside. Held, that though the order of the first Court was wrong, it was not appealable and High Court alone could set it aside and that the lower appellate Court having assumed jurisdiction in the matter, a second appeal lay to the High Court. That order of the lower appellate Court must be set aside as being ultra vires. (Das, J.) MEHESH KANTA CHOWDHURY v. RAM PRASAD RAY. 57 I. C. 396.

An application by a receiver of an insolvent's estate to annul a sale on the ground of a prior adjudication of the debtor is one under S. 47 and a second appeal lies to the High Court from an order in appeal. Only where O. 21, R. 90 and S. 47, C.P.C. both apply to a petition to set aside an auction sale that no second appeal lies under S. 100 but a second appeal will lie when S. 47 alone is applicable (Sadasiva Aiyar and Moore, JJ.) ANANTHARAMA IYER v VETTATH KUTIMALU: KOVIL AMNAL. 19 M L. The provisions of S. 47 C. P. Code should receive the widest interpretation. Where the legal representative of a deceased judgment-debtor raises an objection to the attachment of certain property in his hands on the ground that it is his own property and not that of the deceased, the question must be investigated under S. 47 C.P.C. and not under O. 21, R 58, C.P.C. An order by which security offered by the decree holder under O. 41, R. 5, C.P.C before executing the decree is accepted and the delivery of possession is directed to be made to the decree holder, is appealable, inasmuch as the order directing delivery of possession is a final order and not an interlocutory or intermediate one. Appeal—Order directing execution

——S. 47—Appeal—Order in execution—When appealable.

An order in execution can come under S. 47 only when it determines question relating to the rights and liabilities of the parties with reference to the relief granted by the decree, not when it determines merely an incidental question as to the mode of the conduct of the proceedings. Where a Court refuses stay of execution, though certain proceedings to test the validity of the decree were pending, the order does not come within S. 47 and is not appealable. The new Code could not retrospectively affect the character of the order which under the new code is not a decree under S. 47 but an order under O. 21, Rr. 90 and 92. On the application of the decree holder encumbrances existing on the property attached were notified in the sale proclamation. The judgment debtor applied under S. 47 for an order that the properties could not be sold subject to encumbrances. The objection was allowed and the decree holders appealed. On a question arising as to whether the order of the court was appealable held that the application of the judgment debtor did not raise any question as to the terms on which the sale proclamation should be settled but it raised the question whether the Court could sell the property subject to the encumbrances and that the question was one relating to the execution of the decree and that the order was therefore appealable. C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 47—Applicability.

On an appeal against an order passed by the Subordinate Judge's Court, Chingleput, on a petition presented to it under Cl. 10 of a scheme sanctioned by a decree for the management of a Hindu temple, it was found that the petition was presented on the assumption that, a vacancy had occurred among the trustees under the scheme and that, as it had not been filled by either of the two agencies primarily responsible for filling it the Lower Court must in accordance with the scheme do so. The lower court held after enquiry that, the point disputed before it, a vacancy had occurred and directed that it should be filled in the manner provided by the rules framed by the High Court. Held, that though the Court was in this matter acting judicially, it was still necessary to see whether its order was one, against which under the ordinary law an appeal will lie, and that depended on whether its order was a decree within the meaning of S. 2 (2) of the Code of Civil Procedure, or more particularly whether it was the determination under S. 47 of a question relating to the execution of a decree Held that it did not satisfy the above requirements and there was no appeal against the order. ——S. 47—Bar of suit—Mortgage by father and son—Simple money decree against father—Execution against son disallowed—Suit to enforce liability.
A suit was instituted against a Hindu father and his son on a mortgage. The son contended that there was no legal necessity. A simple money decree was granted against the father alone and in the decree it was stated that the son was "exempted" and costs were given to him. The sale of the father's share proved insufficient to pay off the decree and the decreeholder sought to attach and sell the son's share, but upon objection by the son a suit was brought against the son for a declaration that the son's share was liable to be sold in execution on the ground of his pious liability. Held, that the suit was barred by S 47 of the C. ——S. 47—Bar of suit—Suit on judgment—Principle of.

A suit on a judgment obtained against the ostensible representatives can be maintained against the real representatives. The principle on which an action is allowed to be maintained on a judgment is that where the Court of competent jurisdiction has adjudicated a certain sum to be due from one person to another, a legal obligation arises to pay that sum on which an action of debt to enforce the judgment may be maintained. This principle is subject to the qualification that an action is permissible only where the judgment cannot be enforced in some other way. There is divergence of judicial opinion on this matter. The rent having fallen into arrears, deft. obtained a decree against the plff. for possession of the house and arrears of rent. In execution, the plaintiffs' equity of redemption was sold, the sale was confirmed and plff. brought a suit after one year to set aside the decree and the sale held in execution of it. Held. (1) that the sale of the house was in contravention of O. 34, R 14, C.P C., (2) that the sale held in contravention of provisions of rule 14 was not void but voidable at the instance of the mortgagor (plff.), (3) that the proper remedy of the plff. to set aside the sale was an application under S. 47, C. ——S. 47 and O. 21, R 90—Execution sale—Setting aside—Fraud—Plea of purchaser without notice.

Judicial sales fraudulently procured will not give a good title to a purchaser who does not take in good faith and without notice. The fact that the Court has been successfully deceived is one which upon the issue as to the purchaser's good faith, must be of a very different value in different circumstances. In all cases the burden of proving that he acted in good faith and without notice of the fraud is in the first instance upon the purchaser. This is an essential feature of the equitable rule. The rule is not that there is a special favour for every one until he is shown to have been dishonest or a volunteer, but that equity where it can will favour those who show that in innocence they have given value. Per Mookerjee, J.--The protection given to the bona fide purchser had its origin exclusively in equity and is based entirely upon the conception that a Court of equity acts solely upon the conscience of litigant parties by compelling the defendant to do what, and only what, in foro conscientiæ he is bound to do. If the relation between the two contestants standing before the Court are such that, in equity and good conscience, the plaintiff ought to obtain the aid which he asks, and the defendant ought to do or suffer what is demanded of him, then the Court will interfere and grant the relief ; if the relations are not of this character then the Court will withhold its hand and will leave the parties where they stand. The protection given to the bona fide purchaser, therefore, simply means that from the relations subsisting between the two parties specially that which is involved in the innocent position of the purchaser, equity refuses to interfere and to aid the plaintiff in what he is seeking to obtain, because it would be unconscientious and inequitable to do so: the Court will not, in such an event, aid either party against the other. The doctrine of bona fide purchase is thus not a rule of property. It does not determine the question of title between parties. It is in most cases available only by way of defence. It is a shield in the hands of a defendant to protect him against the claim of his adversary. It means that equity will refuse to interfere to aid the plaintiff in his suit, because under the circumstances of the case, it would be unconscionable that the plaintiff should have what he seeks to obtain. It enforces no right, but simply refuses to interfere in the plaintiff's behalf.

An execution sale which has been brought about by the fraud of the decree holder is liable to be set aside on that ground by application to the executing Court even though it is not proved that the auction purchaser, a stranger, has participated in or been cognisant of the fraud Subject to the conditions prescribed by O.21, R. 90, C P. Code an execution sale may be set aside on the ground of fraud precisely in the same manner as on the ground of irregularity and exercise of this power by the Court is not excluded in cases where the purchaser falls within the category of bona fide purchaser for value without notice. 6 C. The word 'representative' in S. 47 is not confined to 'legal representative' as defined in in S. 2 (u) of the C. P. Code. Ordinarily a purchaser at a sale held in execution of a money decree is such a representative of judgment debtor. (*Abdur Rahim, O. C. J. ———S. 47—Parties and representatives—Ex-parte defts.—Recovery of possession of properties delivered in execution.

C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 47—Parties & Representatives—Exparte defendants and decree.

A person who is not a party to the decree may apply to the court executing the decree and may, if so advised institute a regular suit, and even if he applies and fails he can still bring a regular suit within one year to establish his right to the property. On the other hand a party to a decree is precluded from filing a separate suit and must apply to the Court of execution for redress. The application of the rule of thirty days may in such a case result in great hardship because the party concerned may not come to know of the delivery of possession to the decree holder until after the expiry of 30 days. Parties and Representatives—Mortgage Suit.

———S. 47— Parties and Representatives — Mortgage suit—Mortgage decree against father—Execution against sons

A mortgagee of certain property belonging to a joint Hindu family instituted a suit against the father only to enforce the mortgage. The mortgagee obtained a decree and at a court sale in execution of the decree himself purchased the property. The decree-holder purchaser died before obtaining possession of the property and his surviving brother sued for recovery of possession of the property impleading the judgment debtor and his sons as parties. The defendants pleaded that a separate suit was barred under S. 47 C P. Code. Held that the suit was maintainable and that so far as the sons were concerned they were not parties to the prior suit and could not be proceeded against in execution proceedings. 35 B. 452 dist. ——S. 47 and O. 21, R. 16—Question relating to execution—Application by decree holders to execute—Assignment—Determination of right of assignee.

Where a decree holder applying for execution wanted his application to be dismissed only if the assignment was considered to be binding upon the assignee so that the latter could be made liable for the money mentioned in the deed of assignment, it would be wrong to hold that while the assignment should be considered as binding upon the assignor so far as his rights under the decree are concerned the assignee should be able to wriggle out of his liability for the price of the assignment by relying upon fraud. The transaction is an undivided one and must be viewed as a whole. Where the order of the Court dismisses the application for execution, it adversely affects the rights of the decree holder against the judgment debtor and consequently determines a question relating to the execution or discharge or satisfaction of the decree. Question relating to execution—Order Relating to Decree.

——S. 47—Question relating to execution—Order for delivery of possession to auction purchaser.

C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 47—Question relating to execution—Order relating to decree.

It may be disputed whether an order for delivery of possession to an auction-purchaser is an order relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of a decree, for so far as the decree holder is concerned his decree is satisfied, and whether the auction-purchaser gets the property or not is a matter with which he is not concerned.

Per Cuming, J.—The delivery of possession is not a part of the satisfaction of the decree. So far as the decree holder is concerned the decree is satisfied when the property is sold and the money paid to decree-holder. Obviously he is not concerned with the property being delivered to the purchaser The question of the delivery of possession to the auction-purchaser is not one relating to the execution of the decree or between the parties to the suit or their representatives. It is immaterial that the auction-purchaser is also the decree-holder. As an auction purchaser he is in an entirely different capacity. C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 47—Restitution.

Obiter:—The decision of a question of limitation arising in execution proceedings may come within purview of S. 47 and is therefore a decree as defined by the code but the same cannot be said of a question of limitation arising in connection with an application under S. 144. ——Ss. 47 and 144—Restitution—Parties and representatives—Auction-purchaser.

An order refusing to set aside an execution sale was reversed on appeal without the auction purchaser being a party to the proceedings. Held, that an order could not be made under S. 144 as no decree had been varied or reversed on appeal and that an order could not be made on the analogy of S. 144 as the auction purchaser was not a party to the proceedings to set aside the sale. Applicability.

——S 48—Applicability of—Retrospective effect—Decree on mortgage.

S. 48, has a retrospective effect, and governs an application for the execution of a mortgage decree passed before the Code came into force: Hence such an application, if presented 12 years after the date of the decree, is barred. 40 Cal. 704. foll. 32 All. 499 diss. C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 48—Applicability.

An application for the execution of a mortgage decree passed when the old Act was in force filed after the expiration of 12 years from the date of the decree is not admissible after the new Act has come into operation. ——S. 48—Applicability — Mortgage decree passed under C. P. C. 1882.

——S. 48—Applicability — Mortgage decree —Preliminary —Final decree—T. P. Act, Ss. 88 and 89.

A decree-holder will have 12 years to perfect the preliminary decree into an order absolute under S. 89, T. P. Act and another 12 years for executing the order absolute. ——S. 48—Applicability of.

Saving decrees granting injunctions, S. 48 applies to all other decrees. A decree directing the execution of a conveyance might come under the expression "directs the delivery of any property" in S. 48, C. P. C. Combined Decree.

——S. 48 and O. 20, R. 6—Combined decree—Execution—Limitation.

Where a mortgage decree directed that the available proceeds of the sale under the decree were to be paid in satisfaction of the decretal debt but that if the amount due to the plaintiff was not satisfied by sale of the mortgaged property the balance would be realised from other properties and the persons of the defendants. Held that the limitation for execution of the latter part of the decree ran from the date of the decree and not from the date of the sale of the mortgaged property under S. 48, C. Compromise Decree.

S. 48 of the present Code is more extensive than S. 230 of the old Code and covers compromise decrees. (Scott, C. J. and Hayward, J.) BALARAM VITHAL CHAND v. MARUTI DEOJI. 39 Bom. 256 : 28 I. C. 478 : 17 Bom. L. R. 178.

——S. 48 (1) (b)—Compromise decree—Order by executing court recording compromise—Effect —Limitation.

C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 48—Continuation of application.

An order under S. 48 (1) (b), C. P. C, must be made by the court which made the decree and notbv a Court executing the decree. Where a Court executing the decree records a compromise the original decree is not altered and limitation for purposes of execution is still calculated from the date of the decree. (Broadway, J.) JIVAN BAKSH v. MUBINAL HUQ. 73 I. C. 794 : 1923 Lah. 678.

Continuation of Application.

S. 48. C. P. C. applies to execution applications made after the new code come into operation. Where an application for execution was made 12 years after the passing of the decree but within 3 years from the last application, the application was not barred under S. 48, C. P. C, as it was but a continuation of the previous application. The theory of continuation applies to cases where the previous application was interrupted by circumstances not under the control of the decree-holder. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) MUHAMMAD NABI BEZA v. WILLIAM ALFRED THOMAS. 21 I. C. 923.

——S. 48—Continuation of application—Stay owing to orders of court.

If an application for execution be treated as a fresh application made after 12 years from the date of decree, the decree-holder must bring his case under S. 48 (2) C. P. C. But where the execution was stayed for a period owing to an application by judgment-debtor under S 50 Insolvency Act, an application for execution made after that period, though after 12 years, is deemed as a continuation of the previous application and hence decree-holder need not establish the provisions of S. 48 (2). (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) CHATRAPAL SINGH v. JOY MONGALA MISRAIN. 16 I. C. 541.

——Ss. 48 and 63—Continuation of application—Property attached by two Courts—Sale by one—Application for rateable distribution more than 12 years after decree.

A and B obtained decrees against X in the District and the Munsif Court respectively and attached the properties of X in execution. They were ordered to be sold under S. 63 of the C. P.C. by the District Court. While B's application was pending in the Munsif's Court he applied to the District Court for rateable distribution 12 years after the date of his decree though his last application was within 12 years. Held, that the application to the District Court was only a continuation of the application made to the Munsif's Court. ——S. 48—Continuation of application.

If a mortgagee decree holder entitled to proceed against any one of the mortgaged properties is obstructed by some of the judgment-debtors and not by laches on his part, he can revive the proceedings which temporarily abated owing to interruption and continue his proceedings in execution against that property even though there

In order to entitle a decree holder to claim that an application should be regarded as a continuation of the previous application two conditions must be satisfied, first that the previous application was dismissed for no fault or default on his part and secondly that the present application is similar in scope and character to the previous application. If these conditions are satisfied there is no reason why the court should not regard the present application as a continuation of the previous one. 72 I. C. 862 : 1 Pat. L. R. 139.

Date of Decree.

——S. 48 (1) (a) and (b)—Date of decree—Preliminary decree—Decree absolute.

For purposes of S. 48 (1), Cl. (a) the preliminary as well as the final decree or decree absolute in the case should be taken as a single and indivisible decree. Therefore the date of decree means the date of the final decree. (Richardson, and Roe, JJ.) SHIBA DURGA DEBI v. GOPI MOHAN SAHAI. 33 I. C. 180.

Deduction of Time.

——S. 48—Deduction of time—Minority—Lim. Act, S. 6—Extension of time.

S. 6 of the Lim. Act serves only to extend for the benefit of minors, periods of limitation provided by the Act itself ; it does not extend the period provided by S. 48, and makes no exception in favour of minors. (Chamier, J.) CHATAR PALMAN v. PREMNATH TEWARI.

——S. 48— Deduction of time—Limitation Act, S. 15, if applies.

The provisions of S. 45 of the Madras Court of Wards Act allowing deduction of time during which the estate was under the Court's management will apply only when decrees have been transferred to the Collector for execution, and an amendment of it in execution cannot be permitted to revive a barred claim. 26 M.L.J. 83 foll.; 37 M 186 diss. ——S. 48—Deduction of time—Minority—Not a ground for extension of period—Interpretation of statutes.

Cases within S. 48, C. P. C. are exempted from the operation of Art. 182 of the Limitation Act. Minority is no ground for exemption from the operation of S. 48, C. P. C. Nor is it a ground of exemption under the general law apart from the provisions of S. 6 of the Limitation Act. Under S. 48, C.P.C. all decrees except one for injunction will be barred after 12 years. ——S. 48 — Deduction of time— Execution stayed—Lim. Act, S. 15.

S. 48, C. P. C. does not contemplate a deduction of any particular period from the prescribed period of 12 years. If force or fraud is proved, it gives a fresh starting point of limitation under S. 48 (2) (a). The period during which execution proceedings have been stayed cannot be deducted from the period of 12 years. (Mittra, A.J.C.) GOVINDA v. UMRAO SINGH. 54 I. C. 279.

Fraud.

——S. 48—Fraud—Frivolous and futile objections to execution.

"Fraud" in S. 48, C.P. Code should be understood in a large and liberal sense. The delaying of execution by frivolous, futile and dishonest objections on the part of the judgment debtors amounts to fraud. 6 A. L. J 401: 9 A. L. J. 17 foll. 11 Q B. ——S. 48 (2) (a)—Fraud—Effect on limitation.

The second proviso of Sect. 48 of the Code has the effect of extending the period of limitation to 12 years from the time when the decree holder was, by fraud of the judgment-debtor, prevented from executing his decree. 7 C. 566 dist. ——S. 48 (2) (a)—Fraud—Preferring appeal—Limitation.

Pendency of appeal by judgment-debtor does not cause suspension of execution where there is no fraud or force. (Holmwood and Imam, JJ.) KARTIK CHANDRA MANDAL v. NILMANI MANDAL. 32 I. C. 931 : 20 C. W. N. 686.

——S. 48 (2) (a)—'Fraud'—Interpretation of.

The term 'fraud' in S. 48 should be interpreted in a wider sense than that in which it is generally used in English law. 6 M. 365, Foll. S. 48 (2) (a) requires that there should be fraud on the part of the judgment-debtor and also that the fraud should be such as to prevent the decree holder from executing the 'decree'; so that the mere fact that the judgment-debtor objects to a sale which objection ultimately proves unsuccessful will not amount to fraud. 8 M. L. J. 203, Rel on. (Mookerjee and Carnduff, JJ.) RAGHUNATH PRASD v. KASHI PRASAD. 13 I. C. 88 : 15 C. L. J. 678.

——S. 48—Fraud—Avoiding arrest under a warrant.

An intentional avoiding by the judgment-debtor of arrest under a warrant by the decree-holder to avoid payment of decretal amount, amounts to fraud and gives a fresh start to the period of limitation. (Abdur Rahim and Odgers, JJ.) AYYAVU v. SOMASUNDARAM CHETTIAR. 12 L. W. 710: 60 I. C. 630: (1920) M. W. N. 788.

——S. 48 (2) —Fraud or force—Execution—Application after 12 years.

A decree holder applying for execution after 12 years from the date of the decree is not restricted to proving that the fraud or force occurred within three years of the application. He is entitled to the benefit of the proviso even if the fraud or force was long anterior in date. 8 M.L. J. 203. not foll.; 34 All, 20: 22 M. 320; 35 M. 670, foll. ——S. 48 (2) (a)—Fraud—Extension of time for execution allowed against the judgment debtor.

When the execution of a decree is prevented by the fraud of one of several judgment debtors, extension of time will be allowed only against such judgmentdebtor and not against others who are not guilty of fraud. ——S. 48 (2) (a)—"Fraud"—Liberal meaning.

An improper means restored to in order to prevent execution could amount to fraud under S. 48 C. P. C. (Benson and Sundara Aiyar, JJ.) NATHURAM v. KRISHNA. (1913) M. W. N. 182: 18 M. L. T. 226: 18 I C 1008: 24 M.L.T. 270.

——S. 48 (2) (a)—Fraud—Meaning of.

The expression "fraud" in S. 48 should be construed in a broad sense. A deliberate evasion of the process of Court to defeat execution of decree amounts to fraud. Continuous diligence during all the time prior to the application is not necessary. Quære Has the court any discretion to allow or refuse execution after 12 years, even

——S. 48 (2) (a)—Fraud of the judgment-debtor—Proof of.

To get the benefit of S, 48 the decree-holder need not show that the fraud of the judgment debtor extended continuously for 12 years. It is sufficient if he shows that the judgment debtor on various occasions within the period of 12 years prevented the execution of decree by fraud. ——S. 48 (2) (a)—Fraud—Judgment debtor evading arrest—Successful prevention of execution of decree within twelve years—Fraud.

Where a judgment-debtor successfully evaded arrest and spent some time pretending to prosecute proceedings in insolvency and successfuly prevented the decree-holder from executing his decree within twelve years, held, that the judgment-debtor is guilty of fraud. (Tudball, J.) MEWA LAL v. AHMAD ALI. 13 I. C. 929: 9 A. L. J. 17.

——S. 48—Fresh application—Continuity of application—Application for execution.

In order that an application should be a continuation of another application, it is necessary that the two applications must be of the same nature. An application for execution cannot be regarded as an application in continuation of an application for transfer of a decree from one court to another. 20 A. 78, foll. (1886) A. W. N. 137 not foll. An order of an executing Court granting time to the judgmen debtor is not a subsequent order directing payment of money within S. 48 of the C.P.C. and does not operate to extend the period of limitation for the execution of the decree. ——S. 48—Starting point—Decree against some defendants—Surety—Decree against on appeal—Execution of original decree—Limitation

Plaintiff obtained a money decree in 1907 March against defts. 1 to 4 but the trial Court did not pass a decree against the 5th deft. who was impleaded as a surety. On appeal by the plaintiffs the High Court seeking to make the 5th deft. liable dismissed the appeal in 1909. The plaintiffs made several attempts to execute the decree against the defendants 1 to 4. In November 1919 the plaintiffs sought to amend a prior execution application by seeking attachment of certain properties. In 1920 the plaintiffs applied for attachment of another house belonging to defts. 1 to 4. Held that the applications were barred by time. As no relief was asked for against defendants Nos. 1 to 4 in the appeal to the High Court, the decree which was being executed was the decree of the trial Court and limitation began to run from the date of the decree of the trial Court and not of the High Court on appeal. A decree was passed on the 23rd March 1906 and application for execution was filed on the 21st May 1918 ; on objection by the judgment debtor that it was barred under S. 48, C. P. C. it was contended that inasmuch as during a former application for execution, the decree holders and the judgment-debtor filed a petition of adjustment and it was ordered by the executing Court on the 27th July 1912 that the claim be adjusted and the balance of the amount be paid by certain instalments, therefore the said adjustment order was substantially an order under O. 20, R. 11 and it saved limitation. Held, that O. 20, R. 11 refers to an order passed by the Court which passed the decree. The subsequent order directing payment in S. 48, Cl. (b) means a subsequent order made by the Court which passed the decree and not an order of a Court executing a decree. 40 All. 198 foll. A policy of insurance for the benefit of one's wife to be to paid to her or to trustees fails on assured's death without appointing any trustee or making an assignment. It becomes part of the estate of the deceased, the right of action against the company being in his executors or other representative untrammelled by any trust in favour of his wife. He could divest himself of his beneficial interest under the policy only by assignment in writing as provided by S. 130 of the Transfer of Property Act or by signed declaration of trust as provided in S. 5 of the Trust Act. In the absence of such writing it remained the property of the assured and was attachable. (Scott, C.J. and Chandavarkar, J.) SHANKER VISVANATH WAGH v. UMABAI SADASHIV WAGLE.

———S. 60 (1) (c)—House of an agriculturist—Mortgage validity of—Decree for sale.

Per Full Bench (Banerjee, J.) dissenting.—The house of an agriculturist is not appurtenant to his holding and it can be validly mortgaged and in spite of S. 60 (1) (c), a decree for sale capable of execution can be passed on foot of such mortgage. S. 60, C. P. C. does not apply to the execution of mortgage decrees. Per Richards, C. J.—It would be a strained construction to hold that S. 60 applies to the execution of mortgage decrees. The proviso to S. 60 is not intended to render the sale or mortgage of the house of an agriculturist invalid. Under O. 34, Rr. 4 and 5 a mortgagee is entitled to a decree for sale, and also to execute such decree notwithstanding S. 60 (1) (c). Per Banerjee, J.—No court should sell a house belonging to and occupied by an agriculturist provided it is of the description mentioned in S. 60 (1) (c) and it makes no difference whether the house was or was not mortgaged by the agriculturist for the debt. (Per Tudball, J.) S. 60 was never intended to apply to the case of a mortgage decree for the execution of which, provisions are made elsewhere in the Code. (*Richards, C. J. ———S. 60 (1) (g)—Jagir—Maintenance—Political pension—Liability to attachment.

A Government sannad purported to grant the "taluk" of a certain pargana together with all lands cultivated or uncultivated to one K for life as revenue free jagir for maintenance and stated that after the death of K the said 'ilaka' will continue to stand in the names of his children and grand-children as a permanent zemindari, assessed to a light amount of jama.

Held, that the grant to K was of land rather than of revenue charged on the land and was not a political pension within S. 60 (g). The word "jagir" primarily points to occupancy, though it may be occupancy of an office such as that of Collector of revenue. Where however a jagir held for life only is, as in this sannad, used in contradistinction to an ilaka held as a permanent zemindari, it is an almost necessary inference that the occupancy referred to, is an occupancy of land. Though the grant to K was expressed to be for his maintenance, it was not so in the case of his descendants who became absolute owners of the property. In the hands of the latter the subject-matter of the grant was liable to attachment in execution of a decree. (Lord Parker). MURAMMAT SAKINA BAI v. KANIZ FATIMA BEGAM. 22 C. W. N. 577: 47 I. ——S. 63 and O. 21, R. 90—Property under attachment of superior court— Purchaser not in fault—Sale whether can be impeached— Irregularities.

The mere fact that the court ordering the sale had notice of an attachment by a superior court, does not oust the jurisdiction of the former court and the sale cannot be treated as a nullity. The title of a purchaser at a judicial sale not himself in fault, cannot be impaired at law or in enquiry by showing any mere error or irregularity in the proceedings. Errors and irregularities must be corrected by a direct proceeding. If not so corrected, they cannot be made available by way of collateral attack on the purchaser's title. There cannot be a collateral impeachment of a judicial sale, and a direct impeachment is possible only to the parties to the proceedings interested therein. Persons not parties to such proceedings cannot impeach a judicial sale on the ground that it was held in contravention of S. 63, C.P.C. A sale held in contravention of S. 63 (1) is not null and void but is irregular. 4 A. 359, not foll. 18 B. 458 : 22 M. 295 foll. (Srinivasa Iyengar, J.) NARAYANAN NAMBUDRIPAD v. TAWKER J. A sale by the Court of lower jurisdiction of property under attachment in execution of the decrees of two separate courts is irregular but not invalid, and a purchaser takes an indefeasible or a defeasible title according as he knows or does not know of the irregularity. The purchaser must show that he made the purchase bona fide and without notice of the pre-existing attachment or without being aware whether by direct and formal notice or otherwise, his title was liable to be questioned because of the superior Court's attachment. 22 B. 88 foll. The rule protects a sale of property which is already attached under a prior decree, if it takes place without the knowledge of prior decree but does not permit a Court to hold such a sale. ——Ss. 64 and 73—Right to rateable distribution—Transfer pending attachment Previous attachment under different decree—C.P.C., 1882, Ss. 276 and 295.

A decree-holder purchased immoveable property at a sale in execution of his decree, but on the day before the attachment, the judgment-debtor had transferred the property to a creditor for good consideration. Five years prior thereto, the decree-holder had attached the same property in execution of another decree against the same judgment-debtor but the execution had not been proceeded with. On a question arising as to who had a valid title, held, that the creditor transferee had acquired a good title to the property. The earlier attachment, whether it was subsisting or not, did not affect the title of the transferee under S. 64 (S. 276, C. P. the property must be considered as contrary to the attachment and the transferee or mortgagee must be considered as taking the transfer or mortgage subject to all claims which could be made against the property attached which by the law are not confined to claims of creditors attaching before the transfer but will also include the claims of any other execution creditors who may apply for execution before the assets are realised. Plaintiff attached certain properties of defendants 2--10 before judgment and defendants 2—10 subsequently mortgaged the properties. There was a decree in favour of the plaintiff against defendants 2—10. The Defendant No. 1 filed another suit against defendants 2—10 and obtained a money decree. S. 64 aims at preventing fraud on decree-holders and to secure intact the rights of attaching creditors as well as creditors who have obtained decrees and are entitled to satisfaction out of the assets of the judgment-debtor (without further attachment). It is therefore immaterial whether the plff. decree-holder who questions a transfer under S. 64 obtained a decree before or after the time when the transfer of the property attached took place. A transfer by the judgment-debtor of his property which is under attachment is inoperative as against a judgment-creditor who obtains his decree after the transfer in question and seeks to attach the property in execution of that decree. The default of the decree-holder contemplated by O. 21, R. 57 C, P. Code as a ground for dismissal of an execution application must be default in the discharge of some obligation laid on him by the Code or the rules framed under it. The omission of the decree-holder to attend the sale and his failure to bid at the sale does not constitute such default as covered by O. 21, R. 57 C. P, Code and where an application for execution is dismissed on that ground, it does not terminate the attachment. Under a mistaken impression that an attachment of property had ceased by reason of dismissal of a prior execution application the decree-holder put in a fresh execution application and the Court ordered him to pay batta and file a schedule of the immoveable properties required to be attached. Owing to his default in furnishing the said schedule the execution application was dismissed. Held that the dismissal of the execution was not one under O, 21, R. 57, C. P. ———S. 64—Execution sale — Claim suit— Pendency of.

Private alienation by a claimant though not strictly within the words of the section must be held to be subject to the result of the claim litigation. The section avoids private transfers contrary to the attachment though the alienation is made between the final decision in any claim proceedings and the subsequent suit thereon. A judgment-debtor who is not a party to claim proceedings or to the subsequent litigation arising therefrom cannot be held to have been represented by his decree-holder. When the right to attach certain property as the property of the judgment-debtor is admitted, a prior attachment in one suit does not affect a sale under a later attachment in another suit and the fact that the right to attach in the first suit is being questioned by a stranger does not make any difference. ———S. 66—Not retrospective—Difference between old code and new—Title of purchser under old code—Not affected by new Code.

S. 66 does not apply to an execution purchaser whose title was perfected when S. 317 C. P. C. (1882) was in force. Hence a real purchaser at an auction sale held in 1903 can sue for a declaration of his title by purchase at a time when the code of 1908 is in force against an assignee of a certified purchaser though not against the certified purchaser himself. Both S. 317 of the Code of 1882 and S. 66 of the Code of 1908 place a limitation upon the title of purchaser: only S. 66 widens the fetter placed upon the title of the purchaser by S.317. S. 66 improves the position of the certified purchaser, and, confers upon him a power of alienation he would not otherwise enjoy and under this section the certified purchaser is enabled to confer a good title on the transferee because the real owner is debarred from impeaching the title not only of the certified purchaser but also of the person deriving title from him. The wider restriction embodied in S. 66 of the Code of 1908 does not apply where the title accrued under the old code. An application for rateable distribution is maintainable when the sale is going on, as it has been made before receipt of the assets within the meaning of S, 73, C. P. C. An order under S. 73 is not an order under S. 47 inasmuch as the question which arises is not one between the parties to the suit and the order rejecting the application does not otherwise come within the definition of decree in S. 2, because it does not conclusively determine the rights of the parties. So an order under S. 73 is not appealable. (Coutts and Adami, JJ.) MUSAMMAT HURMOOZI BEGUM v. MUSSAMMAT AYSHA. 5 P. L. J. 415 : 1 P. L. T. 296 : 57 I. C. 421 : 1921 Pat. 204.

———S. 73—Applicability—Identity of judgment debtors not necessary.

S. 73, C.P. Code, is imperative and does not imply that an application for execution is necessary to obtain the benefit of it. It is not necessary that all the judgment-debtors in the several decrees should be identical, and the fact that in one, there is an extra judgment-debtor does not make the section inapplicable. The addition of the word "passed" in 1908 has not restricted the application of the section. (Jwala Prasad and Ross, JJ.) MT. INDERBASI KUER v. SATNARAYAN SINGH. 4 Pat. L. T. 373 : 74 I. ———Ss. 73 and 115—Assets—Money deposited by sureties for release of an attachment before Judgment—Rateable distribution of such money—Interference in revision.

C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 73—Assets.

In a money-suit certain property belonging to the defendant was attached before judgment and then released on two persons standing sureties for the amount of the claim. The suit was ultimately decreed and the decree-holder applied for execution, whereupon the sureties deposited the decretal amount in Court. On that very day just before the deposit was made, the petitioner who also held a money-decree against the same judgment-debtor, applied for execution of his decree and prayed for rateable distribution of the amount deposited. The application was refused by the trial Court and the money paid out to the attaching creditor on the latter giving an undertaking to refund the amount in case the High Court reversed the order rejecting the petitioner's application of rateable distribution.

Held, that the amount deposited was subject to rateable distribution under S. 73, C. P. Code. The natural interpretation of the wide language of the section would include any assets in the possession of the Court and at the disposal of the Court for the purpose of satisfying a decree against a judgment-debtor. There is no reason why it should be restricted to what is paid in by virtue of a process taken in execution. Besides, the assets in the present case though not strictly speaking realized in process of execution were realized by a process in the nature of an anticipatory execution. 40 Cal. 619 : 36 Bom. 156 referred to. 41 Mad. 616 discussed.

——S. 73 and O. 21, Rr. 55 and 83—Assets—Permission of Court to raise money by private alienation—Money paid into Court—Rateable distribution.

A Court should not grant permission to raise money by private alienation to satisfy only one of the decrees against the judgment-debtor when there are more decrees than one against him and all the decree-holders have attached and seek to sell the judgment debtor's property in execution. When the permission is granted under O. 21, R. 83 to raise money by private alienation such money if paid into Court is assets. Money paid into Court by one of the modes mentioned in O. 21, R. 55 of the C. P. C. is assets held by the Court within S. 73 of the Code. 36 B. 156, not foll. Unless there is something clear in the language of the Code to exempt a payment from being applied to the benefit of all the creditors, Courts should incline to the view that moneys in the hands of the Court should be shared by the decree-holders rateably.

Semble:—The language of S. 73 of the Code is wide enough to cover cases where moneys are in the hands of the courts by whatever process the same has been realised. (Seshagiri Aiyar and Napier, JJ.) THIRAVIAM PILLAI v. LAXMANA PILLAI.

Where payment into Court of assets realised and the application for rateable distribution are made on the same day, there is no presumption as to the order of events and the officer distributing the assets should have ascertained which act was prior in time. If the fund in Court is the joint property of two persons, one of whom is the judgment-debtor under one decree and both of them are judgment-debtors in another decree the former decree-holder is not entitled to rateable distribution. 33 M. 465; 12 C. 294; 16 B. 683. 22 M. 241 rel. Attachment.

———S. 73, and O. 21, Rr. 52 and 63. O. 38, Rr. 5 and 10—Attachment before judgment—Money paid into court—Priority of attaching decree-holders.

An attachment before judgment confers no right on the party who obtains the order of attachment. Defendants attached before judgment some perishable property which was sold and the proceeds deposited in Court. Plaintiffs obtained a decree against the same debtor and applied for execution by attachment of the money in court to which defendants objected. Plaintiffs then sued for a declaration that they were entitled to the amount of their decree out of the deposit in court. Held, that priority of attachment gave no priority of title to the defendants and that the plaintiffs were entitled to a decree in the declaratory suit. A obtained a decree against B and attached B's interest in certain property. On 6th January 1896, B assigned the whole of his right, title and interest in the property to C. An attachment before judgment does not by itself give a simple creditor priority over a mortgagee nor can the former get any benefit under S. 73 when not only is there no application by him for the execution of the decree but the money is realized before attachment. it is not open to one decree-holder to attack a decree obtained by another decree-holder against the same judgment-debtor seeking rateable distribution as not creating a valid debt and entitling the decree-holder to share in the distribution of the assets under S. 73, C. The action of the Court under S. 73 is materially different from that of a court in insolvency proceedings. Sale in Execution.

——S. 73 and O. 21, R. 83 and O. 34, R. 6—Sale in execution—Sale free from mortgage—Sale postponed to enable Judgment-debtor to raise money by private alienation.

Under Section 73 of the Civil Procedure Code where any property liable to be sold in execution of a decree is subject to a mortgage or charge, the Court may with the consent of the mortgagee or incumbrancer, order that the property be sold free from the mortgage or charge, giving to the mortgagee or incumbrancer the same interest in the proceeds of the sale as he had in the property sold. But it is not so in the case of a private alienation where there is absolutely no necessity to refer to the prior incumbrancer. For a private alienation all that is necessary under O. 21, R. 83 Civil Procedure Code, is that the Court should be satisfied that the application is made in good faith and that the decree amount may be raised by the mortgage or sale of a part or whole of the attached property. In the present case it was represented to the Court that the decretal amount could be raised by private alienation. The decree holder consented to time being given to the judgment-debtors for raising money by private alienation. The plaintiff was not asked to give up his mortgage lien, nor did he or his agent make any statement in court to the effect that he would give up his mortgage lien if the judgment debtors would satisfy the decree by private alienation. Held that in the absence of any express consent on the part of the plaintiff it could not be held that plaintiffs had given up his mortgage security and that his rights as a mortgagee had come to an end. ——S 73 (1) (b) and O. 21, R. 66 (4)—Sale in execution free of mortgage—Procedure—Distribution of assets.

Property subject to a usufructuary mortgage may be attached and sold in execution of a decree against the mortgagor. Unless the mortgagee consents, the decree-holder has no right to bring the property itself to sale and all he can sell is the residual right of the mortgagor, that is, the right to recover the property on payment of the mortgage money. If either the fact of the mortgage or the amount of the mortgage money be disputed, the Court is to make a summary enquiry under O. 21, R. 66 (4) and to state the result of the enquiry in the proclamation of sale. Where there are several defendants in one decree and some of them only in another, rateable distribution is to be allowed so far as the interests of those in both decrees are concerned, S. 73 is inapplicable to the case of a judgment-debtor unless he occupies the same character in both decrees; so, when there is a decree against a judgment-debtor personally and another as heir, he is not the same "judgment-debtor" within S. 73. Nationality is not the test for determining the status for the purposes of civil rights and liabilities of a person who is an "alien enemy" within S. 83, C.P. C. A British subject voluntarily residing or carrying on business in enemy country will be treated as an alien enemy. Residence need not amount to what is called domicile (i. e.,) permanent residence sine animo revertendi. A much less permanent residence is sufficient to make a man an alien enemy provided it is not of a temporary character. If a person resides in a hostile country for a substantial period of time,he acquires, the disability attaching to an enemy during that period unless such residence is with the consent of the Crown. C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 92.

A private action is not allowed for a public injury. The civil remedy against it, is a suit under S. 91 but a private nuisance is actionable by the person injured by it. The general obstruction of a public thoroughfare, unless authorised by law, custom or contract, is a public nuisance for which a private suit is not allowed but to obstruct, annoy or endanger a particular person or body of persons only in his or their use of a public thoroughfare may be a private nuisance, for which a private action may lie. Every class or community has a right to use the public streets for religious and musical processions subject to the law against nuisances and any wrongful attack on that right will give rise to a cause of action. 30 M 15 Foll. The procession of a certain Hindu Idol along a particular road was obstructed by the members of a certain Mussalman mosque built on the road side. S. 92 is not mandatory but is permissive and directory. It is necessary for the continuance of the suit that there should be at least two plaintiffs. If one representative dies, it is open to another member of the public interested in the trust to take his place after obtaining necessary sanction. In a suit under the section one of the plffs. died. Another applied to be brought on record. The Court dismissed the suit as the applicant was not the legal representative of the deceased. Held, the Court ought to have given the applicant time to get the sanction required and for showing that he was a person interested in the trust and on proof of these two qualifications, the Court should make him a co-plaintiff. Alienation of trust property.

———S. 92 (h)—Alienation of trust property—Suit for declaration of invalidity—Maintainability—When granted—Scope of section.

S. 92, C. P. Code is intended to be an exhaustive statement of the law applicable to suits based upon any alleged breach of any express or constructive trust, created for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature.

A declaration regarding the validity of an alienation by a trustee comes within S. 92 (h). If the result of a declaration is not to produce any effect on the parties, but will only be a stepping stone for further litigation, the Court ought not to exercise its discretion and grant a declaration of such a nature. The transferee of a wakf property who is made a party to a suit under S. 92 of the C. P. C. is bound by decision in the suit and he is barred from going behind it, in a subsequent suit. ———S. 92 and O. 1, R. 8—Alienation of trustee—Suit by worshippers to set aside.

A suit under S. 92 of the C. P. C. is primarily a suit against a trustee and can only be instituted either on the ground that there has been a breach of trust or that direction of the Court is necessary for the administration of the trust. A suit under O. 1, R. 8, C. P. C. by the worshipper to set aside an alienation of mosque property by the mutwalli is maintainable without sanction. The mere fact that the trustee was a defendant in the suit did not attract the application of S. 92 of the C. P. C. since no relief was claimed against him, nor was the court asked to give any direction for the administration of the trust. (*N. R. ———S. 92— Alienation of trust property—Hindu temple—Offerings by worshippers—Appropriation by Archakas—Illegal custom—Permanent alienation of offerings by Temple Committee in favour of Archakas—Suit for declaration that alienation is invalid by worshippers without sanction.

The Devasthanam Committee of a Hindu Temple granted a permanent lease of the offerings in money made by the worshipers to the Archakas in 1893, reserving Rs. 300 a year to the temple. About the year 1825 the Archakas of the temple used to appropriate the small money offerings of the worshippers to their own use as remuneration for their services but subsequently the offerings increased in value and the Devasthanam Committee in 1882 laid claim to the same on behalf of the deity. The Archakas thereupon claimed the offerings as their own property relying on the settled usage of nearly a century and finally an arrangement was made between the Archakas and the committee by which the permanent lease of 1898 was granted. In 1911, two worshippers, acting on behalf of themselves and the others but without sanction of the Advocate-General by S 92, C. P. C. or of the Court under S. 18 of the Rel. Endowments Act, brought a suit against the Devasthanam Committee and the Archakas for a declaration that the permanent lease of 1893 was void and beyond the powers of the committee and for a direction that the trustee of the temple should retain the right of collecting the offerings. Held, by the Full Bench, that the suit was maintainable. Suits against strangers to a trust whether alienees from trustees or trespassers are not governed by S. 92. A permanent alienation of the offerings to a deity is illegal. The expression 'granting further or more relief' must be read along with the specified reliefs and those that should be granted under this clause should be of the character, as those expressly mentioned. The sanction of the Advocate-General which is a condition precedent to the institution of a suit under S. 92 of the Code is equally a condition precedent to the amendment of the same plaint especially where such amendment relates to a cause of action arising after the institution of the suit and fresh parties are added in consequence, with a claim for fresh reliefs against them. 21 B. 257 : 26 A. 162 rel. Where a hereditary trustee has been appointed and the control of the charity left in him and the legislature has not thought fit to take away from the control or administration of the trust, it is not for the court because it may think that it is undesirable that charitable funds should be administered by one man without control or even without audit to impose a control which was not part of the original trust. But the Court has very wide powers under S. 92, C. P. Code and the circumstances under which those powers should be exercised are clearly stated by the Privy Council in 43 C. 1085, 1101 (P. C.) Where the will of the deceased testator bequeathes a legacy for the constitution of a trust the proper remedy to enforce the provisions of the will is by an administration suit. ——S. 92—Public trust—Wakf—Suit for removal of mutwalli—Trust.

A suit to remove a duly appointed mutwalli of a trust created for a public purpose of a religious or charitable nature cannot be instituted save in conformity with S. 92, C. P. C. (Richards and Banerji, JJ.) SAIYAD ALI v. ALI JAN. 35 All. 98 : 18 I C. 573 : 11 A. L. J, 25.

——S 92—Public trust—Charitable or religious nature—Essentials.

Unless a trust is expressly created for a public purpose of a charitable nature, the mere fact that the income of certain property has been for long spent in feeding an idol and in maintaining and taking care of pilgrims will not by itself constitute a trust of such a nature. (Piggott, J. contra.) The words "any express or constructive trust" in S. 92 of the C. P. C. (1908) should be construed liberally and in a sense as favourable as possible to the assumption of jurisdiction by a Court under that section wherever there is a fair ground for affirming the existence of a trust. (Karamat Hussain and Piggott, JJ.) GOPAL DAS v. SHIVA DAS. 11 I. C. 308 : 8 A. L. J. 1120.

——S. 92—Public trust—Test of—Grant to Nanaksahi gaddi by Muhammadan ruler for charitable purpose—Evidence necessary.

(Per Chamier, J. contra Karamat Hussain, J.)—A grant by a Muhammadan ruler to a Nanaksahi gaddi of villages for charitable purposes which for over 100 years have been carried out by means of providing for the maintenance of the trustee, of fakirs to go about preaching the faith of the Guru and for the visitors, is a grant for public trust within the meaning of S. 92. A trust to be a trust for a public purpose, it is enough to show that it is for the benefit of a section of the public. Per Karamat Hussain, J. (Obiter dicta) :—(i) The creation of a public or private trust save by making a wakf is unknown to Muhammadan law. (ii) A Muhammadan ruler could not make a wakf in respect of property which could not be a subject of wakf. (iii) A public trust must be proved by strong evidence ; the mere fact that the income of certain property has for a long time been spent to support fakirs and visitors is not sufficient evidence of such a public trust. (iv) A grant to a mahant (the income of which he is not bound to spend on a public charitable purpose) does not mean that a public charity was created. All the legal requisites essential for the constitution of a public charity must be established by strong and clear evidence to enable the Court to declare that certain property is a public charity. An institution which encourages celebacy and parasitism and offers temptation to crime and vice cannot be an institution for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature. (Karamat Hussain and Chamier, JJ.) PURAN ATAL v. DARSHAN DAS. 11 I. C. 166.

——S. 92—Public trust—Acharaya of a temple—Constructive trustee—Suit for scheme—Maintainability of.

A constructive trustee within the meaning of S. 92 of the C. P Code would include a person who holds a particular fiduciary position whose obligation as such can be enforced in a court of law. Held, on the evidence that the Acharya of the Swaminarayan temple at Vadtal was a trustee to whom S. 92 of the C. P. Code would apply. It is true that the mahant or manager of a math is not a trustee in the strict sense of the term when used of an express or declared trust. It would be more accurate to describe him as occupying a fiduciary position. This fiduciary relationship is commonly called an implied trust but the implied trustee is subject to the same obligations as the express or declared trustee. In the case of a math as in the case of a temple the ownership is in an ideal person. In the one case it is the idol; in the other case it is the office of spiritual head. The individual holding the office is trustee for the office, the gadi or math or the institution. The succession to the property follows the succession to the office. This is the general law as to mutts In the case of maths the corpus and the income

——S. 92—Public trust—Grant to specific persons as servants of a mosque for expenses of lamp oil, etc.—Scheme.

A grant to certain specified persons, described as servants of the mosque, recited that the revenue of lands granted was to be enjoyed by the grantees according to their own needs, to defray the lamp oil expenses for the mosque and the maintenance. In the registers maintained by Government the property had been treated with the assent of the heirs of the grantees as an endowment of the mosque. Held, that the grant constituted a public religious trust and a suit for scheme was maintainable. 8 W. ——S. 92—Public trust— Inam—Grant to God and not to archakas—Proprietary right—Usage of—Misappropriation by Archakas for a few years—Effect.

The inams in question were granted absolutely for the benefit and support of a temple as trust properties and not for the limited purposes of the performance of the Archaka duties alone and no usage was proved or recognizable in law, concerning the application of the income to the said limited purpose, and there was no question of prescriptive right in the Archakas in the matter of the user of the trust properties : held, that the Archakas were not entitled to proprietary right in the inams, and misappropriation by the Archakas for a few years prior to suit formed merely a breach of trust and no usage. ——S. 92—Public trust—Caste institution—Scheme.

C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 92—Public Trust.

Though a caste or a section thereof can own a temple, a temple which is merely managed by certain caste is the subject of a charitable trust and a scheme can be framed for it under S. 92, C. P. C. 11 Bom. 534 : 8 Bom. 432 : 23 M. 82 : 27 M. 192 Foll. In framing a scheme the court need not remove trustees already holding office when no misconduct is proved against them. (*Wallis, C. ——S. 92—Public trust—Dedication—Proof—Persons interested — Worshippers — Scheme when framed.

When a deed of endowment is silent as to the nature of the trust, viz., public or private, extrinsic and circumstantial evidence can be let in as to the nature of the trust. Where a temple is open to public worship and when the usual religious festivals are conducted, the proper inference to be drawn from the circumstances is that it is a public trust and any person having a right to worship at such a temple is entitled to sue under S. 92, C. P. C., Even apart from the question of mismanagement and misappropriation, a court can settle a scheme if it can conduce to the better management of the trust property. (Stuart and Kanhaiya Lal, A. J. Cs.) LAKSHMI KUNWAR v. MURARI KUNWAR. 45 I C. 213. : 5. O. L. J. 97.

Apart from its history the court may consider the nature of the traditions or the usages of an Asthal to determine whether the trust is a public or a private trust. In a suit under the section for the removal of a mahant, the consent of some of the plaintiffs-respondents in appeal, to the management of the property by the original mahant cannot affect the validity of the suit on the date of institution or the jurisdiction of the Court to hear the appeal. If no member of the cult of the founder of the Asthal can be trusted to take charge of the Asthal property without the possibility of recurrence of mismanagement, it is proper that an independent committee should be appointed who will appoint a person to manage. although the control and management vested in the members of the family, the Court is entitled to hold that the trust was for public purposes. 19 C. W. N. 305, Appl. Suits brought not to establish a public right but to remedy a particular infringement of an individual right are not within the section. 33 Cal. 789, foll. A suit by a newly appointed muktessor of a temple, against the defts. who were the trustees and the old muktessors of the temple, to recover possession of land belonging to the temple and the moveable property belonging to the deity and mesne profits and accounts is governed by S. 92 of the C.P.C. because it is a suit for the removal of the defts. from their position as trustees, for the restoration of the trust property to the plaintiff as the Muktessor, for taking accounts, and for damages for the wrongful acts of trustees. The defts. could not be regarded as strangers claiming to hold the lands adversely to the trust though they might not agree as to their obligations under the trust, since they were really trustees and as such they claimed to be entitled to hold the lands

A mosque founded to perpetuate the memory of a departed man is a public religious institution if the public use it as a matter of right and an inam has been gaanted for its upkeep. A suit under S. 92 lies to remove trustees who have been guilty of misconduct. One of the conditions of the inam was that the grant was to enure *till the mosque existed. In order to remove a certain trustee of a temple a suit was brought under S. 92 of the Civil Procedure Code. But the case was compromised and a decree was obtained that the same man should be the manager of the temple. Afterwards an application was made to the District Judge stating that the manager should be removed from his office as he was declared insolvent. It was held that the application could not be entertained as it was not in continuation of the suit since the case was already decided and a decree was made accordingly. ——S. 92—Removal of trustee—Hereditary trustee—Trustee spending money not required by terms of endowment—Right to reimbursement.

A hereditary trustee can be removed, if his continuation in office is likely to endanger the interests of the institution. 2 Mad. 197 ref. In cases of positive misconduct, Courts of Equity have no difficulty in interposing to remove trustees who have abused their trust. But every mistake or neglect of duty or inaccuracy of conduct of trustees which will not induce Courts of Equity to adopt such a necessary course The acts or omissions must show danger to the trust property or a want of honesty or a want of a proper capacity to execute the duties or a want of reasonable fidelity. The courts must look entirely to the interests of the trust, and where the circumstances show that for the benefit of the institution it is disirable not to allow it to remain under the management of a hereditary trustee, he ought to be removed. Want of capacity to manage the trust properties is a sufficient ground for removal of a trustee. One of the most important duties of a trustee is to keep separate accounts for the trust property and to keep the trust property separate from his own property : and if that is not done and difficulties in taking accounts thereby arise, there is a presumption against the deft. and in favour of the trust. A trustee of a public charity choosing year after year to spend monies not required by the terms of the endowment out of his own pocket cannot be allowed credit for such expenditure. The trustee is bound to carry out the directions of the founder and not to encumber the trust property by systamatically incurring expenditure beyond the limits of the income of the trust property. ———S. 92—Right to sue—Members of caste—"Interest"—Meaning of.

It is impossible to define with any degree of accuracy what exactly constitutes an interest as contemplated in S. 92 of the Civil Procedure Code. A suit under S, 92 for declaration and injunction and settlement of a scheme in relation to certain immoveable property, which was alleged to be wakf and dedicated to the Imams of islam, was filed with the previous sanction of the Collector of Karachi, in the names of two persons as plaintiffs against J and A sons of M who are referred to as his heirs and legal representatives. By their written statement defendants alleged that the property in question originally belonged to M and that on his death it became the absolute property not only of his sons, the two defendants, but of his other heirs, who were not specifically named in the written statement but their names were supplied later to the plaintiff's pleader who consented to their being brought on the record as co-defendants and applied for amendment of his plaint which was granted. Beyond this, the plaint underwent no alteration in any shape or form. The sanction of the Collector was however not obtained prior to the application for this amendment. Summonses were issued to the newly added defendants who appeared and adopted the same written statement as filed by the original defendants. When the suit came on for hearing the defendants contended as a preliminary point, that as the sanction of the Collector had not been obtained prior to the amendment of the plaint by the addition of the eight defendants referred to above the suit should stand dismissed, as not being a suit sanctioned by the Collector.

C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 92—Sanction.

Held, that the original sanction given by the Collector to the institution of the suit substantially authorised the plaintiffs to sue for a declaration that certain immoveable property was Wakf and for an injunction against all that claimed an interest therein, and the mere absence of names of some of those interested in the property does not invalidate the sanction already granted or necessitate a fresh sanction before the interested parties could be brought on the record. 36 Bom. 168 Dist. Scheme.

———S. 92—Scheme—Object of—Mahomedan mosque—Management—Scheme—Guiding principles—Intention of founder — Usage — Power of Court—C. P. C. (1882), S. 539.

The object of the enquiry in a suit under S. 539 of the C. P. C. (1882) (S. 92, C. P. C.) is not to determine the conflicting rights of private individuals but to devise the best method for fully and effectually carrying out the purposes for which the trust was created.

In settling a scheme of management for a Mahomedan mosque, the court has a wide discretion ; the wishes of the founder regarding the management if conformable to the changed conditions and circumstances of the present day as well as the past history of the institution, might be taken into consideration ; but the primary duty of the Court is to consider the general interests of the body of the public for whose benefit the trust is created and the Court might vary any rule of management which it finds to be impracticable or unsuited to the best interests of the institution.

In view of the mischief of leaving the power of appointing or electing new trustees in the hands of an indeterminate and necessarily fluctuating body of people, such as the inhabitants of a locality, the Judicial Committee directed the appointment of future trustees to be made by a Committee formed out of the worshippers on a representative basis. The High Court has a large discretion in the matter of sanctioning a scheme for the management of a temple and of its funds. Unless it can be shown that that discretion has been improperly exercised or that the High Court had failed to give due consideration to matters which they should have taken into consideration, its decision ought not to be interfered with. The plaintiff the sole surviving descendant of the founder of the trust on the death of mutwalli of wakf without appointing a successor applied to be made a party to the scheme suit alleging that wakf was a private trust, but her application was disallowed and the District Court appointed the defendant as mutwalli of the wakf. Held, that in the suit as framed plaintiff could not be appointed mutwalli and the proper remedy of the plaintiff was to bring a scheme suit under S. 92 and to get her preferential claims to mutwalli-ship recognized. In a scheme for the administration of a public charity framed by the Dt. Court and confirmed by the High Court an application for modification of the scheme can be entertained only by the High Court but the Dt. Court can give necessary directions to carry out the modified scheme. Where the income of a public endowment is of an uncertain and variable character, audits should be fairly frequent and searching. No one, having any pecuniary interest in the endowment or who is a creditor of the endowment should be on the Committee of management of the endowment. A scheme should be framed where there has been gross mismanagement of the affairs of the temple and some scheme for the co-ordination of the various Kattalais and for some control over the various Kattalais in so far as it may ensure the harmonious working of the Kattalais, wherever they have to co-operate, is necessary. It cannot be said that the income of the various Kattalais belonging to a temple could be mixed up and utilised for all the purposes of the temple indiscriminately. These trusts are somewhat analogous to temple service inams, just as the latter are different from inam properties belonging to a temple, being granted to office holders on condition of rendering services in a temple and do not belong to the idol, though the idol may be interested in the rendering of the services. Similarly the incomes of the Kattalais do not belong to the idol though the idol is interested in the proper performance of the distinct duties attached to each Kattalai. A Kattalai is a distinct endowment "under a separate trustee to which specific items of expenditure are assigned as legitimate charges to be paid therefrom." Where there are numerous Kattalais a scheme has to be framed which will ensure the harmonious working of the Kattalais, when they have to co-operate in the Pagoda Service, and prevent the embezzlement of the funds of the Kattalai or their diversion by the trustees contracting debts. It is very necessary that the scheme should contain stringent prohibitions against the borrowing or lending of money by the trustees from or to the trust funds, or from one Kattalai to another Kattalai. The preparation of a budget, the proper keeping of accounts in which the income and expenditure of the Kattalais may be separately shown and the periodical audit of those accounts are matters most essentially to be provided for in the regulations in order to fix the trustees with responsibility for the due performance of their trusts and to avoid waste and indebtedness. The need for supervision and co-ordination by a controlling and inspecting body is also apparent. ———S. 92—Scheme — Hereditary trustee — Appointment of treasurer—Necessity for.

To deprive a hereditary trustee of the possession of the funds is a strong step for the Courts to take. If, however, a Court is satisfied that it is necessary in the interest of the institution to deprive him even of this power and to appoint a treasurer who should, in supersession of the Dharmakartha handle the monies allocated for the expenses, the scheme may be modified in that respect. Where an application to modify scheme settled for the administration of a public trust, is based not on the ground that the scheme is really defective but is made for the purpose of giving the worshippers a larger share in the management of the trust, and where the scheme itself is proper, though badly worked, the Court will refuse to modify the scheme. Allegations of malversation on the part of the trustees afford no ground for a modification of the scheme though they may sustain a suit for their removal from office. The relief by way of settlement of a scheme need not depend upon charges against the trustees in office. ——— S. 92—Scheme—Effect of--Private rights lost--Alteration of scheme.

Only on substantial grounds can a Court alter a scheme once settled by Court in respect of a public trust ; therefore, a scheme framed by a court under S. 92 bars a subsequent suit by a trustee not a party to the scheme suit, to establish his private rights to trust, which if established, would interfere with a charitable scheme made by Court. The erroneous order of court refusing to add him a party to the previous scheme suit cannot give the private individual a right to sue which he otherwise would not have had. He must institute a fresh scheme suit under S. 92, C. P. C. (White, C. J. and Phillips, J.) RAMDAS v. HANUMANTHA ROW.

There is no warrant for the proposition that the Court in framing a scheme under S. 92, C. P. C., had no power to depart from the arrangement contemplated by the author of the trust. The institution of a suit under S. 92, C. P. C attracts the jurisdiction of the Court and the Court has complete power to make such appointment as it considers proper in the circumstances, even though such appointment may involve a departure from the arrangement contemplated by the author or the original constitution of the trust. There is no legal restriction in the power of the Court ; but, although there is no restriction the Court ought not to depart from the arrangement contemplated by the settlor except for a very strong reason. The mere fact that the trust deed does not contemplate a scheme does not mean that a scheme should not be framed in the case

A dispute between rival claimants to the office of trustee does not fall within the section. In order to bring a case within S. 92, C. P. ——Ss. 95 and 104—Appeal— Compensation—Order—Second appeal.

An order for compensation under S. 95, C. P. C. is one independent of the decree, although it sets off the compensation as against the decreed amount. The right of appeal must be determined by S. 104 C. P. C. and it cannot form a subject of second appeal. (Sankaran Nair and Bakewell, JJ.) KANNAPPA CHETTIAR v. SAMBASIVA THEVAN. 21 I. C. 756

——S. 95—Attachment—Grounds for—Want of reasonable and probable cause—Malice—Special damage.

Plaintiff must prove want of reasonable and probable cause in a suit for damages for attachment before judgment and malice. Malice is any improper or indirect motive (i. e.) no hatred or enmity is necessary. If the motive for the attachment is to enforce speedy payment and not to defeat any intended fraud of the debtor, it will amount to malice. The plaintiff in such a suit must prove special damage It will be sufficient if it is shown that the allegations against him must damage his reputation and credit. The fact that the defendant is a man of slender means ought not to be taken into consideration as a ground for reducing the amount available as damages to the plaintiff. An order of a Divisional Court under S. 95, reversing an order of the Court of first instance is an appellate order under S. 104 (9 and under the authority of S. 104 clause (9) is not appealable. (Hartnoll C.J. and Twomey, J.) C.V.C.T. FIRM v. SAYA BYA. 11 I. C. 917 : 4 Bur. L.T. 204.

——Ss. 95 (1) (a)— Attachment —Grounds for.

To justify an attachment before judgment it is not enough that the defendant is in straightened circumstances but it must be proved that he was actually about to dispose of his property.

Compensation may be given for improperly obtaining a temporary attachment though the same is set aside on notice. An order refusing compensation is appealable. (Oldfield and Sadasiva Aiyar, JJ.) NARAHARI AYYAR v. VAITHINATHA AIYAR. 25 M.L.T. 46 : 49 I.C. 86 : 9 L.W. 69.

——S. 95 (3)—Bar of suit— Attachment before judgment—Suit for damages—Bar.

A claim for compensation for wrongful attachment of property before judgment made in a counter affidavit disputing the propriety of the interim order, is no bar to a suit for damages. S. 95 C.P.C. operates as a bar only if the claim is made at a stage at which either of the conditions postulated by the section have been fulfilled, but not otherwise. ——S. 97—Preliminary decree— What is— Omission to appeal—Partnership —Dissolution— Decree drawn up.

The C. P. Code, makes no provision for something which is neither a decree nor an order, nor anything which is both; nor does it provide that one adjudication by the Court can be resolved into diverse elements, some of which are decrees and some orders. The question is one of substance, whether an adjudication is a decree or an order. In a suit for taking accounts of a partnership, the Trial Judge made an order declaring the partnership as dissolved from a particular date and ordered that an enquiry be made by the referee as to who were the partners and as to the dealings of the partners with the assets of the partnership. No appeal was preferred against this adjudication. The inquiry was made, accounts were taken and a final decree was passed. In an appeal against the final decree, the appellant contended inter alia, that the trial judge had no jurisdiction to refer the question as to who were the partners. Held, that the former adjudication of the trial Judge was a 'decree" in so far as it declared the rights of the parties. The appellan s were precluded from disputing its correctness by reason of their omission to appeal against it. The adjudication did not cease to be a decree, because a subordinate part of it if correctly made might have been separately made as an order. ——— S. 98—Letters Patent, Cl. 36—Applicability—Judges differing in opinion.

The natural place to find the rules governing the exercise of the appellate civil jurisdiction over the other Judges of the High Court would be the Letters Patent, while the natural place to find the rules governing the exercise of the appellate civil jurisdiction over the civil Courts of the mofussal subject to the High Court would be the Civil Procedure Code. The Code makes no provision for an appeal within the High Court, that is to say, from a single Judge of the High Court. This right of appeal depends on clause 15 of the Charter. Appeals under the Letters Patent are governed by the Letters Patent, and appeals under the Code are governed by the Code. Further the Code only deals with appeals from certain Courts and does not deal with appeals within the High Court from the decision of one judge of the Court to another. Therefore when a Bench of two Judges is hearing an appeal from the decision of a single Judge of the same High Court whether on the original side or the appellate, and they differ in opinion. The opinion of the senior judge would prevail. 26 All. (1921) 23 Bom. L. R. 623 Ref. (Marten and Pratt, JJ.) BANDY WALAD DAGADU MAHAR v. JAMNADAS. 1923 Bom. 218.

If the trial Court erroneously proceeds with the suit, without following either of these courses, the objection can be repeated on appeal and the appellate Court may dispose of it in one of the two ways aforesaid.

(2) If it is not a case of imperative necessity but only a matter of convenience or expediency either the absent party may be added or the suit may be tried without him. Acquiescence.

——S. 100—Acquiescence—Question of law.

The question of acquiscence is a matter of legal inference to be drawn from the facts proved in the case and can be taken up in second appeal. (Chevis and Leslie Jones, JJ.) CHUBAR v. JAS KAUR. 69 P. R. 1917 : 41 I. C. 927 : 103 P. W. R. 1917.

Acquiescence is sometimes a pure question of fact, but becomes a question of law when the point is whether conduct of a party not amounting to direct consent should be taken as waiver. Necessity may be a question of fact, but becomes a question of law when the Court decides on wrong principles as to the quantum of proof of necessity. (*Johnstone C. ——S. 100 and O. 41, R. 27—Additional evidence—Appellate Court refusing to admit—Interference in second appeal.
Per Chief Justice and Ayling, J. (Sadasiva Iyer, Diss.) The High Court is not empowered to interfere in second appeal with an order of the Lower Appellate Court rejecting an application made to it for the admission of additional evidence under O. 41, R. 27 (1) of the C. P. Code. Per Sadasiva Iyer, J.—The question whether the Appellate Court exercised the discretion properly is a question of law and the High Court is entitled to consider it in second appeal. ——S. 100—Additional evidence—Admission of.
Per Sadasiva Aiyer, J.—The High Court cannot admit fresh evidence as to facts in second appeal. Where a party thinks that any fresh evidence, which is discovered after the decision of the Appellate Court would have been of assistance to him if it had been considered at the original trial or appeal he should withdraw the appeal and apply for review of judgment in the Lower Appellate Court. Per Spencer, J.—A Bench of the High Court hearing second appeals may when calling for a finding on any issue from the Lower Appellate Court permit the parties to adduce fresh evidence on that issue if a good case is made out for it. ——S. 100—Admissibility of evidence—Evidence Act, S. 45—Comparison of handwriting.

Comparison of signatures is one of the modes of proving handwriting and although where there is no other evidence such proof would be regarded as hazardous and inconclusive, it cannot be regarded as an error in law to base the conclusion on such proof alone, and a Court of second appeal would have no power to set aside a finding based on such comparison. 14 I. 33 I. C. 937 : 24 P. W. R. 1916.

——S. 100—Admissibility of evidence—Objection.

An objection to the admissibility of a document in evidence cannot be allowed to be raised in second appeal when, in lower Appellate Court, the party objecting only endeavoured to explain away its effect. A finding of fact arrived at by the Lower Appellate Court is conclusive in second appeal unless it is vitiated by an error in law or by there being no evidence to support the conclusion or unless the conclusion drawn is not warranted by the findings. ——S. 100—Admissibility of evidence—Judgment based on.

Where the Lower Court has based its decision partly on irrelevant evidence, the High Court will not in Second Appeal decide whether the other evidence in the case is sufficient to support the findings arrived at. S. 167 of the Evidence Act is not a bar to such a case being remanded. (Dawson Miller, C. J. and Mullick, JJ.) MUSSAMAT SUMITRA KUER v. RAM KAIR CHOWBEY, ——S. 100—Appreciation of evidence—Finding of first Appellate Court.

A finding of a first Appellate Court is not illegal simply because it does not give as much weight to a certain circumstance as the High Court might have done, if it had been the Court of first appeal, especially when it is based also on other facts. 24 I. C. 383 : 1 L. W, 350.

——S. 100--Appreciation of evidence—Credibility of witnesses.

The credibility of witnesses accepted by the Courts below cannot be considered in second appeal but the sufficiency of the evidence can be considered in second appeal. (Kendall, A. J. C.) RAM DAT v. SUKHIA. 25 I. C. 869 : 1 O. L. J. 470.

——S. 100 — Appreciation of evidence — Witnesses—Creditability—Second appeal.

Where evidence is disbelieved simply because the witness is a patwari or a relative of the party producing him and such other general reasons, it is an error in law and a second appeal will lie. (Baillie, S. M. and Tweedy, J. M.) GAYA PRASAD PANDE v. ABBAS BANDI BIBI.

——S. 100—Appreciation of evidence—Findings of fact, when to be questioned.

The findings of fact cannot be questioned on second appeal unless the appellant shows that the lower court has committed some error of law in deciding it. The value to be attached to evidence is not a question open in second appeal. (Lindsay, J. C.) DULARE SINGH v SUMER SINGH. 21 I. C. 95.

——S. 100—Appreciation of evidence.

A second Appellate Court cannot consider the credibility of any particular evidence. But where the lower Court has rejected admissible evidence or has acted upon inadmissible or inadequate evidence the second AppellateCourt can interfere in second appeal. (Lindsay, A. J. C.) LALMAN v. NAND LAL. 20 I. C. 894 : 17 O. C. 1.

——S. 100—Appreciation of evidence—Weighing of evidence.

The precise degree of weight to be attached to the different parts of evidence is not a matter for second appeal. If a finding of fact had been arrived at after a careful consideration of the whole evidence no valid objection in law could be made in second appeal with respect to the finding. (*Piggott, A. J. Benami.

A question of benami or fraud is not a question of pure facts : it is a mixed question of fact and law, and if the Court proceeds on a mere suspicion and draws inference from facts proved such as no reasonable man would draw, then the Court committed an error of law, and the High Court may interfere in second appeal. 21 Mad. 56 : 7 All. 649, Ref. Burden of Proof.

——S. 100—Burden of proof—Question of law or fact.

The question of onus is not necessarily and in all cases one of law. How much or what evidence is sufficient to discharge the onus is a question which will depend upon the weight to be attached to the evidence adduced. Ordinarily it is not possible on second appeal to go behind concurrent findings of fact but where not only the findings are perverse in the sense that they were opposed to the weight of the oral evidence but that was due to the fact that the trial court wholly ignored the entry in certain document whilst the first appellate court entirely failed to realise its probative value the High Court set aside the concurrent findings of fact. C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 100—Conflicting findings.

When questions of fact are involved in a case, the Appellate Court ought to give its reasons for dismissing the appeal and its judgment should at least show that the Court understood the case and did consider the ground of appeal in view of the provisions of S. 100, C. P. C. with regard to the binding nature of concurrent findings of fact on the High Court. (Mc Coll, J. C.) NGA SEN BAW v. NGE LUE. 33 I. C. 666 : (1915) II. U. B. R. 92.

——S. 100—Consideration of evidence—Judgment of reversal.

In a judgment of reversal it is absolutely necessary tnat good grounds should be shown for coming to any finding of fact. There must be sufficient material in the judgment of Appellate Court to show the High Court that Lower Appellate Court has considered the evidence and duly considered the reasons given by the trial Courts in its judgment for coming to a contrary decision. ——S. 100—Consideration of evidence—Finding of fact—Kabuliyat.

It is not proper in the second appeal generally to consider whether or not the lower courts have taken a right view of evidence in coming to findings of fact, but the construction of Kabuliyats upon which the courts below mainly based their view, that a custom was shown, can certainly be considered by the High Court in order to see whether their meaning has been rightly interpreted. When a Judge has only pretended to consider the evidence, the High Court on second appeal will not accept the decision as binding on a question of fact. Construction of document.

The date, at which a particular holding first began to be held as a definite holding, is essentially a question of fact, and must depend on evidence. That evidence may be, and naturally is, documentary, but the documents admitted in evidence upon that question are really historical materials, and although they have to be construed, and if possible understood, they are not to be treated as involving issues of law merely because they have to be construed. It is not as though they were being construed, as instruments of title or mere contracts or statutes, or otherwise the direct foundation of rights. ——S 100 — Construction of document—Misconstruction—When a question for second appeal.

Where a Court of appeal has read entries in revenue papers and has simply decided to what extent the entries indicated the plaintiff's possession of certain plot of land and it has in no way interpreted these entries to indicate any legal point, his decision in interpreting these documents is a decision of fact and not of law. Where there is sufficient evidence to support a finding of fact in second appeal it cannot be impeached on the ground that the reasoning is not accurate. The words "usage having the force of law" in S. 100 (a) of the Code do not give the Court any large powers of interference with findings as to custom in so far as they are findings of fact. When the reliability of evidence let in is for the Lower Appellate Court, the value attached to the evidence if it is accepted as true and the relevancy of the evidence are questions to be considered by the High Court also. If in spite of uncontradicted instances ranging over a long period and recognized judicially in several cases, the Lower Appellate Court finds against the existence of a custom on the ground that in its opinion the instances are not sufficient in number, the High Court can hold on the facts found that the custom is legally established. ———S. 100—Custom—Wazib-ul-arz — Proof of custom.

The question whether a wajib-ul-arz is sufficient proof of a custom recorded is a question not of law but of fact, relating to the weight due to the evidence. It cannot be said as a matter of law that a wajib-ul-arz, if unrebutted, is conclusive proof of custom. (Lindsay, J. C.) TILAK RAM v. SITA RAM. 30 I. C. 503: 2 O. L. J. 388.

——S. 100—Nature of tenancy—Question of law.

The nature of a tenancy is a question of law when it turns on the construction of some written instrument. The question whether a tenancy is a tenancy at-will or a yearly tenancy may be a question of law but it does not mean, that the whole question is open in second appeal on the merits. It means that it is open to a party to show that one or other of the terms have been wrongly applied to the facts found. A question of law arises where the finding of a Court is not based on any evidence capable of supporting it or where the evidence is all the other way pointing irresistably to another or opposite conclusion. Per Jwala Prasad, J.—Where once a second appeal has been properly laid, the ordinary rules under O. 41 and O. 42, C. P. Code will apply. ——S. 100—Question of fact—Erroneous decision.

Held, that the law had deliberately laid down that on questions of fact, there should be only one appeal and that it was to the public interest that there should be an end to the litigation even at the cost of occasional error, that if this rule was strictly enforced the parties would know where they were, and that if a High Court every time it differed from the view of the Court below on a question of fact, was to seek out flimsy pretexts for treating the question as one of law, the whole policy of law would be defeated. An inference drawn from facts by the lower appellate court is a finding of fact and cannot be interfered with in second appeal. (Miller, C. J. and Kulwant Sahay, JJ.) BION v. SHEOGULAM LAL. 74 I. C. 843.

A finding of fact by a lower Appellate Court, however erroneous, will not be disturbed in second appeal. (Das, J.) PURGAN PANDE v. DHANPAT TEWARI, 52 I. C. 739.

The question whether a particular person did a certain act with a particular intention or not is a question of fact and not a mixed question of law and fact. (Roe and Imam, JJ.) RAGHUBIR PRASAD v. MISRI KAHAR, 45 I. C. 303.

——Ss. 100 and 107—Finding of fact—Wrong application of Law—Duty of Appellate Court—Remand.

A Court of appeal must assume that a Judge knows the law which he is called upon to administer and that he applies it to the facts of the case before him; and if there is evidence to sustain the conclusion of fact at which he arrives, then his decision is unimpeachable. In cases where a Judge states and wrongly states what the law is and applies wrong legal principles to the facts of the case so stated by him then in such cases the Appellate Court will intervene and correct the erroneous principles of law which the Judge has applied and remand the case for a re-hearing with a correct exposition of the law. ——S. 100—Finding of fact—No evidence—Interference in second appeal.

The High Court can interfere in second appeal with the finding of fact of the lower Appellate Court where there is no evidence on record to justify it. (Rigg, J. C.) MA TOK v. MA CHIT. (1917) 3 U.B.R. 23 : 42 I.C. 68 : 11 Bur. L.T. 229

C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 100—Question of fact.

Inferences of fact which are not unreasonable and are justified by evidence cannot be interfered with in second appeal. (Kincaid, J C, and Raymond, A. J, C.) PEWANDBAI v. CHETANMAL.
62 I. C. 1002 : 15 S. L. R. 84.

——S 100—Finding of fact—Inference by lower courts.

When the High Court is satisfied that the conclusions drawn by the lower courts from the facts are legally deducible, it will not enquire in second appeal as to whether those conclusions are correct or not. (Pratt, J.C. and Crouch, A. J. C.) NUR MAHOMED v. KESSUMAL.
20 I. C. 523 : 7 S. L. R. 11.

Question of Law.

——S. 100—Question of law—Test of—Finding of fact—No jurisdiction to interfere.

Questions of law and of fact are sometimes difficult to separate. The proper legal effect of a proved fact is essentially a question of law; so also is the question of admissibility of evidence and the question whether any evidence has been offered on one side or the other ; but the question whether the fact has been proved when evidence for and against has been properly admitted, is necessarily a pure question of fact. The High Court has no jurisdiction in second appeal to revise the evidence and set aside the decree of the Lower Appellate Court on the ground that it had applied the wrong standard of measurement to land of which the rent was in question. C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 100—Question of law.

——S. 100—Question of law—Legal result of facts.

The question as to what is the legal result of certain facts is a question of law and can therefore be raised in second appeal. (Lyle, J.) TRIBUI PERSHAD v. RAM NARAYAN.
20 I. C. 951 : 11 A. L. J. 713.

——S. 100—Question of law—Point involving evidence.

The appellant cannot in second appeal take a point of law which involves the taking of additional evidence. (Marten and Pratt, JJ.) SHRIDHAR LAXMAN v. JANARDHAN. 72 I. C. 993 :
1923 Bom. 37.

——S. 100—Question of law-Validity of gift.

If for the first time, in second appeal various questions of law are raised but in order to decide these questions of law evidence would have to be taken, points of law of that description are not admissible. A deed of gift to be valid must be accepted by the donee ; but where it was never suggested in the Court below that the deed was invalid, because it had not been accepted. Held, it is not competent in second appeal for the appellant to urge the invalidity of the gift on the ground of non-acceptance. (Macleod, C. J. and Shah, J.) TRIKAM LAL v. NAGENDAS JETH LAL.
1922 Bom. 148.

——S. 100—Question of law—Documentary evidence—Inference from—Not a question for second appeal.

A second appeal does not lie, because some portion of the evidence may be in writing and the Judge makes a mistake as to the meaning of it. For instance, a writing supposed to contain an admission may be put in as part of the evidence, but a mistake in its meaning is not a misconstruction of a document upon which a special appeal will lie if it is connected with other evidence affecting its construction. The misconstruction of a document which is the foundation of the suit, which is in the nature of a contract or a document of title, is allowed to be a ground for second appeal. In second appeal, the High Court can make deductions from facts found without disturbing the findings of the Lower Appellate Court. (Fletcher and Richardson, JJ.) BHUBAN MOHINI v. GAJALAKSHMI.
32 I. C. 119 : 19 C. W. N. 1330.

——S. 100—Question of law—Findings contrary to facts.

A wrong decision based upon findings contrary to the facts found raises a point of law. Dealing with the evidence piecemeal is a vicious practice. (Holmwood and Chapman, JJ.) GOPAL CHANDRA DEB GOSWAMI v. PADMAPANI GOSWAMI. 18 I. C. 148

——S. 100—Question of law — Fraud—Evidence.

C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 100—Question of law.

The second appellate Court's duty is to see whether the facts found by the Court of first instance justify the inference of fraud, just as the Courts in England have got to do in cases tried by them with a Jury. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) RADHA MADHAB PAIKARA v. KALPATRA ROY.

———S. 100—Question of law—Legal inference from proved fact—Finding of fact and inferences from facts—Liability to be disturbed in second appeal.

While the District Court's decision as to the effect of the evidence must stand final as to the facts the soundness of the conclusions from those facts may involve matters of law and may be questioned by a Court of second appeal. The proper legal effect of a proved fact is essentially a question of law. 20 Cal. 93 and 46 Cal. 189 Foll. (Broadway, J.) PURAN v. LALA. 73 I. C. 795 : 1923 Lah. 216.

An objection that the appeal to the lower appellate court was presented out of time is a question of law and it may be taken on second appeal. (Scott Smith and Abdul Qadir, JJ.) NIGAHIA RAN v. BHAGU MAL. 65 I. C. 580 : 1922 Lah. 240.

———S. 100—Question of law—Abandonment.

An appellant is entitled to question in second appeal the effectiveness of the abandonment in law on the facts found, and the Court may allow the plea to be raised even if it has not been taken in the memorandum of appeal as it involves a pure question of law. (Abdul Raoof, J.) RAJA v. SALABAT. 66 I. C. 935 : 3 Lah. L. J. 27.

———S. 100—Question of law—Inference from documents.

The interpretation of a document is a point of law and the legal inference to be drawn from admitted facts is also a question of mixed law and fact with which the High Court can interfere in second appeal. A question whether a vendor's lien was or was not lost is one which is open to consideration in second appeal. Second Appeal.

——S. 100—Second appeal—Decision of District Court on appeal from forest officer—Madras Forest Act V of 1882, Ss. 10 and 16—Second appeal to High Court if competent.

An objector to certain aforestration proceedings put in a claim before the Forest Settlement Officer who registered the claim. There was an appeal to the District Court from the decision of the Forest Officer as provided by S. 10 of the Madras Forest Act. The claimant preferred a second appeal to the High Court, Held, that when the proceedings reached the Dt. Court, that court was appealed to as one of the ordinary courts of the country with regard to whose procedure, orders and decrees, the ordinary rules of the C. P. Code apply and that the appeal to the High Court was competent. The claim in such proceedings being the assertion of a legal right to possession of, and property in, land, it would require a specific statutory limitation to exclude the ordinary incidents of litigation such as the right of appeal. 39 I. ——S. 102—Scope of—Cognizable by Small Causes—Second appeal—Suit subsequently withdrawn from Small Causes—Right of appeal.

The word "cognizable" in S. 102, C. P. C. is restricted to the nature of the proceedings prior to the decree and not to its character at the time of filing the second appeal. The principle of law that a right to prefer an appeal being a vested right could not be affected by legislation is equally applicable to parties who have acquired a right to treat a judgment as final and conclusive. An act which deliberately withdraws certain class of cases from the jurisdiction of particular Courts cannot be said to declare the law and does not have a retrospective effect. In a suit by a landlord (ryotwari pattadar) to eject his tenants, the latter claimed permanent occupancy rights. The District Court on first appeal gave a decree to the landlord. The High Court on Second Appeal called for revised findings from the District Court as to whether the tenants had occupancy rights but the District Judge failed to appreciate the point of view suggested by the High Court and did not make a satisfactory return. The High Court then examined the evidence and found that the tenants had proved their claim to occupancy rights and dismissed the plaintiff's suit. Held, that the High Court had power under S. 103 of the C. ———S. 104 (1) (f) and Sch. II, Paras 1 and 15—Order refusing to file award—Appeal—Reference through Court—Order setting aside award under Para. 15—Interlocutory order—Appeal—Revision,

Cl. (1) of S. 104 of the C, P, Code refers to cases where a matter has been referred to arbitration without the intervention of the Court, There is an inherent difference between orders refusing to file an award on a matter referred to an arbitration without the intervention of the Court and those referred to under Sch. II para 1, C. P, Code. In the former case, the Court refuses to file an award, and its order amounts to a formal adjudication in the matter of controversy and conclusively determines the rights of the parties. In the case of orders setting aside an award under para. 15 of Sch. II, the order is only of an interlocutory nature and is in no way a conclusive adjudication of the matter in dispute. Consequently such an order is not open to revision. (Wilberforce, J) BEHARI LAL v. KHAN CHAND,

——S. 105—Plea not raised in Appellate Court.

The mortgagees sued on a mortgage; but their suit was dismissed on the ground that no consideration for the mortgage passed. On appeal to the High Court, the consideration being held to be proved, the case was remanded under O. 41, R. 23 for a decision on merits. The defendants did not support the decision of the Lower Court on any other ground before the High Court; but raised the question of invalid attestation under S. 59 of the T. P. Act in the lower court on remand. The Lower Court again dismissed the suit on that ground, Held (1) that the Lower Court could not frame a fresh preliminary issue when the case is remanded, as the effect of the remand order was to send back the case to the first court to try the remaining issues. (2) That the technical plea of attestation ought to be treated as raised for the first time in appeal. The defendants having failed to raise the objection before the High Court precluded themselves from raising it at the subsequent stage of the same litigation either as res judicata or on the general discretion of the Appellate Court in dealing with substantially new pleading taken up in appeal for the first time and incapable of disposal without fresh evidence. Where in an action for damages and injunction the plaintiffs had alleged in their plaint title to and possession of the land in dispute but the defendants having denied the latter fact the plaintiffs applied for an amendment by addition of a prayer for declaration of title. The court of first instance did not allow the amendment but the appellate Court did and remanded the case for retrial. In the course of retrial the plaintiff applied for another amendment with a prayer for recovery of possession. An objection was taken to the amendment that it altered the character of the suit and was illegal but the objection was disallowed, and the suit was decreed and the appellate court affirmed the decision. Held in 2nd appeal that the second amendment ought not to have been allowed and that the other party was not precluded from taking objection to it showing that they were prejudiced by it, even though not having appealed against the order of remand they could not question the validity of that order and consequently the validity of the first amendment. C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 109—Final order.

——S. 109—Final order—Order for a personal decree in mortgage suit—Appeal to Privy Council.

In an execution appeal which arose out of a mortgage decree, the decree holders were the appellants in the High Court. They had obtained execution of their mortgage decree in a somewhat uncommon but perfectly lawful manner. They had exhausted the whole of the property covered by the decree, and they alleged that a very considerable portion of the decree still remained unsatisfied. They applied to the Court below to prepare a decree covering this unsatisfied balance, under the provisions of O. 34, R. 6, of the Code of Civil Procedure. The office report prepared at the time the application was made showed that the amount due under the decree on the date of the said report, namely, the 23rd of May 1918, was Rs. 32,119-7-6, and that the total amount realised by the sale of the mortgaged property was only Rs.18,600. The judgment-debtors objected that the application for a decree under O. 34, R. 6 was statute-barred under appropriate article of the Indian Limitation Act, The execution Court upheld this contention and dismissed the application of the decree holders. On appeal, a Bench of the High Court held that the application was within time. The order of the Court below, was then set aside and the execution Court was ordered to re-admit the application of the decree holders on to its file of pending applications and to dispose of it according to law. Held, that under the circumstances this amounted to a direction that a decree under Order 34, Rule 6, should be prepared, the details of which were left for the execution Court to settle, and that the order of the High Court was a final order against which leave to appeal to the Privy Council should be granted. C. and an appeal did not lie to the Privy Council from that decision. But the question whether fraud of the mortgagor would vitiate registration and disentitle the mortgagee to enforce his mortgage was a substantial question of law and therefore the case was fit for appeal to the Privy Council. ——S. 109—Final Order—Suit dismissed on preliminary point.

An order of the High Court, in an appeal from an order dismissing a suit on a preliminary point, setting aside the dismissal and remanding the suit for trial of the remaining issues, is a decree or final order within S. 109. ——S. 109—Final order.

An order of the High Court remanding a case for trial with the direction that a person should be sued as a residuary legatee, is not a final decree or order within the Code. (Sanderson, C. J. and Woodroffe, J.) BIRENDRA NATH v. NRIPENDRA NATH. 46 I. C. 681 : 22 C. W. N. 640.

——S. 109—Final order— Meaning of—Temporary injunction—Refusal to issue.

The term "final order" denotes an order which finally decides any matter directly at issue in the case in respect of the rights of the parties. An order of the High Court, made in reversal of the order of the Court of First instance, refusing to issue a temporary injunction against the execution of a mortgage decree is not a final order and cannot be appealed against to the Privy Council. In a case where leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council is applied for on the ground of the case being a fit one for appeal, no question of the order being final arises. —— S. 109 and O. 9, R. 8—Final order—Suit dismissed for default—Order setting it aside

An order which deprives a party of the benefit of a final decree and directs the suit as against him to be tried again is a final order and an appeal lies to the Privy Council. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) MEAGHRAJ v. BIDYABATI KOER.

——S. 109—Final order—Order of remand

An order of remand merely remitting the case for retrial on the merits without deciding any question as to the right in dispute is not a final order and is not appealable. (Jenkins, C. J. and Mookerjee, J.) KRISHNA CHANDRA GHOSH v. RAM NARAIN SINGH. 21 I. C. 430 : 18 C. L. J 124.

An order of the High Court in revision, which reverses the order of the lower court entitling a person to sue in forma pauperis is a 'final order' and an appeal from it lies to the Privy Council, where the application is rejected on the ground that the plaint showed no cause of action and not on the ground that the petitioner is not a pauper. (Mookerjee and Caspersz, JJ.) HARISH CHANDRA v. NAWAB BAHADUR OF MURSHIDABAD.

——S. 109 (a) and (c)—Final order.

An order by the High Court refusing the stay of execution under O, 41, R. 5 is not a final order passed on appeal within the meaning of S, 109 (a) nor is it a case covered by S, 109 (c). (Mookerjee and Caspersz, JJ.) SHRINBASH PROSAD SINGH v. KESHO PROSAD SINGH.

An order of remand is interlocutory and therefore not subject of appeal to His Majesty in Council; it can be a final order if it decides some cardinal point in the suit but an order of remand which merely decides that a suit is maintainable in the form in which it is brought is not final. ——Ss. 109, and 110—Final order—Meaning of—Suit for dissolution of partnership and accounts.

To find out whether an order is a "final order" within S, 109, C. P. C, it is the effect of the order as determining the disputed right of a party not as formally concluding the proceedings which must be regarded as decisive. Where a suit for dissolution of partnership and accounts was dismissed as barred by limitation by the trial court but on appeal the High Court reversed that decision and remanded the case for the passing of a preliminary decree. Held that the order of the High Court as it finally declared plaintiff's right to an account, was a final order and was therefore appealable to the Privy Council. ——S. 109—Final order—Remand by High Court—Judgment, final as regards one of the properties only—Leave, if can be granted.

When the High Court on appeal remanded a suit to the Lower Court for further trial on the merits, it would not amount to a final judgment within S. 109 cl. ——S. 109, Cl. (a) and (c)—Fit case—Leave to appeal to the Privy Council - Order of remand—When appealable.

Ss 97 and 105 of the C. P. Code do not regulate the right of appeal to His Majesty in Council, for an order which the Code declares to be final may yet be open to an appeal to His Majesty in Council, if the effect of the order is to negative the right of a party to continue the suit. Such an order would have the effect of finally determining the rights of the parties. The nature of the order in each case would determine whether it was final or interlocutory. If the order finally disposes of the rights of the parties, it ought to be treated as final order, but if it did not it is an interlocutory order from which no appeal could be entertained. Where the order in question did not finally determine the rights of the parties but merely disposed of a subsidiary issue, the determination of which would require the continuation of the trial, held that if the suit ultimately failed on the merits an appeal to the Privy Council might become wholly unnecessary and that leave to appeal to the Privy Council could not be granted, To determine whether special leave should be given it must be borne in mind that what is contemplated in S. 109 (c) of the C. ——S. 109 (c)—Substantial question of law—What is—Costs of appeal to Privy Council—Order as to.

S. 109 (c) of the Code of Civil Procedure, contemplates a class of cases in which there may be involved questions of public importance, or which may be important precedents governing numerous other cases, or, in which, while the right in dispute is not exactly measurable in money, it is of great public or private importance.

Where the point in issue appears to be of general importance to the appellant but not of sufficient importance to the proposed respondent to warrant the High Court in putting him to the expense of an appeal to the highest tribunal, the High Court must refuse leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council.

The High Court has no power, in granting leave to appeal, to impose a condition that the appellant should, in any event, pay all the costs of the other party. (Schwabe, C. J., Coutts Trotter and Kumaraswami, Sastri, JJ.) RAJA RAJESWARA SETHUPATHI v. TIRUNEELAKANTAM SERVAI.

The question of rightful or wrongful exercise of its discretion by the High Court does not involve any substantial question of law within S. 110 (3) of the Civil Procedure Code. The High Court declined to grant a certificate for leave to appeal to the Privy Council, where the only appeal which the appellant could make would be to ask the Privy Council to hold that the High Court had wrongly exercised its discretion in refusing to grant leave, under Cl. 12 of the Letters Patent, to file an additional statement. ——S. 110—Substantial question of law—Several decisions of Court—Point of law.

There has been a number of cases beginning in the year 1868 and going down to the year 1913 all to the same effect, namely, that the claims for malikana being claims in respect of an interest in land did become barred absolutely by limitation under the provisions of the statute before the Act of 1871 and that the statutes of 1871 and 1877 did not have the effect and could not have the effect of reviving the claim which had already become barred. Held that owing to this long consensus of opinion on the question the High Court would not treat it as a substantial question of law remaining to be determined but should refuse the present application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council on the ground that there is no substantial question of law, and if the appellant wished to have this question brought before their Lordships of the Privy Council he would have to make a special application to that effect. ——S. 110—Valuation—Mortgage suit.

Plaintiff sued to redeem his mortgaged property. He claimed that all the money due had been paid from the usufruct and that there was a large surplus which was due to him. The trial Court held that the entire mortgage money had been paid and decreed plaintiff's claim for possession and for a surplus amount of Rs. 9,012-12-8. The defendant appealed to the High Court to be relieved of the surplus awarded to plaintiff and claimed a sum of Rs. 2,073 due on the mortgage. The decree of the trial Court was modified in the High Court to the extent of reducing the surplus awarded to Rs. 7,910-11-7. The defendant then applied for leave to appeal to His Majesty. Held that the value of the subject-matter, including the surplus awarded viz. Rs. 7,910-11-7 amounted to Rs. 983-11-7 since in the memorandum of appeal to the High Court the defendant had claimed only Rs. 2,073 on the mortgage and had not claimed possession of the property. It not being alleged that the appeal affected a question relating to property exceeding Rs. 10,000 in value, no leave to appeal could be granted under S. 110 although the decree of the High Court varied the decree of the Court below. ———S. 115 and O. I R, 13—Addition of parties—Non-joinder of parties—Revision.

Where the right to raise an objection as to non-joinder came into existence during the suit, and such objection was not taken in the trial court, it cannot be raised in revision. (Richardson and Beachcroft, JJ.) NILMONI DE v. SOORENDRA NATH MITRA. 46 I. C. 648.

———S. 115, O. 1, R 10 (2) and O.31. R.2—Addition of parties—Government of India Act, S. 107.

In a suit by a widow as the administratrix, a person claiming as adopted son of her husband applied to be made a co-plff. on the ground that the widow was guilty of laches and collusion. The widow admitted the fact of adoption but denied authority. Held, that the applicant ought to have been joined as co-plff. and the High Court could interfere under S. 115 of the C, P. Code or S. 107 of the Government of India Act. 14 C. W. N. 703, foll. (Teunon and Newbould, JJ.) JUGAL KRISHNA MULLICK v. PHULKUMARI DASSI 44 I. C. 564.

———S. 115 and O.1, R.10—Addition of parties—Order refusing to make a transposition of parties when open to revision.

Though the High Court will not interfere in revision with an order of a Lower Court refusing to make a transposition of the parties, a revision will lie when such an order of refusal is expressly based on a supposed jurisdiction in the court. ———S. 115 and O.1, R.10—Addition of parties—Scheme suit—Persons claiming to be trustees.

The High Court in revision set aside an order of the Lower Court refusing to add persons bona fide claiming to be trustees as parties to a scheme suit. The framing of a scheme would mean the loss of their right. (1917) M. W. N. 550, foll. (Krishnan, J.) MULAKUTLA RAMA MURTHI v. CHILLARA BHASKAR AYYA. 50 I. C. 58.

———S. 115—Addition of parties—Interlocutory order—High Court's powers—Revision.

The High Court will interfere even with an interlocutory order directing addition of parties passed by a subordinate Court if it is not a mere exercise of discretion but want of jurisdiction which might cause injustice to the party, in spite of the fact that there is a remedy by way of appeal against the final judgment in a suit. C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 115—Amendment of decree.

———S. 115—Addition of party—Scheme suit.

The action of a Court in a suit under S. 92. C.P.C., refusing to implead as a party defendant, the son of a hereditary trustee, amounts to an illegality and the High Court has power to interfere under S. 115, C.P. C. and S. 107, Govt. of India Act. (Ayling and Seshagiri Aiyar, JJ.) VAITHILINGAM v. RAMALINGAM PILLAI. 6 L. W. 9 : 38 I. C. 133: (1917) M. W. N. 550.

A, a co-mortgagee brought a suit against the mortgagor for foreclosure and joined the other co-mortgagee as defendant who refused to join as plaintiff and claimed against him his share of the amount which the mortgagor was alleged to have paid. The plaintiff was ordered to amend the plaint as the causes of action were improperly joined and the parties were improperly joined. It was held that the order for amendment was wrong and could be set aside in revision and that the cause of action against both co-mortgagee and mortgagor was one as the main question was what payments were made to the co-mortgagee. (Drake-Brockman, J.C.) MAHADEO v. NAGO. 12 I. C. 357 : 7 N. L R. 130.

———S. 115 and O. 1, R. 10—Addition of parties—Revision.

A person cannot be impleaded on allegations based on hearsay. Illegal and improper impleading of a person is a ground for revision by High Court. (Lindsay, J. C., and Stuart, A. J. C.) ALLAHABAD BANK v. MAHAMMAD RAZA KHAN. 16 I. C. 592 : 15 O. C. 304.

———S. 115 and O. 1, R. 10—Addition of parties—Improper refusal.

Where an application under O. 1, R. 10 of the C. P. Code asking that a certain person be added as a party-defendant to a suit and praying for permission to amend the plaint accordingly is rejected, no appeal lies against the order rejecting the application. Where, however, it appears that the Court has exercised wrong discretion in rejecting the application, the High Court can interfere in revision or under S. 107 of the Government of India Act. Amendment of decree.

———Ss. 115, 151 and 152—Amendment of decree—Refusal—Revision.

Upon an application by the mortgagor for the amendment of the decree, the Court refused to order the amendment as "uncalled for". Held, that the order was tantamount to a refusal to exercise the jurisdiction and the High Court's interference in revision was justified. C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 115—Amendment of decree.

A Sub-Judge rejecting a petition for amendment of a decree holding that the expression "future interest" in the decree means interest from the date of decision not from the date of institution of suit, commits no irregularity and the High Court cannot interfere in revision whether his decision is right or wrong. (Chamier and Piggott, JJ.) KANHAI LAL v. MUL CHAND. 26 I. C. 808.

——S. 115—Amendment of decree.

An order under S. 152 (S. 206 of C. P. C., 1882.) directing amendment of a decree, not in conformity with judgment, is not a decree and therefore not appealable but revision lies. (Chevis, J.) BAWAL SINGH v. LACHANMAN SINGH. 24 P. R. 1911: 186 P. L. R. 1911: 10 I. C 850: 56 P. W. R. 1911.

C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 115—Appeal.

——S. 115—Amendment of plaint—Order allowing—Revision.

An amendment of the plaint is in the discretion of the Court and, if wrongly allowed, the defendant could attack the order on appeal if the decision is against him. The High Court will not interfere in revision with the order especially when it does not change the character of the suit or cause material injustice to the defendant. (Odgers, J.) RAMA KRISHNA PILLAI v. KRISHNA SWAMI PILLAI. 15 L. W. 667 : (1922) M. W. N. 521: 68 I. C. 167: 1922 M. 321.

——S. 115—Amendment of plaint—Revision.

Where a Dt. Judge refused to amend the plaint as such amendment materially altered the nature of the suit and passed an order under O.VI, R.17, C. P. C., the High Court cannot interfere in revision, even though the Dt. Judge exercised his discretion wrongly unless he acted with such material irregularity as to justify interference in revision. (Phillips, J.) V. VENKATASUBBIAH v. SESHACHALLAM. 22 M. L. J. 136: 10 M.L.T. 549: 12 I. C. 173 . (1911) 2 M.W.N. 257.

——S. 115—Amendment of plaint—Refusal.

Where a Court dismisses a suit refusing an opportunity to amend the plaint, if necessary, the High Court can interfere under S. 115, C. P. C. An error of procedure resulting in a failure of justice is a material irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction. (Das, J.) MAHARAJA SIR RAMESHWAR SINGH BAHADUR v. SADANAND JHA. 1 Pat. Amendment of Pleadings.

——S. 115—Amendment of pleadings—Other remedy—Appeal—No revision.

Where there is another remedy open to a party such as an appeal, if eventually the judgment is passed against him, the High Court would not entertain revision under S. 115, C. P. C. or S. 15 of the Charter Act and so no revision can be allowed against an order refusing permission to amend the pleadings. (Woodroffe and Carnduff, JJ.) CHANDI ROY v. KIRPAL ROY. 10 I. C. 308: 15 C. W. N. 682.

——S. 115—Amendment of pleading—Revision.

A Court is not empowered to accept additional written statement to meet allegations not raised in the plaint. The proper course is to amend the plaint, if allowable, direct filing of written statement, frame issues and decide. (Kumaraswami Sastri, J.) POOSAPATHI RAMACHANDRA v. VENKATA SUBBAYAMMA. 30 I. ——Ss. 115 and 104, Cl. (1)—Appeal—Case decided in which no appeal lies.

An order passed under S. 104, cl. (1) is a "case decided in which no appeal lies" within S. 115, and is therefore open to revision. (Batchelor and Hayward, JJ.) BAI ATRANI v. LEEPSING BARIA. 40 Bom. 86 : 33 I. C. 358 : 17 Bom. L. R. 1097.

——S. 115—Appeal—Conversion into revision—Interference.

Where it would amount to a denial of justice to the appellant to refuse relief and it appears that no appeal lies against the decision of the Court below, the High Court would convert the appeal into a revision petition and interfere. Where the lower Court had erroneously and without jurisdiction purported to amend a final decree, the High Court set aside the order in revision. Where in arbitration proceedings an appeal is not allowed, revision would be still more objectionable. (Johnstone, J.) NARPAT RAI v. DEVIDAS. 1 P. L. R. 1911 : 9 I. C. 385 : 12 P. W. R. 1911.

Award.

——S. 115 and Sch. II, para. 15—Award—Private inquiries authorised by agreement—Not Misconduct—Order superseding award—Revision.

Where the parties to an arbitration agreed to abide by the arbitrator's decision in whatsoever manner he might see fit to arrive at it, and he made private inquiries into the dispute behind the back of the parties, held, it did not constitute misconduct ; in superseding the award in such a case, the court acted illegally and with material irregularity and hence the High Court could interfere in revision. C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 115—Award.

——S. 115—Award—Material irregularity—Extension of time for filing award.

A Court has jurisdiction to extend the time for filing an award and such an extension is not therefore a material irregularity. The mere fact that the Court has used threatening language towards an arbitrator is not a ground for interference under S. 115 in the absence of proof that the arbitrator was thereby forced to arbitrate against his will. Where no notice was given of the filing of the award as required by Para. 10, the High Court can interfere in revision with a decree passed in terms of the award. (Teanon, J.) GOPI NATH MUKERJI v. NARESH CHANDRA MITRA, 63 I. C 243.

——S. 115 and Sch. II, para. 16—Award—Notice of objections not given—Effect.

Where a Court decides the objections to an award without notice to the objector of the date of hearing, it acts with material irregularity and its order is liable to be revised. (Abdul Raoof, J.) DARBARI RAM v. BHIKHA RAM. 64 I. C. 394.

——S. 115 and Sch. II, para 16—Award—Revision—Competency of.

If a Court passing a decree on an award has committed an error in procedure or has misused the jurisdiction prescribed by Sch. II, C. P. C., there is a revision against the decree. Case.

——S. 115—"Case decided"—Meaning of—Order under S. 10 of the Rel. End. Act—Revision —Powers of interference.

If the remaning members of a temple committee have been ordered by the Civil Court to forthwith fill up a vacancy in their body under S, 10 of Act XX of 1863, on their failure to hold an election within three months, the Civil Court has thereafter no jurisdiction to make an order declaring valid, an appointment made on election by the persons interested. If it does so, the order is open to revision under S. 115, C P.C. A proceeding of the Civil Court under S. 10 of Act XX of 1863 is a judicial and not merely an adminstrative or ministerial act. In such matters the Civil Court exercises its powers as a Court of law not merely as a Persona Designata whose determinations are not to be treated as judgments of a legal tribunal. S. 115, C P. C., applies to jurisdiction alone, the irregular exercise, or non exercise of it or the illegal assumption of it; it is not directed against conclusions of law or fact in which jurisdiction is not involved. "Case" is not defined in the Code, It cannot be confined to litigation in which there is a plaintiff who seeks to obtain a particular relief against a deft. before the Court but includes an exparte application praying that persons in the position of trustees or officials should perform their trust or discharge their judicial duties. Per Piggott, Ryves and Gokul Prasad, JJ : The decision on a single issue by a Subordinate Court in a suit which is still pending in that Court is not a 'case decided'. Per Rafique, J :—'Case' includes an order that deals with an issue or question, raised between the parties and 'decided' includes any adjudication, on such question or issue, whether the adjudication finally determines the suit or not. An application under S. 10, C. P. C., for the stay of a suit is not a "case" and an order for stay passed on that application is not the decision of a case within S. 115 of the Code, and no revision lies from such an order. The word "case" in S. 115 is not confined to a suit but it cannot be construed to mean an interlocutory order in a suit although the order may be of such a nature that it cannot be interfered with even under S. 105 of the C. An order staying a suit under section 10 of the Civil Procedure Code is not "a decision of a case" within the meaning of section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code any more than a decision by a Subordinate Court in a case in which the only question is whether it has or has not jurisdiction to go on with a suit. In order to come to a findingas to whether the requirements of section 10, C. P. ——S. 115—Jurisdiction—Failure to exercise—Omission to decree claim admitted.

Where the lower court dismissed the plaintiff's suit for rent without considering whether he was entitled to a decree for the whole or a portion of the claim on the admission of the defendant, there is a failure to exercise jurisdiction with which the High Court will interfere in revision. ——S. 115—Material irregularity—Revision —Principle regarding.

The general principle applicable in case of revision under S. 115, C.P.C., is that when a court has taken up a point of fact or law for decision and has decided that point wrongly, it has acted with full jurisdiction regularly and legally and no revision lies unless that decision itself affects the court's own jurisdiction. But when having jurisdiction, the court has failed or refused to take up the point for decision it has exercised its jurisdiction irregularly and the more the failure or refusal affects the exercise of its jurisdiction the greater the irregularity will be. A subordinate judge when dealing with an election concern under the Madras Municipal election rules set aside an election merely on account of non-compliance with rules without deciding whether such non-compliance had materially affected the election, Held, that he acted with material irregularity and the High Court had power to interfere in revision. ——S. 115—Material irregularity—Meaning of—Revision.

The words "acting illegally or with material irregularity" in the exercise of jurisdiction should be read as covering cases in which the Court below has failed to arrive at an obvious conclusion which the facts stated necessitate or has so misapplied the principles of law as to result in a perversion of justice. The words "jurisdiction" in cl. (3) should not be understood as merely indicating the pecuniary, local or other statutory limits of a forum before which proceedings are taken, The word is used in a larger sense than is attributed to it. It means the authority or power which a Court has to do justice in the causes of complaint brought before him. A judge acts illegally and irregularly in the exercise of his jurisdiction if the result of his decision deprives a party of the fruits of a prior proceeding. C P. CODE (V OF 1908), S 141.

S. filed a suit against the applicants in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Bilaspur. Certain preliminary issues were framed and the parties were told to appear on the 12th of July 1921 to argue them. The defendants were present but the plaintiff was not and the suit was accordingly dismissed. On the 23rd of July 1921 S. made an application for setting aside the order of dismissal. She appeared ou the 3rd of September 1921, but notices on the opposite party had not then been served. The case was adjourned to 8th October 1921, and the order passed on that date was as follows :—

"S. in person, non-applicants absent. The previous notices were returned unserved. Notice for this hearing could not be served for want of time as process-fee was paid on 3rd October 1921. I do not find any justification for paying process-fee so late. I therefore dismiss the application for default of the applicant."

An execution sale was confirmed by the courts in India but set aside on appeal by the Privy Council after a lapse of 9 years. In the interval the auction-purchasers had obtained possession of the property sold and had also paid off certain incumbrances thereon. The sale price paid into Court by the auction purchasers had been distributed to various decree-holders. After the decision of the Privy Council the judgment-debtors applied for restitution under S, 144 C. P. C. The auction-purchasers claimed a refund of the purchase money paid by them as well as the value of the incumbrances discharged by them. Held that the judgment-debtors were entitled to possession only on their payment to the purchaser the amount of the purchase money less the mesne profits derived by the purchasers in the interval. The interest on mesne profits was allowed to be set off against the interest on the purchase price. The purchaser having discharged the incumbrances of their own accord and without any order of court, they were entitled to the benefit of the security but not to a refund of the amounts as a condition precedent to their surrendering possession. ———S 144—Dependent judgment—Limitation—Interest.

In cases not coming strictly within S 144 (which makes grant of restitution obligatory in certain cases) restitution depends upon the discretion of the Court and will be ordered only when the justice of the case needs it: but the test of justice must be determined with reference to the requirements of the law applicable to the subject. In general upon the reversal of judgment, order or decree, all connected and dependent judgment or orders fall with it, specially judgments subsequently entered and dependent thereon : but not a distinct and independent judgment or proceeding though it is a part of the same litigation. Whether a judgment or order is a dependent judgment or order, is to be determined from the nature and scope of the proceedings. The Court will not permit injustice as a result of erroneous order made by it and will, on the reversal of that erroneous order, restore the parties to their original position. A transferee of a portion of non transferable occupancy holding applied to annul the sale of the same holding purchased by the landlord in a decree for rent obtained by him without making the applicant a party to the suit. The transferee got possession and sued the landlord for mesne profits. Held, he could not claim the mesne profits because had he brought a separate suit for possession against the landlord who did not recognize him as his tenant, he would not have got it. S. 144 of the Code and the inherent powers of the Court provided merely a more convenient procedure instead of conferring new substantive rights. (*Jenkins, C. ——S. 144—Non-applicability to—Acts done prior to decree.

The object of S. 144, C.P.C. is that anything done in execution of a decree reversed on appeal, should, as far as possible, be undone : and that the party who has been finally victorious should be placed in the position which he would have occupied, if the erroneous decree had not been made. Where the judgment debtors applied for stay of execution pending the appeal and were asked to furnish security for mesne profits and accordingly furnished security. Held, that the decree-holders can recover mesne profits in execution proceedings at all events against the judgment-debtors and they need not file a suit. The court can order restitution in a case of this sort. The decree-holders by the order of stay of execution passed by the chief court were kept out of the enjoyment of the land in suit, and as the appeal of the judgment-debtors was eventually dismissed the decree-holders are entitled to ask to be put in the same position as they would have been in, had the execution of the decree not been stayed. In execution of a decree certain properties were attached, brought to sale and purchased by the appellants who were strangers to the decree. The proceeds of the sale were rateably distributed among the respondents who were creditors holding decrees against the same judgment-debtor. Subsequently certain claimants who had unsuccessfully intervened in the execution proceedings obtained a decree in a claim suit that the properties belonged to a trust and therefore not liable to sale in execution of the decree and recovered possession of the properties with mesne profits from the appellants. The appellant thereupon applied for refund of the purchase-money which had been distributed rateably among the various decree-holders. Held, neither S. 144 nor S. 151 of the C. P. ——S. 144—Execution sale — Subsequent reduction of decree amount—Effect of

The sum due to a decree-holder under the decree of the first Court was Rs. 7,695. In execution of the decree 19 items of property were sold for Rs. 10,357 in all. Five items of the property were purchased by the decree-holder himself. Subsequent to the execution sale the appellate Court modified the decree by reducing the amount to Rs. 7,495. Thereupon the judgment-debtor applied for restitution by redelivery of the five items purchased by the decree-holder. It was found that the sale of every item including the last was necessary to realise the amount of the appellate decree, though if the properties had been sold in a different order and the five items had been reserved to be sold last, their sale would have been unnecessary to realise the amount of decree on appeal. Held, that there had been no case made out for restitution, as the position of the judgment-debtor as regards the sale of the five items was in no way affected by the variation in the decree. Such prejudice as the judgment-debtor had suffered was due not to the variation in the decree, but to the terms in the order in execution regulating the order in which the items were to be sold. S. 144, C. P. C., is not confined to cases where restitution is claimed on the reversal of the decree in first or second appeal. Provided the decree is varied or reversed the section applies, however, the reversal or variance has been effected. An order under O. 21, R. 90, C. P. Code, refusing to set aside the sale was reversed on appeal therefrom. ——S. 144—Restitution from party to be made by Court.

Under S. 144 of the Code there should be restitution made from party to party, as nearly as possible to their positions before the erroneous order and not to the various subsequent positions taken by them as a consequence of the wrong order. S. 144 authorises restoration of parties only to their respective positions at the time of the wrong order and not to later positions taken up by them of their own accord, as remotely resulting from that order. ——S. 144—Remedy by suit—When applicable.

S. 144, C. P. C., is confined to cases in which the decree of a trial Court is varied or reversed by some superior Court or by reason of some order passed by a superior Court. If a decree is varied or set aside by the Court passing it (and not by a superior Court) a claim in restitution enforced by means of a suit is not barred by the provisions of S. 144, C.P.C., though S. 583 of the old Code, which S. 144 replaces, might have lent itself to such an interpretation. ——S. 144—Revenue Court—U. P. Land and Revenue Regulation, S. 12—Revenue Courts—Powers.

The power of restitution expressed in S. 144, C.P.C., is inherent in all courts, Civil or Revenue. Revenue officers dealing with cases of a judicial nature have been given the powers of Civil Courts regarding the institution and trial of suits by R. 55 of the rules framed by the Local Government under S 12 of the U. ——S. 144—Procedure—Application—Payment under decree subsequently declared in a separate suit to be null and void—Failure to ask for payment—O. 2, R. 2.

Plaintiffs sued to set aside a decree in execution of which they had paid money to the decree-holder. The decree was declared to be null and void. Plaintiffs then applied for restitution of the amount paid by them. Held, that S. 144, applied. There is no restriction in S. 144 as to the manner in which the decree should have been varied or reversed. The plaintiff not having asked for payment as a relief in the subsequent suit, is not barred under O. 2, R. 2, and under the principles of res judicata from claiming repayment by way of restitution. The landlords obtained decree for ejectment against their tenants and the tenants were ejected from their holdings. Subsequently the decree was reversed. Some of the tenants applied to the Asstt. Collector for restitution under S. 144 (2) which was ordered as to a portion of the original area from which they had been ejected. The order was affirmed by the Commissioner. A decree-holder who wanted to take possession of the lands decreed to him was required to furnish security for mesne profits in case the appelate court decided against him. The appellant hypothecated his property as security for the required sum ; but no obligee was named in the bond. The appeal was dismissed by the High Court but the Privy Council dismissed the suit and directed the first court to ascertain mesne profits due to the defts. The court below made the appellant a party to the proceedings, assessed the mesne profits at a certain sum and declared appellant's liability under the bond to the amount secured. Held, (1) that the liability of the appellant (surety) did not terminate with the decision by the first appellate court but continued till the Privy Council stage also ; (2) that there being no obligee under the security bond nobody could sue on it under S. 90 of the T. P. Act, (3) that the first court acted properly in dealing with the appellant's liability on an application for ascertainment of mesne profits and (4) that the properties charged could be directed to be sold on default of payment within a date fixed. 17 All. 99 ref. Act, Held, that the claim of the decree-holder was based entirely on the security bond which created a mortgage in her favour and the claim against the surety was thus a claim arising under the mortgage within the meaning of O, 34, R. 14, C. P. C. (1908) and the properties could not be sold without a suit under S. 67, T. P. Act. This summons was not served on him but was sent through his pleader whose agent returned it saying that he did not know where the judgment-debtor was. Held, that the order directing forfeiture of the bond must be set aside. for no order was passed for personal attendance of the judgment-debtor. Obiter.—The summons could not be said to have been served under the circumstances of the case. ———S. 145—Scope of—Security on behalf of judgment-debtor—Suit by surety to cancel security bond—Fraud—C. P. Code, S. 47.

A third party who has given security on behalf of a judgment-debtor for the performance of a decree cannot apply to the executing Court to cancel the security bond on the ground that it was obtained by fraud. His remedy is only by way of suit. S. 145, C. P. C., merely is that the surety may be made a party to the execution proceedings against the principal debtor and an order against the surety is in effect a decree upon his separate contract against him for the payment of money. The surety is not a party to the suit or to the decree made therein nor does he become a party to the execution proceedings until application is made for an order against him. He is not a party to the suit within S. 47, C. P. C., and S. 145 only makes him a party for a limited purpose, namely, for appeal. Where a person has become surety for the release of a judgment-debtor arrested in execution of a decree and the bond is filed in Court, it must be regarded as a matter of record in the Court as much as if it had been executed to the Court itself. ——— S. 145—Depository—Bond under O. 21, R. 43, C. P. Code—Enforcement of.

Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—Under S. 145, a decree holder cannot execute a decree against a surety under O. 21, R. 43, C.P. Code, as amended by the High Court, in respect of property entrusted to him. The proper mode of enforcing such a bond is by assigning it in favour of the decree-holder.

Per Spencer, J.—A bond such as the above can be enforced against the person making it by proceeding under S. 145. The words 'may be executed' in S. 145 seem to indicate that proceeding in execution is only an alternative remedy and that the other remedy of assignment of the security bond is not excluded. ———S. 145—Surety—Mode of enforcing liability.

Where a condition is imposed on a surety under an order of Court the surety can be compelled to fulfil that condition in execution proceedings under S. 145, C. P. Code, without any second formal order being passed against the principal. Similarly in the cases contemplated by clauses (a) and (b) of S. 145 there would be no necessity for a second formal, or even informal order to the principal to perform the decree or restore the property. The surety could be proceeded against as soon as the decree is capable of execution, or the property becomes liable to restitution or the condition required fulfilment. The words "undry an order of the Court," in clause (c) of S. 145, which apply equally to the payment of monee and the fulfilment of a condition, must in each case refer to the original order of the Court. They do not refer, in respect of the condition, to the original order imposing it, and, in respect of the payment, to a second order to be passed in subsequent proceedings. (*Hallifax, A. J. C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 146.

Where the conditions of a surety bond were that on receiving a week's notice, the surety would produce the judgment-debtor and in default pay a sum of money, the surety cannot be proceeded against on the dismissal of the execution application, since the surety bond was in force only during the pendency of the application in which it was executed. 14 C. 757, Foll. ——S. 145 (c)—Scope of.

S. 145 (c), C. P. C., includes a case when the security is given for the production of a judgement debtor arrested in execution of a decree and released on furnishing security and on expressing his intention to apply for being declared an involvent. The section prescribes a summary remedy in execution for the realization of the security in execution to the extent to which the surety has made himself personally liable. A condition precedent in a surety bond that the debtor should be produced if he failed to appear after notice, is a benefit which the surety may waive as when a surety says that " notice need not be sent to the judgment-debtor as it is impossible to produce him as he and the decree-holder are colluding." M. sued for the recovery of some immoveable property but by a compromise, was awarded a portion of the property. Before a decree was passed on the compromise he transferred his interest in the property to A. A did not apply to bring himself on the record. After the decree was passed A applied to execute the decree as M's representative. Held that he was not a representative within S. 146 of the C. P. Defts. judgment-debtors failed to comply with their contract and plaintiff decree-holder got a decree for specific performance on condition of deposit within a certain period. He made the payment 4 days after, but, before the expiry of the period allowed, he applied for correction of the decree by the insertion of certain directions as to what was to happen in the event of his making the deposit. The Court on 20th March allowed the amendment, but in the same order stated that plaintiff decree-holder had failed to make the deposit and was not entitled to any extension of time. Two months before this order, the plaintiff decree-holder had applied for execution and was given possession of the property, the failure to make deposit not having been brought to the notice of the Court. The judgment-debtor in connection with proceedings which culminated in the order of 20th March, applied to be restored to possession and her application was granted, Held, in revision, where a definite time is fixed by the decree the Court has no power to extend it, but in any case no extension having been granted plaintiff decree-holder was not entitled to any relief. ——S. 151—Consolidation.

Actions against different defts. ought not to be consolidated unless issues are similar or parties consent. Consolidation of suits will be made in proper case in the exercise of inherent power. When the same plaintiff for trying the same question brings several actions vexatiously, the Court will interfere and either grant time to plead in all the actions or will stay the proceedings. When the application itself shows that it is one for the restoration of a suit, justice should not be denied simply because there is a technical objection to the word "review" which has been employed in the application. As the code cannot be said to be exhaustive, it is not necessary in every case to have the support of a section of the C.P.C. to pass an order not expressly or impliedly forbidden which is required in the interests of justice 33 C. 927 at p. 932, Foll. Appeals to the inherent jurisdiction of the Court have to be regarded with great caution. But if having exercised such caution, the court is clearly of opinion that the jurisdiction ought to be exercised, it should not be intimidated from so doing, because no case on all fours is forthcoming from the reported decisions of the High Courts. The Court will interfere in preventing vexatious proceedings which would have the effect to prevent the due administration of justice. The Court will stay an action brought within the jurisdiction, in respect of a cause of action arising out of the jurisdiction, if satisfied that no injustice or lost, the Court has an inherent power to reconstruct its records. An appellate Court has the same power to reconstruct the records of the Court from which an appeal lies to it. In reconstructing the record the court may have to go very near to rehearing but the Court will always apply its mind to ascertain not what the rights of the parties were, but what the destroyed record of the suit was and on that record, when reconstructed it will have to act on the ordinary principles on which it would have acted if the original record had been before it. Affidavits, counter affidavits, the hearing of witnesses and admission of copies are all methods by which the Court may reconstruct the record and an appellate Court may also send the case back to the lower Court for a finding as to the state of record. The best evidence of what took place in the Trial Court would be founded in the judgment of that Court if it is available. 7 W.R. 18 Ref (Schwabe, C.J., Oldfield and Ramesam, JJ.) MARAKKARUTTI v. VEERANKUTTY. 32 M. Under the C. P. Code, a minor may be sued in his name but the Court should appoint a proper guardian ad litem. The institution of the suit saves limitation, but its further progress depends upon the appointment of a guardian ad litem. Where in a suit by a minor to set aside an ex parte decree against him, the proceedings taken to appoint a guardian ad litem have been declared invalid, the suit proceeds only when such proceedings are properly initiated and completed. The Court whose duty ultimately is to appoint a guardian can under S. 151 revive the suit. (Walsh and Sunder Lal, JJ.) BAGHWAN DAYAL v. PARAM SUKH DAS. 39 All. 8 : 36 I. C. 366 : 14 A. L. The Court below, instead of staying a suit for production of the letters of administration, dismissed it giving liberty to the plff. to apply to have the dismissal set aside on obtaining letters. Subsequently the plaintiff obtained letters of administration and succeeded in setting aside the dismissal of the suit which was then tried and decreed. On an application in revision by defendant. Held that the lower Court should have properly speaking stayed the further trial of the suit pending the production of the letters of administration, that the order of the lower Court was really a means of suspending the suit and at the same time discharging it from the list of suits on file, that the merits of the case were entirely in favour of the plaintiff and therefore the High Court would not interfere in revision. An appellate Court has power to implead such persons as parties to the appeal as were parties in the trial court and were not made parties to the appeal but not those who were complete strangers to the suit.

C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 151—Who can invoke.

Powers of a Court to implead parties under S. 151, C. P. Code are circumscribed by O. 41 R. 20 and it is only in exceptional circumstances that the inherent powers under S. 151 could be invoked. (Moti Sagar, J.) MT. HALIMAN v. NUR MUHAMMAD KHAN. 73 I. C. 136 : 1923 Lah. 490

Who can invoke.

——S. 151—Who can invoke.

The inherent powers of a court cannot be used for the benefit of the litigant who has his remedy under the Code of Civil Procedure, much less for one who having his remedy has lost it by his own delay. ——S. 152— Mistake, error or omission — Calculation of amount due—Overlooking of order of court.

In calculating the amount due on redemption, the office overlooked an order of court directing the calculation up to date of payment. Held, it was a mere error or mistake under S. 152, C.P.C. and could be corrected at any time. ——S. 152—Amendment of decree—Discretion—Principles guiding—Intervention of rights of third parties—Action in good faith.

The exercise of the power of amendment under S. 152, C.P.C. is discretionary, and an application for amendment of a decree should be rejected as too late if the rights of third parties acting in good faith have intervened. ——S. 152—Jurisdiction— Decree of trial court affirmed on appeal.

The applicant for amendment of a decree confirmed on appeal, must show a variance between the judgment and the decree of the Appellate Court and not a variance between those of the lower Court. (Richards, C. J. and Banerji, J.) BALGOBIND RAI v. SHEORAJ RAI. 46 I. C. 376 : 16 A. L. J. 451.

——S. 152—Execution--Amendment of decree in.

The property mortgaged was misdescribed in the decree and ordered to be sold as muafi while the property was in fact assessed to revenue. When the mortgagee applied for execution of his decree the objector who had purchased the same property in execution of a simple money decree pleaded that there was no muafi. Held, that the misdescription not having deceived the objector when he purchased, the court was not debarred from correcting the error in the decree. S. 152. Where, however the operative part awards a particular share but there is an error in the details, they may be regarded as surplusage (Evans, J. C.) MATA BADAL v. KABLASI, 9 I. C. 433.

——S. 152—"Court" meaning of.

'Court" in S. 152 does not mean the particular presiding Judge who may have made the mistake but means the Court, whoever may be the presiding officer. (Das, J.) MEWA SAHU v. JHOUTI SINGH. 2 Pat. L. T. 296 : 63 I. C. 840.

——S. 152 and O. 47, R. 1. Variation between decree and Judgment—Amendment of decree—Judgment also attacked—Review.

Where, in a petition for amendment of the decree, the judgment is also attacked, the petition is one for review as well as a petition for the amendment of the decree. (Mullick and Sultan Ahmed, JJ.) SHREE SAKTI NARAIN SINGH v. BIR SINGH. 5 Pat. L. J. 253 : 1 Pat. L. T. 219 : 58 I. C. 510 : 2 U. P. L. R. (Pat.) 50.

Court can add an order as to costs to the judgment already pronounced. (Coutts and Das, JJ.) SHDHO CHARAN SINGH v. GANGESWAR KOER. 57 I. C. 739.

——Ss. 152 and 151—Consent decree—Inherent power—Amendment.

Amendment of decree under S 152 is justified only when it is for clerical error or arithmetical mistake. The inherent power is to be relied upon only to bring the decree in conformity with the judgment and is not to be used in the case of a decree founded upon compromise. The only remedy in the case of a decree not agreeing with compromise arrived at, is by suit to set it aside either on the ground of fraud, mistake or some other ground. (Atkinson and Das, JJ.) RAM LAGAN SAHU v. RAM BIRICH KOERI. 50 I. C. 497 : 4 Pat. L. J. 205.

C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 153.

——Ss. 152 and 153—Execution—Delivery of properties not covered by decree—Jurisdiction of Court to amend.

A court should correct its own mistake and not drive the parties to a subsequent suit, if in execution of a decree the Court officer delivers possession of more properties than were sold without the knowledge of the judgment debtor. (Roe and Jwala Prasad, JJ.) SHEO PRASAD RAI v. DHARAM SEN RAI. 49 I. C. 948.

——S. 152—Omission of one of the mortgage properties in plaint and decree—Power to correct exists.

By a mere oversight the plaint and the decree in a mortgage suit omitted one of the items in a mortgage document, though there was no dispute between the parties as to what was included. Held the error can be corrected under S. 152, C. P. Code. (Duckworth, J.) MAUNG CHIT HLAING v. N. A. R. M. CHETTY. 74 I. C. 1020 : 1924 Rang. 104.

——S. 152—Appellate decree—Trial Court cannot amend—Notice.

Once a decree has been confirmed on appeal, it is merged in the appellate decree and the Trial Court has no longer any jurisdiction to amend that decree. Notice must be given to opposite party before amending a decree. (Saunders, J. C.) MAUNG YANGIN v. KATHARASAN CHETTY. 63 I. C. 799 : (1921) 4 U. B. R. 1.

——S 152—Accidental mistake—Decree for foreclosure inadvertently passed in place of one for sale—Alteration if can be made—Rights of parties how determined.

A decree for foreclosure inadvertently passed in lieu of one for sale cannot, where the decree has been assigned over, be altered except on an application by the judgment-debtor to that effect. The rights of the assignee in such cases may be left for determination either in execution or in a regular suit. (Hartnoll, O. C. J. and Young, J.) LUN MAUNG v. MOMIEN BEE BEE. 22 I. C. 935 : 7 L. B. R. 81.

S. 152 does not cover the practical reversal of the court's finding on a formal issue. (Crouch and Boyd, A. J. Cs.) ISARDAS v. THAKURDAS. 24 I. C. 831 : 7 S. L. R. 186.

——S, 152—Variation between judgment and decree — Clerical error — Decree — Power to amend—Limitation—Appellate Court confirming.

An error arising from a discrepancy between a judgment and decree is a clerical error and the court could amend it of its own motion ; and where the clerical error has been incorporated in the appellate decree it is the latter decree that has to be corrected. Application under S. 152 C. P. C. is not governed by the Limitation Act, (Pratt, J. C. and Crouch, A. J. C.) BIKHOMAL LALCHAND v. RAJALMAL MANOMAL. 21 I. C. 540 : 7 S. L. R. 53.

——S, 153—Appellate Court—Arithmetical mistake or obvious error in plaint and decree—Duty to amend.

C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 153.

Where in a suit on a mortgage the name of the village in which the mortgaged property was situated was misdescribed and the mistake is discovered on appeal, it is the duty of the appellate Court to allow an amendment of the plaint and thus rectify a clerical mistake. (Ryves and Gokul Prasad, JJ.) BHAGIRITH SHUKUL v. CHANDRA HARIHAR PATTAK. 20 A. L. J. 159 : L.R. 3 A. 115 : 66 I. C. 208 : 1922 All. 81.

——S. 153 and O. 6, R. 17—Amendment of plaint—Power of Court after decree is made.

S. 153, C. P. Code allows the Court to give leave for amendment at any time in any proceeding in a suit, and Order 6, Rule 17 says that the Court may allow such amendments at any stage of the proceedings. Prima facie this limits the Court to allow amendments in pleadings during the actual pendency of the suit and not after the decree has been actually drawn up and sealed. But when a decree is passed, if it is final, the original Court is, generally speaking, functus officio and the occasion for an amendment of pleadings cannot really arise. (Fawcett, J.) KISHEN PRASAD AND CO., LTD. v. FULLUMAL HIRALAL. 25 Bom. L. R. 888 : 77 I. C. 171 : 1924 Bom. 166.

——S. 153 and O. 1, R. 10—Dead man—Appeal against—Addition of legal representatives is illegal.

The respondent whose name was entered in the cause title of an appeal died before its presentation and an application was made to substitute the names of his legal representatives in his place. Held that the application could not be sustained. The proper course for the appellant was to file another appeal against the legal representatives and to have the delay excused. (Oldfield and Venkatasubba Rao, JJ.) GOVINDA KAVIRAJ PUROHITA v. GAURANGA SAW. 18 L.W. 54 : (1923) M. W. N. 408 : 45 M. L. J. 231 : 75 I. C 739 : 1924 Mad. 56.

——S. 153—Notice to opposite party necessary

Amendment of sale certificate without notice to judgment-debtor is irregularity. (Devadoss, J.) YAGNASWAMI IYER v. CHIDAMBARANATHA MUDALIAR. (1922) M. W. N. 130 : 65 I. C. 732 : 16 L. W. 760 : 1922 M. 63.

——S. 153 and O. 21, R. 57—Execution application—Amendment.

Upon the dismissal of an application for execution the attachment of property ceases and a subsequent petition only for sale is defective, but this defect can be remedied by amendment under S. 153, C. P. C. (Sadasiva Aiyar and Napier, JJ.) KUNCHA PUDY ANANTH VENKATA VEERARAGHAVA CHARYULU v. MULLIKARJUNA PRASAD NAIDU. 25 I. C. 883 : 1 L. W. 665.

——S. 153—Amendment of plaint—No signature and no verification.

Want of signature and verification does not entail rejection of the plaint as they can be supplied at any stage. (Miller and Abdur Rahim, JJ.) ARUNACHELLAM CHETTY v. PRABHAYYA CHETTY. 25 M. L. J. 174 : 17 I. C. 580 : (1912) M. W. N. 1207.

C. P. CODE (V OF 1908), S. 157.

——S. 153—Applicability—Dismissal order.

As the dismissal order was not an error or defect in the proceedings, S. 153 does not apply the remedy for the aggrieved minors is to appeal against the order. (Roe and Jwala Prasad, JJ.) RAMGHULAM SINGH v. SHEODEONARAIN SINGH. (1922) Pat. 5 : 3 Pat. L. T. 149 : 1922 P. 121.

——S. 154—Scope of.

S. 154 has no bearing on the powers of an Appellate Court in dealing with appeals before it. (Chitty and Chatterjee, JJ.) ABDUL AZIZ v. MOMIN. 9 I. C. 815.

——S. 154 and O. 41, R. 23 and O. 43, R. 1—Remand before new code—Appeal.

Where in a suit instituted before the coming into force of the new C. P. Code, an order of remand is passed after the new Code has come into force, the right of appeal against the order is regulated by the new and not by the old Code. 21 M. L. J. 631, diss. The words "any present right of appeal" in S. 154, C. P. C. mean a right of appeal in esse and not in posse (i. e. a right of appeal which had actually come into existence and was capable of being exercised by the aggrieved party at the commencement of the new statute. (Johnstone and Shah Din, JJ.) GANDA MAL v. PIRAN DITTA. 1 P. R. 1913 : 156 P. L. R. 1912 : 15 I. C. 725 84 P. W. R. 1913.

The general law that a right of appeal is more than a matter of procedure and an alteration of the law of procedure would not react upon the right of appeal, is superseded by S. 154. (Prat J. C. and Crouch, A. J. C.) ALIM v. MOLEDINO. 6 S. L. R. 168 : 19 I. C. 348.

——S 155 and O. 21, Rr. 58, and 63—Other remedy—Suit—No interference.

An order disallowing a claim petition is not subject to revision by the High Court as the petitioner has a remedy by suit. (Miller, J.) SUBBA REDDIAR v. KUMARASAWMY REDDIAR. 21 I. C. 461 : (1913) M. W. N. 856.

——S. 157—'Rules made'—Meaning of.

The expression "rules made" in S. 157 must mean rules properly and validly made, in other words made with jurisdiction by the proper authority. Rules under old Code which were ultra vires then are not valid because they could be made under the new Code. (Sadasiva Aiyar and Napier, JJ.) RAMAKRISHNA PILLAI v. MUTHU PERUMAL PILLAI. 29 M. L. J. 663 : 31 I. C. 924.

——S. 157 and O. 21, R. 43—'Consistent with the code'—Meaning of—Rules under the old code—Custody of live stock.

The words "consistent with the code" mean only consistent with the sections of the code and not with the rules which are alterable by the High Court. Rules framed by the local Government under S. 269 of the old Code are in force until rules are made by the High Court under the power given by S. 128 (2) of the new Code. (White, C. J., Sankaran Nair and Munro, JJ.) In re REFERENCE UNDER STAMP ACT, 1899. 24 M. L. J. 637 : 20 I. C. 775 : 37 Mad. 17.
